$1,487,804 Appropriation Approved

Council gave approval Monday night to the annual appropriation ordinance providing $1,487,804 for all municipal purposes in 1963, an increase of $115,759 over the $1,372,045 provided for 1962.

Except for the additional cost of a general wage increase granted city employes Dec. 1 and a municipally - financed life and hospital plan set up for them, there is virtually no change from last year's appropriation, Councilman George E. Willshaw, finance committee chairman, remarked to Council.

THERE ARE "no frills" in the fund allocation, although the finance committee feels it was able to provide enough for each department to operate efficiently, Willshaw commented.

"It was necessary to cut the budget requests of all departments in order to stay within the anticipated income," the committee chairman said. "We were forced to eliminate requests for materials and supplies that probable would have enabled various departments to do a better job, but we had no choice except to cut."

There is no provision for new equipment, aside from a $2,500 item for purchase of a police cruiser which already is on order. Council provided the funds earlier out of anticipated 1963 income and authorized the administration to go ahead with the purchase.

TO HELP bolster the general fund, the ordinance provides for a transfer of $130,757 out of income tax revenue.

The income tax also will provide $7,500 to finance the first installment of the city's share of the cost of preparing a "master plan" for future growth and development. The appropriation, in another allocation from income tax revenues, provides $2,200 to build a new fence and backstop at a baseball field at Thompson Park.

The funds for the "master plan" and the baseball field were allocated earlier, but they also are included in the appropriation for the full year.

The general fund appropriation for 1963 totals $564,025, an increase of $56,374 from the $508,650 provided in 1962. Willshaw said virtually all the increase is accounted for in wage increases granted appointive employes.

The ordinance provides a total of $10,526 for the employe insurance plan — $1,798 for premiums on life insurance and $8,728 for hospital and surgical policies.

In the general fund, the allocation includes $1,512 for life insurance and $7,337 for hospital insurance. There is a separate appropriation in the water department for $268 for life insurance and $1,391 for hospital insurance. The water department is administered separately by the Board of Public Utilities, accounting for the establishment of two insurance funds.

THE APPROPRIATION provides $3,166 as the second installment in repayment of a federal grant of approximately $8,000 in 1958 for repair of flood damage to the River Rd. After the city received the money, the federal government decided it had not complied with all the terms and conditions of the grant and the city was forced to make restitution. The first installment was repaid last year.

There also is $4,546 for repayment of a federal loan granted in 1947 to aid in planning a blanket street surfacing program. The first installment for repayment of this loan also was paid last year.

The Safety Fund, which includes the fire and police departments, is set at $338,594 for 1963, an increase of $25,593 over 1962's appropriation.

Pay raises for employes account for virtually all of the increase. For instance, the police department's appropriation is set at $146,881, a boost of $9,955, and the fire department allocation is $162,036, a boost of $13,699.

THE ORDINANCE provides $10,750 for three "Meter Maids," their uniforms and incidental expenses, a reduction of $2,400 from 1962's allocation. However, Willshaw explained the "Meter Maid" force will continue at four, with one of the women being paid out of a new, separate "off-street parking fund" based on revenue from metered lots. So actually there will be no reduction in the "Meter Maid" force or its operations, he said.

8 Spellers Move To County Finals

By BYRON R. EELLS

For the third time in four years, Gary Barringer reigned today as the city's spelling champion, defeating 25 other contestants Monday night at East Junior High School and leading seven other students into the county spelldown April 22 at Lisbon.

Some 200 watched as the 14-year-old Westgate eighth-grader methodically spelled down representatives from other schools in his final bid to win county and regional laurels. Gary had won city titles in 1960 and 1961 as a fifth- and sixth-grader at Lincoln, but was eliminated in the Westgate building competition last year.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. John Barringer, 500 Princeton Ave., had a tough fight on his hands, however, before winning out over the youngest speller in the bee — 10-year-old Michael Rolley, a fifth-grader at McKinley and son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rolley, 824 Bradshaw Ave.

THE SIX other contestants, who will join Barringer and Rolley in the county finals, in the order they finished were:

Deborah Banfield, 13, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. Fred Banfield of Highland Colony and a seventh-grader at Westgate.

Asks 4½ Sales Tax

Scranton Urges Record Budget Of $1.1 Billion

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Gov. William Scranton proposed a record state budget of $1,121,453,552 today. To balance it he requested expanded state sales taxes and an increased cigarette levy.

The proposed budget was for the state's general fund to cover day-to-day operations of the commonwealth. Special fund budgets —such as that for highways—will be presented later.

The budget presented to a joint session of the House and Senate included record high requests for public education, health and welfare, as well as new high levels in other areas.

The budget included $1,052,578,800 in mandated items and $47,065,000 for new programs or increased old appropriations sought by the governor.

To pay for the $138,253,552 increase over the 1962-63 budget the governor proposed:

"(1) Raise the rate of the (4 per cent) selective sales and use tax one-half of one per cent, which will yield $52 million.

"(2) Extend the sales tax to include clothing, which at the new rate will yield $72 million; and ("(3) Raise the tax on cigarettes 1 cent per pack, which will yield $13 million.

"The total yield of this tax program will be $139 million, which Pennsylvania needs to meet next year's obligations.

"In addition, I recommend that the General Assembly levy an additional tax of one cent per pack on cigarettes to become effective June 1,1964, so that Pennsylvania will be better able to meet the mandated increases for that period."

Audit Links Mayhew To Defalcation

Chief Aide Given Delay In Hearing To Obtain Counsel

An alleged shortage of almost $54,000 in the tax collecting department of the Hancock County sheriff's office was bared today by Prosecuting Atty. Floyd R. Tarr, and a veteran clerk who was charged with grand larceny.

Prosecutor Tarr said the shortage is contained in a 193-page report of an audit of the tax department books completed by an aide from the state tax commissioner's office in Charleston.

A charge of grand larceny was filed this morning against Edgar Wilford Mayhew, 64, of Pughtown, chief clerk in the tax collecting office of Sheriff Joseph H. Manypenny since 1933.

Mayhew was taken into custody by sheriff's deputies on a warrant charging grand larceny, obtained by the prosecutor through the office of Squire Thomas Bellanco of Weirton.

A preliminary hearing was delayed to allow time for Mayhew to confer with counsel.

The prosecutor said Mayhew is

Hearing Set For Hancock Tax Enjoiner

Court Action Due Monday In Move To Halt Assessments

Contending that Hancock County's new assessment figures set last week are "improper, unconstitutional and excessive," a group of Weirton residents represented by Atty. Frank A. Pietranton is seeking an injunction in Circuit Court to block further action of using the new rates to collect taxes in 1963.

A hearing is set Monday at 1:30 p. m. in Circuit Court in New Cumberland in which the group will ask Judge James G. McClure to grant a temporary injunction restraining the assessor from proceeding further with the new assessments, increased $30 million over last year.

In a petition filed in Circuit Court, the plaintiffs name county commissioners, Assessor Arnold F. Anderson and G. Thomas Battle, state tax commissioner, as defendants.

The petitioners ask that the defendants be enjoined from proceeding further with the new assessments, and that Commissioners William C. Graham, Robert E. Roach and James Finley be prohibited from accepting the assessment books for 1963.

They also ask that a writ of mandamus be issued against the assessor and county court compelling them to perform their duties by sitting again as a Board of Equalization and Review for the purpose of hearing protests from taxpayers.

They contend that taxpayers were not granted an opportunity to protest and have their assessments reviewed by County Court

Intruders Haul Away Safe Containing $100

John Cunningham of Wellsville, the owner, discovered the burglary when he opened for business this morning.

Cunningham said he does not know the exact dimensions of the safe, but it would require at least two men to lift it.

He told police it contained less than $100 in small change, currency and checks.

Council Fills Vacant Post For Rogers

ROGERS — Sidney Cowan of Walnut St. was appointed councilman Monday night by Rogers Council to fill the unexpired term of George Long, who resigned last month because of his work schedule.

Discussion was held on the planned reopening of the village dump under a joint agreement with the Middleton Township trustees.

The dump will be made available on Saturdays from 10 to noon and 1 to 4 p. m. for those village and township residents who have received permits. The dump will be opened when county health authorities grant permission and when the township has repaired the road to the dump.

Mayor Robert McCreary reported a second traffic signal was erected Monday at the intersection of Routes 7 and 154 in the center of the village. Crosswalks will be painted when weather permits.

Hancock Sets $3,828,734 For Schools

The Hancock County Board of Education Monday night approved a temporary budget of $3,828,734 for operating the school system in 1963.

The board continued levy rates on property at the maximum amount, and total expected revenue from taxes is $2,158,379.

Supt. Robert H. Hall pointed out that the $3,828,734 budget includes a balance of $500,000 from the sheriff's office, and that $270,000 of that amount is already spent for paying teachers across 12 months instead of nine. There is also $85,000 in outstanding orders.

Thus, the new budget amounts to $3,473,734, or about $13,974 over last year.

The levy rates will yield a total of $2,271,978, less 5 per cent for delinquencies, or $2,158,379.

The rates on each class of property were continued at 45.9 cents for each $100 in Class I, 91.8 cents on Class II and 183.6 cents each in Classes III and IV.

$1,487,804 Appropriation Approved

Council gave approval Monday night to the annual appropriation ordinance providing $1,487,804 for all municipal purposes in 1963, an increase of $115,759 over the $1,372,045 provided for 1962.

Except for the additional cost of a general wage increase granted city employes Dec. 1 and a municipally - financed life and hospital plan set up for them, there is virtually no change from last year's appropriation, Councilman George E. Willshaw, finance committee chairman, remarked to Council.

THERE ARE "no frills" in the fund allocation, although the finance committee feels it was able to provide enough for each department to operate efficiently, Willshaw commented.

"It was necessary to cut the budget requests of all departments in order to stay within the anticipated income," the committee chairman said. "We were forced to eliminate requests for materials and supplies that probable would have enabled various departments to do a better job, but we had no choice except to cut."

There is no provision for new equipment, aside from a $2,500 item for purchase of a police cruiser which already is on order. Council provided the funds earlier out of anticipated 1963 income and authorized the administration to go ahead with the purchase.

TO HELP bolster the general fund, the ordinance provides for a transfer of $130,757 out of income tax revenue.

The income tax also will provide $7,500 to finance the first installment of the city's share of the cost of preparing a "master plan" for future growth and development. The appropriation, in another allocation from income tax revenues, provides $2,200 to build a new fence and backstop at a baseball field at Thompson Park.

The funds for the "master plan" and the baseball field were allocated earlier, but they also are included in the appropriation for the full year.

The general fund appropriation for 1963 totals $564,025, an increase of $56,374 from the $508,650 provided in 1962. Willshaw said virtually all the increase is accounted for in wage increases granted appointive employes.

The ordinance provides a total of $10,526 for the employe insurance plan — $1,798 for premiums on life insurance and $8,728 for hospital and surgical policies.

In the general fund, the allocation includes $1,512 for life insurance and $7,337 for hospital insurance. There is a separate appropriation in the water department for $268 for life insurance and $1,391 for hospital insurance. The water department is administered separately by the Board of Public Utilities, accounting for the establishment of two insurance funds.

THE APPROPRIATION provides $3,166 as the second installment in repayment of a federal grant of approximately $8,000 in 1958 for repair of flood damage to the River Rd. After the city received the money, the federal government decided it had not complied with all the terms and conditions of the grant and the city was forced to make restitution. The first installment was repaid last year.

There also is $4,546 for repayment of a federal loan granted in 1947 to aid in planning a blanket street surfacing program. The first installment for repayment of this loan also was paid last year.

The Safety Fund, which includes the fire and police departments, is set at $338,594 for 1963, an increase of $25,593 over 1962's appropriation.

Pay raises for employes account for virtually all of the increase. For instance, the police department's appropriation is set at $146,881, a boost of $9,955, and the fire department allocation is $162,036, a boost of $13,699.

THE ORDINANCE provides $10,750 for three "Meter Maids," their uniforms and incidental expenses, a reduction of $2,400 from 1962's allocation. However, Willshaw explained the "Meter Maid" force will continue at four, with one of the women being paid out of a new, separate "off-street parking fund" based on revenue from metered lots. So actually there will be no reduction in the "Meter Maid" force or its operations, he said.

Asks 4½ Sales Tax

Scranton Urges Record Budget Of $1.1 Billion

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Gov. William Scranton proposed a record state budget of $1,121,453,552 today. To balance it he requested expanded state sales taxes and an increased cigarette levy.

The proposed budget was for the state's general fund to cover day-to-day operations of the commonwealth. Special fund budgets —such as that for highways—will be presented later.

The budget presented to a joint session of the House and Senate included record high requests for public education, health and welfare, as well as new high levels in other areas.

The budget included $1,052,578,800 in mandated items and $47,065,000 for new programs or increased old appropriations sought by the governor.

To pay for the $138,253,552 increase over the 1962-63 budget the governor proposed:

"(1) Raise the rate of the (4 per cent) selective sales and use tax one-half of one per cent, which will yield $52 million.

"(2) Extend the sales tax to include clothing, which at the new rate will yield $72 million; and ("(3) Raise the tax on cigarettes 1 cent per pack, which will yield $13 million.

"The total yield of this tax program will be $139 million, which Pennsylvania needs to meet next year's obligations.

Hancock Sets $3,828,734 For Schools

The Hancock County Board of Education Monday night approved a temporary budget of $3,828,734 for operating the school system in 1963.

The board continued levy rates on property at the maximum amount, and total expected revenue from taxes is $2,158,379.

Supt. Robert H. Hall pointed out that the $3,828,734 budget includes a balance of $500,000 from the sheriff's office, and that $270,000 of that amount is already spent for paying teachers across 12 months instead of nine. There is also $85,000 in outstanding orders.

Thus, the new budget amounts to $3,473,734, or about $13,974 over last year.

The levy rates will yield a total of $2,271,978, less 5 per cent for delinquencies, or $2,158,379.

The rates on each class of property were continued at 45.9 cents for each $100 in Class I, 91.8 cents on Class II and 183.6 cents each in Classes III and IV.

The levy on Class I property,

Officials To Air Work On Streets

Representatives of the Ohio Tar & Asphalt Co. of Canton will come to East Liverpool soon to confer with city officials on continuation of a low - cost street surfacing program that was launched in 1962, Safety - Service Director Robert Owen told Council Monday night.

Owen made the report after Councilman Kenneth C. Berg, chairman of the street committee, declared that Council and the administration should take steps to resume the program as soon as weather permits.

BERG SAID he already has received numerous questions from property - owners anxious to participate in the 1963 program. In last year's projects, about $22,000 in city funds was spent, with the municipality and the property - owners splitting the cost equally.

Berg said the street committee decided Saturday to request the director to seek a meeting with the paving firm's officials "so that costs and other details will be available for the public."

Then Owen announced that the Canton concern already has said it will send a representative here soon to confer with officials.

"I believe the entire Council should hold a caucus session to discuss the program with the company," Berg said. "We improved 63 streets in the program last year. Apparently it was very much of a success and I believe we should get an early start this year so that we can surface as many streets as possible."

IN OTHER business, Council asked its planning committee to study a request from the Colt Baseball League for installation of a fence and seating facilities at the field at the landfill dump in Bloomfield.

Councilman Floyd Murray read a letter requesting the work and estimating the cost at $600 to $1,000.

Earlier, Council enacted a resolution authorizing Owen to advertise for bids and enter into a contract for installation of a fence and a backstop at the baseball field at Thompson Park. A $2,200 appropriation already has been provided for the work.

There was a long discussion on policy to be followed in allowing use of city-owned riverfront property for boat docks.

THE QUESTION arose when Ralph Burson of Chester Ave. appeared personally before Council, asking to be allocated space adjacent to the city wharf at Broadway. Murray replied that Council gave jurisdiction of the riverfront property to Owen last year.

Owen said he is opposed to permitting commercial operations on city property. Councilman Robert W. Sample Jr. said the only way use of city property can be obtained legally is through a lease or purchase. But a private boat operator could put a dock in the river "and then see what happens," he commented.

Albert Cox of Rigby St. also spoke on the same question, saying he might be interested in dock space at the foot of Broadway.

Owen said he believes "further study" is needed on the city's policy. He pointed out administration of the riverfront property previously had been turned over to him.

COUNCIL THEN approved a motion to refer the question to the planning committee and the director.

Councilman Edward Massey said the previous policy was "not to lease any more riverfront property — to keep it open in case a business or industry wants to locate there."

Owen also asked if Council has reached any decision on a list of proposed purchases and other expenditures totaling $196,000 which he presented at the meeting March 18.

Some of the proposed new equipment is needed soon, particularly a grass mower, a road grader and a new "packer" body truck for the incinerator department, he said. Two new trucks were demonstrated for the incinerator department last week, the director added.

Of the five trucks the department has at present, two are in danger of imminent breakdown, Supt. John Melvin told Council. The department has a 1951 model open body truck that is "practically beyond repair" and a 1958 model with a 1949 style body "that could break down anytime," Melvin said.

ONE OF THE new packers will haul three times as much refuse as an open body style truck, Melvin said. If the two old trucks break down, the department will be unable to keep up with its regular trash and garbage collection schedules, he said.

Councilman George E. Willshaw, finance committee chairman, declared that the annual appropriation ordinance provided "the limit" in available funds, but still no money could be set aside for truck purchases. If the financial picture brightens before the end of the year, perhaps a new truck can be purchased, he said.

Murray asked installation of a stop sign at the intersection of St. George and Walters Sts. in Little England. Trucks leaving a river dock in the area travel through the intersection "pretty fast," he said.

Murray also proposed legislation to ban operations in which junk autos are torn apart on private property.

"There's one such operation on Oakland Ave. and the whole neighborhood is aroused," he said. "The same condition also exists in Little England."

THE INVESTIGATION was referred to the ordinance committee.

Berg said he has received several complaints about a ditch dug in the lower end of Riverview St. several months ago by Ohio Valley Gas Co. crews.

Owen replied he and Harold Sneddon, gas company manager, inspected the site Monday and Sneddon said he was under the impression the condition had been repaired previously.

"It will be fixed soon—it would have been fixed today if it had not rained," the director said.

Councilman S. James Welch thanked the administration for the street department's work in sweeping Lincoln Ave. He asked sweeping of E. and W. 8th and 9th Sts., Wall St. and Prospect St.

Welch asked Owen if the administration has price quotations on Scott Air-Paks, breathing devices to aid firemen in battling smoky blazes. Owen replied the devices cost about $65 each. He added that two of the Air-Paks will be included as part of the equipment on a new fire pumper scheduled for delivery in about two months.

MASSEY and Willshaw joined in commending the fire and police departments for their work at an E. 5th St. fire Sunday night. Massey noted that the police department had difficulty controlling spectators. He said he understands Owen will include coils of rope on emergency vehicles in the future as an aid in holding back crowds.

Willshaw commented that the fast action of the fire department kept the E. 5th St. blaze "from destroying the entire block." He asked the director to have street center lines repainted as soon as possible.

Massey said Denver St. residents are concerned because the surface placed on their street has been torn up by traffic, including a school bus. He asked if a load limit might be established.

Owen said such steps have been taken in the past, but abandoned, because a limit also restricts garbage collections and coal deliveries.

COUNCIL received and filed two letters from Auditor Lawrence C. Applegate.

In the first, Applegate asked Council to consider again the possibility of setting up a blanket program for purchase of bonds for city employes.

The procedure would save 50 per cent on the cost of the premiums, he said. Applegate recalled he made the proposal to Council previously.

In a second letter, the auditor asked for "a new look" at the city's financial picture for 1963.

He declared that some of the receipts from the city income tax should be banked instead of "looking around for places to spend the money."

Applegate declared that the city has been without sufficient funds to operate for many years.

"The ills of the past cannot be cured in a short span of time," he said.

Although the city's property tax receipts for 1963 are based on anticipated 97 per cent collections, the municipality may be in trouble if the income actually falls to 90 per cent of the total, he said.

THE BOARD of Health sent a letter to Council requesting that four of its employes be included in a municipally - financed health and life insurance program.

The board requested inclusion of Septimus Cook, health commissioner; Miss Selma Ladzinske, health nurse; Mrs. Luella Bevan, clerk-stenographer, and John D. Owen, sanitary inspector. Willshaw, head of the finance committee, said funds for the request are included in the appropriation ordinance.

Council received and filed the annual report of the Trustees of the James Godwin Fund for the Relief of the Worthy Poor. It covered the period Jan. 1-Dec. 31, 1962, showing receipts of $886 and disbursements of $703.

Councilman Frank Duffy asked the street department to restore drain tile on the property of Anna Martin at Andrews Ave. and Globe St. He said it was removed last year and never replaced. He also asked work on streets in Little England.

Trio To Face Grand Jury In Gun Case

LISBON — Three Mahoning County men were bound over to the April Grand Jury Monday by County Judge Herbert Arfman on charges of carrying concealed weapons and possession of burglary tools.

Amil Dinsio, 26, of Poland and Danile Marshall, 33, and Harold Dailey, 32, both of Youngstown remain confined to the County Jail in lieu of bonds.

Dinsio is held under $20,000 bond each for carrying concealed weapons and for possession of burglary tools and Marshall's and Dailey's bonds totals $5,000 — $2,500 each for possession of burglary tools and carrying concealed weapons.

Old coins Weirton police said were taken from Gene D. Costalas early Thursday in an armed robbery were valued at $1,000 over the weekend by Robert Kelm, president of the Lisbon Coin Club. Some 200 old coins were found in the car of the suspects when they returned from Weirton and were picked up by Columbiana and Mahoning deputies who had been alerted.

Weirton authorities are filing extradition papers in efforts to return the trio for the armed robbery of Costalas, operator of Gene's Amusement Co., and it is expected that bond for West Virginia will be set today or tomorrow before Common Pleas Judge Raymond S. Buzzard.

The three are also suspects in a $5,000 robbery March 16 at Allen Sales, Inc., of Wheeling, another vending machine business.

Dinsio was indicted in Mahoning County for robbery and was out on bond, and also for attempted burglary in Pittsburgh.

Driver Receives Time To Search For Lost Permit

Roy C. Hall, 1045 Peake St., charged with driving without an operator's permit, was granted a continuance today in Municipal Court to search for the license—which he said he lost last week—or obtain a duplicate.

Cited at 3:08 p. m. Saturday on Pennsylvania Ave., Hall pleaded guilty when arraigned today before Judge Samuel M. Chertoff.

But Hall told the court he apparently lost the permit after pulling it from his pocket Wednesday night in a road check held by Pennsylvania police on the East Liverpool - Midland Rd.

"Apparently I didn't get it back in my pocket and it fell out of the car," Hall told the judge.

Judge Chertoff continued Hall's case until April 12 at 9 a. m. to allow him time to find the lost license or obtain a duplicate.

3-Year Probation Set By Court

Matt Stipec Jr. of near Chester was placed on three - years probation Monday by Judge Anne X. Alpern of Allegheny County Quarter Sessions Court at Pittsburgh on charges of robbery and burglary.

Stipec, 19, was arrested in February by Pennsylvania State Police along with two companions for enterings in Allegheny County. He pleaded guilty to robbery and burglary after a larceny charge was dismissed March 6 and was released on $7,500 bond.

Probation also was ordered for William McGivern, 23, of Midway, Pa., and Albert Abbott, 21, of Bulger, Pa., cited with Stipec. They are to be released from jail April 12.

Schedule Set For Work Of City Sweeper

A new schedule has been worked out for the city's mechanical sweeper under which virtually all paved streets will be cleaned at least twice a month, Safety-Service Director Robert Owen said today.

As the street department still is busy on the spring cleanup of some streets, the sweeper's regular schedule will be inaugurated next Monday, the director said.

Following the same pattern as the incinerator department's trash collection schedule, it covers a two-week span. That means that householders eventually will become familiar with the schedule, as their streets will be cleaned on the same day on alternate weeks, Owen pointed out.

The primary purpose in following a regular schedule is to warn motorists to remove parked cars in advance so that streets can be cleaned adequately, he added.

The schedule calls for some residential area streets to be cleaned on a daylight schedule, extending from 7 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. Business area streets will be cleaned on night schedules, extending from 1 to 8 a. m.

In the daylight cleaning, both sides of the streets will be swept in one operation. But in the nighttime operation, the sweeper will clean one side of a street the first night and the opposite side the following night.

The alternate cleaning on some streets will mean that motorists will not be required to move their autos completely out of the affected neighborhood. Instead, they merely will shift them to the side of the street not affected by that night's schedule.

Streets that will be affected by the night schedules already have been posted with metal signs listing the nights on which parking will be banned for sweeping. Streets due daylight sweeping will not be posted.

However, the daily sweeping schedules will be announced regularly in advance.

2 Cars, 1 Plate Brings Penalties To Man And Wife

LISBON — A North Madison couple, who used license plates from their old car for new used cars each purchased, were penalized for improper registration by County Judge James MacDonald Monday.

Jack J. Moore, 31, was fined $50 and costs and his wife, Barbara, 24, was given a suspended $50 fine as a result of the charges filed by the Ohio Highway Patrol when and officer spotted their two cars near the Lisbon barracks with the same license numbers.

They told Judge MacDonald she had purchased a car in Pennsylvania over the weekend after her other auto broke down. She took the plates from the older auto and put them on the newer car.

Her husband then saw an auto he wanted, bought it, and put one of the older car's plates on it.

Two others forfeited bonds totaling $30 when they failed to appear for scheduled hearings for speeding. They were Michael Hlynosky, 47, of Bedford and Corbett L. Wilfong, 37, of Chardon. All were cited by the State Highway Patrol.

Guido Claims Revolt Crushed In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Two retired army generals proclaimed a revolt in Argentina today. Four hours later President Jose Maria Guido announced that his government had crushed the effort to oust him.

Navy troops that surrounded Guido's executive palace in downtown Buenos Aires began to withdraw just after the government communique announcing the crushing of the revolt.

The troops, answering a call from the rebel generals, had set up machinegun emplacements throughout the city and roadblocks.

The alternate cleaning on some streets will mean that motorists will not be required to move their autos completely out of the affected neighborhood. Instead, they merely will shift them to the side of the street not affected by that night's schedule.

Streets that will be affected by the night schedules already have been posted with metal signs listing the nights on which parking will be banned for sweeping. Streets due daylight sweeping will not be posted.

However, the daily sweeping schedules will be announced regularly in advance.

2 Cars, 1 Plate Brings Penalties To Man And Wife

LISBON — A North Madison couple, who used license plates from their old car for new used cars each purchased, were penalized for improper registration by County Judge James MacDonald Monday.

Jack J. Moore, 31, was fined $50 and costs and his wife, Barbara, 24, was given a suspended $50 fine as a result of the charges filed by the Ohio Highway Patrol when and officer spotted their two cars near the Lisbon barracks with the same license numbers.

They told Judge MacDonald she had purchased a car in Pennsylvania over the weekend after her other auto broke down. She took the plates from the older auto and put them on the newer car.

Her husband then saw an auto he wanted, bought it, and put one of the older car's plates on it.

Two others forfeited bonds totaling $30 when they failed to appear for scheduled hearings for speeding. They were Michael Hlynosky, 47, of Bedford and Corbett L. Wilfong, 37, of Chardon. All were cited by the State Highway Patrol.

Guido Claims Revolt Crushed In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Two retired army generals proclaimed a revolt in Argentina today. Four hours later President Jose Maria Guido announced that his government had crushed the effort to oust him.

Navy troops that surrounded Guido's executive palace in downtown Buenos Aires began to withdraw just after the government communique announcing the crushing of the revolt.

The troops, answering a call from the rebel generals, had set up machinegun emplacements throughout the city and roadblocks.

is set at $77,109, a boost of $2,479 from 1962. It includes a $1,600 increase in the allocation for street lighting, boosting to $38,000 the total for the contract with Ohio Power Co.

The appropriation for the water department is set at $251,005, a boost of $22,359 from last year's allocation. The wage increases and the insurance program account for virtually all of the boost, Willshaw said.

THE DEPARTMENT'S appropriation includes $5,000 for installation of new mains. There also is an $8,000 allocation for reservoir repairs and $5,100 to cover cost of a new air compressor. Contracts already have been let for the compressor purchase and for material for the reservoir repairs. The repairs will be made on the larger of two basins at the Thompson Ave. reservoir.

Other appropriations within the water department are: office, $25,292; supply, $6,300; filtration, $43,700; pumping, $47,900; distribution, $66,785; extraordinary, $24,100 (including the new mains, reservoir repair and compressor), and transfers, $36,928.

The transfers are made up of items such as the employes' insurance, a $9,100 contribution to the Public Employe Retirement System; a $2,600 payment to the Ohio Industrial Commission; $5,000 for a depreciation fund, and $17,400 for bond retirement.

The street department's allocation totals $114,648, up just $860 from the 1962 appropriation. Street department income is made up almost entirely from the city's share of state gasoline taxes and a share of auto license receipts.

The street department was allocated $87,750 for payrolls and $25,000 for materials and supplies. The appropriation also provides $500 for maintaining crosswalk lines and $1,500 for work on traffic signals and other controls. It sets up $2,600 as a contribution to the Workmen's Compensation Fund and $7,650 as the city's contribution to the Public Employes' Retirement System.

Firemen's pensions, $12,670, up $385; police pensions, $12,570, up $385; redemption of general obligation bonds, $59,458, up $8,634; special assessment bond retirement fund, $15,000, down $3,000; swimming pool fund, $5,676, up $855; poor relief fund, $72,606, up $4,721.

BICYCLE LICENSE fund, $696, up $62; City Hospital Fund (proceeds of a voted levy), $29,330, up $898; auditor's special assessment fund, $22,754, and Civil Defense Fund, $237, unchanged.

Here are the appropriations for various City Hall offices and expenses, all essentially unchanged from last year: Council $7,925; Council clerk, $1,830; mayor, $7,248; auditor, $11,832; treasurer, $1,720; solicitor, $8,628; legal advertising, $8,974; Municipal Court, $8,974; Municipal Court clerk, $11,392; jury commissioners, $200; court costs, $400; claims, investigations and damages, $1,000, and Civil Service Commission, $1,350.

The appropriations for the public officials include the salaries of their clerical staffs and other items such as stationery and postage.

Willshaw gave a brief review of the city's financial outlook for the year when the ordinance was presented.

Although the County Budget Commission at Lisbon indicated the city would receive $87,326 from general property tax in 1962, the amount actually paid the municipality was $53,000, Willshaw said.

As $14,000 was withheld at Lisbon for payment of various charges against the city, such as its share of election expenses and a charge for the work of a state examiner, that created a deficiency of the same amount in the totals the city had anticipated and appropriated, Willshaw explained.

The Budget Commission anticipates the city will receive only $79,612 in general property tax for 1963, a drop of about $8,000 from the amount set up for last year, he pointed out.

ONE REASON FOR the lower income is the fact the estimates are based on 97 per cent collection of taxes, although the figures generally are set up to correspond with a 100 per cent collection, the committee chairman said.

The reduction in the anticipated collection cut the estimated receipts for the incinerator department from $101,000 in 1962 to $92,182 for the current year, he added. The incinerator department is supported by a voted 2½-mill levy.

Although some residential property in West End was eliminated in clearing the right-of-way for the new freeway, county officials said the cut in the tax duplicate "had very little effect" on the overall tax receipts, Willshaw said.

"YOU DECIDE what you want and then you determine what your income will be," Willshaw said. "The income never is enough to take care of all the things you want, so you have to make some cuts."

Funds available for actual operations probably are a little less than in 1962, as most of the increases set up in the 1963 appropriations are accounted for by pay raises and the insurance program, Willshaw said.

Wage increases alone added approximately $45,000 to the outlay in the general fund, Willshaw estimated.

Nearly a half hour was required to read the 12-page ordinance, which then was approved unanimously and without comment.

As the meeting closed, Council President Charles N. Edwards praised the finance committee for "the marvelous job in preparing the ordinance." He commented that the members spent "many, many hours" in drafting the legislation.

"I KNOW that the committee worked from 7 p. m. to midnight last Monday and from 6 p. m. to midnight Tuesday," he said. "It also put in quite a few hours Thursday, hurrying to get the legislation ready on time because some of the figures were late."

Loan To Be Sought To Pay City Wages

Because the first settlement on 1963 property taxes has not been received from Lisbon, Council approved legislation Monday night authorizing a $21,000 loan that will enable the city to meet the payrolls due Friday.

The legislation provides the money will be repaid when the tax settlement is received. Councilman George E. Willshaw, finance committee chairman, told Council at its meeting March 18 it would be necessary to borrow to meet the first April payroll because details of a reappraisal program had slowed collection of real estate taxes.

Some of the classes will be at the school and some of the department training grounds at 21st St. and Danbury Ave. The actual fire - fighting techniques will be demonstrated in the "fire" house on Danbury Ave.

Fires are built in containers inside and various mock situations set up for the firemen to work out.

Bar, Service Station Looted At Kensington

LISBON — Area law enforcement officials are searching for burglars who looted a tavern and a service station at Kensington early today, Sheriff Russell J. VanFossan said.

The intruders entered Stephanic's Tavern and Manfull's Sohio Service Station, forcing open the front doors in each case. At the tavern, $15 was taken from a cash register and an undetermined amount of change was stolen from a coin-operated bowling machine. Six table model radios were stolen from the service station and an inventory was under way to determine if anything else was missing.

The sheriff's department was notified by neighbors, who said they saw the burglars enter the tavern. Sheriff's deputies from Columbiana and Carroll Counties, the State Highway Patrol, Minerva police and Constable Roy Painter all responded to the call, but the burglars had fled on their arrival.

Newell Driver Fined In Court At Palestine

George S. Bourne, 436 Washington St., Newell, was fined $25 and costs Monday by County Judge Herbert Arfman at East Palestine on a charge of reckless operation.

Keith Clutter of R. D. 2 was fined $15 and costs by the judge for failure to stop in the assured clear distance.

$4.5 Billion Proposed In Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy asked Congress today for $4.5 billion in new foreign aid money, slashing $420 million from the total he proposed before Gen. Lucius D. Clay's aid advisory committee reported the current program is much too big.

Last year Congress cut the President's $4.9-billion foreign aid request to $3.9 billion, and opponents want to pare even deeper this year.

In a special message to Capitol Hill, Kennedy outlined a six-point program aimed at improving the big overseas assistance program. He drew heavily on findings of the Clay committee with which he agrees.

"Our world is near the climax of an historic convulsion," Kennedy said. He declared that U.S. aid will help determine whether large segments of the world chose "consent or coercion" as a way of life.

"Despite noisy opposition from the very first days," Kennedy added, U.S. military and economic help has advanced freedom and the U.S. national interest around the world. Past Democratic and Republican presidents, a bipartisan majority in Congress and among the people and the Clay committee all agree on this, he said.

The presidential message launched the annual legislative battle over the politically unpopular aid bill.

A preliminary skirmish has already been set off by the recent report of the Clay committee, a group of 10 prominent citizens appointed by Kennedy to take a look at the aid program.

The Clay report said a "properly conceived and implemented" effort is essential to U.S. security—words which Kennedy quoted. But the group concluded the current program is a half-billion dollars too big. It passed no judgment on Kennedy's request for the next fiscal year.

Kennedy's new money request for the fiscal year starting next July 1 is now $4,525,000,000, or $420 million below the $4,945,000,000 he called for in his fiscal 1964 budget submitted in January before he got the Clay report.

Officials figured actual spending for fiscal 1964 would probably drop less than $100 million during the year as a result of the proposed savings because spending lags behind appropriations.

In the new money request, $1,405,000,000 would go for arms aid—a $75-million reduction from the January figure—and $3,120,000,000 for economic assistance, a $345-million cutback.

Most of the economic aid savings, officials said, stem from from postponements of the time when developing countries are expected to be ready to qualify for loans and from reducing from $400 million to $300 million the amount of the presidential contingency fund used for emergencies. They said $300 million seemed ample for any foreseeable emergencies.

The westbound lane will be closed in the stretch under repair and traffic will be detoured into the eastbound lane with one-way traffic in each direction, the officials decided.

The officials said they are not certain how deep an excavation will be necessary until the work is under way and the reason for the slide can be determined.

The four-lane highway section is within the city limits and it is the city's responsibility to do the work but Mayor Bert H. Goodballet sought the state's co-operation to reduce the cost to the city.

The session brought together Mayor Goodballet, Safety-Service Director Robert Owen and Street Superintendent W. M. Laughlin along with three highway representatives, including Chester Whitehouse of East Palestine, county supervisor for the highway department.

To eliminate a condition which has forced pedestrians using steps between W. 8th St. and Ridgeway Ave. to cross private property, state highway workers were scheduled to move a fence surrounding the city freeway today to allow for installation of a slag sidewalk, Owen said.

The fence was erected by the highway department to prevent pedestrian access to the freeway but was located so close to the privately - owned property that pedestrians had to cross over it, he explained.

When the fence is relocated, the street department will install a slag sidewalk from the top of the steps to Ridgeway Ave. A similar sidewalk will be placed from W. 8th St. to the steps, the director said.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Rush, 311 Haywood St., a seventh-grader at East Junior.

Jeffrey Taylor, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Taylor, 1320 Ceramic St., also a sixth-grader at Pleasant Heights.

Ava Fisher, 12, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Alex S. Fisher, 2716 St. Clair Ave., a sixth-grader at Taft.

Sharon Wolfe, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wolfe, 919 Lincoln Ave., and a sixth-grader at Westgate.

When Miss Banfield forgot the "g" in "diaphragm", the field was narrowed to Barringer and Rolley, who worked through six more words before the young fifth-grader left out the second "i" in "conscientious". Gary got it correctly and then ended the bee with "remedy".

TEN SPELLERS battled hard for the final eight places, using up 81 words before George Manning of Lincoln inserted an "i" for the "e" in "trapezoid".

When the bell rang for Wayne Rudibaugh of LaCroft on "troposphere" 15 words later, it also decided the eight county contestants.

With the representatives selected, the spellers apparently all relaxed and the next 15 words eliminated all but Miss Banfield, Rolley and Barringer.

Miss Wolfe missed "geyser" and Miss Fisher went down on "heritage". Taylor was eliminated on "gratification" and Miss Rush bowed out on "apprentice" and Miss Derr on "innocent".

Continuing with the order in which the other spellers finished from 11th through 16th and the words they missed:

Sharon Miller of Glenmoor, "domino", Elaine Morgan, also of Glenmoor, "decency", Janet Davis of Neville, "caboose", Kenneth Johnson of Garfield, "chafe", Michelle Curran of Lincoln, "skillet".

Principal Clarence G. Means, who served as pronouncer for the second year, used up 275 words on his list before Barringer was crowned as champion.

The judges, provided through the cooperation of the City Federation of Parent - Teacher Organizations, were Mrs. Dale Franklin, John Parsons and William Sutherland.

Each of the contestants was presented with a "Certificate of Merit" given the finalists by the Blue and White Nonpareil Club. The presentations were made by Arthur T. Thomas, editor of The Review, who presided.

The committee which arranged the bee was headed by Keith Dunlevy, principal of Neville and Klondyke Schools. Others on the committee were Mrs. Nessie Davis and Miss Pauline Smiley of Westgate, Mrs. Virginia Futhey of Taft and James Gordon of East Junior.

Final Reading Slated On Chester 'Head Tax'

Chester Council will meet tonight at 7:30 to consider final reading of a group of ordinances establishing a $6 individual tax for residents of the city.

The so-called "head tax," which would go into effect July 1, would levy a $3 tax for police services, $1.50 for lighting and 75 cents each for the City Park and fire department.

Petitions are being circulated through the city by some residents in a move to have the tax proposal submitted to a public vote. Such a move would require signatures of 30 per cent of Chester's qualified voters.

Council, which approved first reading of the measures last week in a 4-0 vote, ordered the tax legislation to supplement city funds for 1963 after anticipated increased property tax revenue was delayed by Hancock County's rejection of a reappraisal.

Tax Enjoiner Hearing Set

and a Board of Equalization and Review.

The brief of the plaintiffs alleges that the new assessments made by Anderson and aides from the state tax commissioner's office are "improper, have no legal basis, are excessive, unconstitutional, and amount to the taking of property without due process of law."

The brief argues that the sheriff's tax department is now preparing tax bills based on the new assessments, and that because of a state ruling, the taxpayers of the county will be helpless to protest and to seek redress unless the Circuit Court intervenes to enjoin the defendants from proceeding further.

Listed as plaintiffs, besides Atty. Pietranton, are Edward A. Zagula, Walter Batalo, Anthony Figlioli, Charles Alpert, John DelGuzzo, Helen Kozielski, Frank Lettiero and James Maretellotto.

Atty. Pietranton also objected to a property reappraisal program several weeks ago by presenting a petition attacking its legality. But the petition objecting to work of Cole, Layer & Trumble of Dayton was denied.

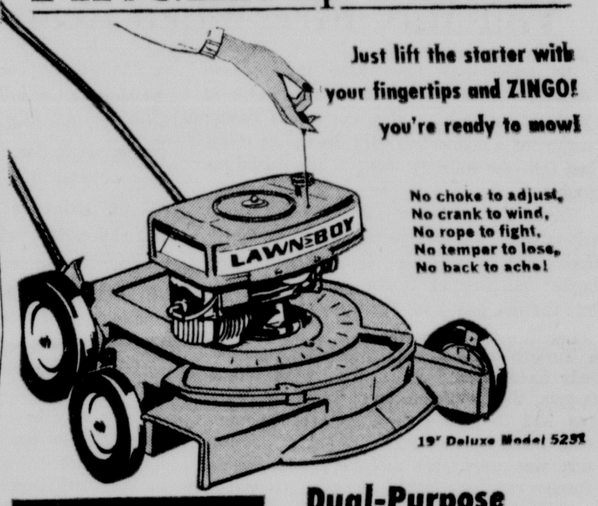

Aides from the state tax chief's office spent five days in the county in March using the property reappraisal figures to adjust assessments to meet the minimum requirements of state law.

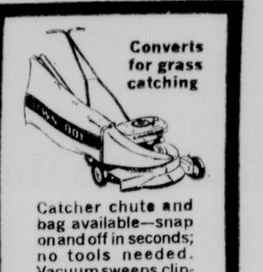

Anderson was named new assessor after the resignation of Anthony Leon, who said he quit because the state tax chief ordered him to use the property reappraisal program.

is set at $77,109, a boost of $2,479 from 1962. It includes a $1,600 increase in the allocation for street lighting, boosting to $38,000 the total for the contract with Ohio Power Co.

The appropriation for the water department is set at $251,005, a boost of $22,359 from last year's allocation. The wage increases and the insurance program account for virtually all of the boost, Willshaw said.

THE DEPARTMENT'S appropriation includes $5,000 for installation of new mains. There also is an $8,000 allocation for reservoir repairs and $5,100 to cover cost of a new air compressor. Contracts already have been let for the compressor purchase and for material for the reservoir repairs. The repairs will be made on the larger of two basins at the Thompson Ave. reservoir.

Other appropriations within the water department are: office, $25,292; supply, $6,300; filtration, $43,700; pumping, $47,900; distribution, $66,785; extraordinary, $24,100 (including the new mains, reservoir repair and compressor), and transfers, $36,928.

The transfers are made up of items such as the employes' insurance, a $9,100 contribution to the Public Employe Retirement System; a $2,600 payment to the Ohio Industrial Commission; $5,000 for a depreciation fund, and $17,400 for bond retirement.

The street department's allocation totals $114,648, up just $860 from the 1962 appropriation. Street department income is made up almost entirely from the city's share of state gasoline taxes and a share of auto license receipts.

The street department was allocated $87,750 for payrolls and $25,000 for materials and supplies. The appropriation also provides $500 for maintaining crosswalk lines and $1,500 for work on traffic signals and other controls. It sets up $2,600 as a contribution to the Workmen's Compensation Fund and $7,650 as the city's contribution to the Public Employes' Retirement System.

Firemen's pensions, $12,670, up $385; police pensions, $12,570, up $385; redemption of general obligation bonds, $59,458, up $8,634; special assessment bond retirement fund, $15,000, down $3,000; swimming pool fund, $5,676, up $855; poor relief fund, $72,606, up $4,721.

BICYCLE LICENSE fund, $696, up $62; City Hospital Fund (proceeds of a voted levy), $29,330, up $898; auditor's special assessment fund, $22,754, and Civil Defense Fund, $237, unchanged.

Here are the appropriations for various City Hall offices and expenses, all essentially unchanged from last year: Council $7,925; Council clerk, $1,830; mayor, $7,248; auditor, $11,832; treasurer, $1,720; solicitor, $8,628; legal advertising, $8,974; Municipal Court, $8,974; Municipal Court clerk, $11,392; jury commissioners, $200; court costs, $400; claims, investigations and damages, $1,000, and Civil Service Commission, $1,350.

The appropriations for the public officials include the salaries of their clerical staffs and other items such as stationery and postage.

Willshaw gave a brief review of the city's financial outlook for the year when the ordinance was presented.

Although the County Budget Commission at Lisbon indicated the city would receive $87,326 from general property tax in 1962, the amount actually paid the municipality was $53,000, Willshaw said.

As $14,000 was withheld at Lisbon for payment of various charges against the city, such as its share of election expenses and a charge for the work of a state examiner, that created a deficiency of the same amount in the totals the city had anticipated and appropriated, Willshaw explained.

The Budget Commission anticipates the city will receive only $79,612 in general property tax for 1963, a drop of about $8,000 from the amount set up for last year, he pointed out.

ONE REASON FOR the lower income is the fact the estimates are based on 97 per cent collection of taxes, although the figures generally are set up to correspond with a 100 per cent collection, the committee chairman said.

The reduction in the anticipated collection cut the estimated receipts for the incinerator department from $101,000 in 1962 to $92,182 for the current year, he added. The incinerator department is supported by a voted 2½-mill levy.

Although some residential property in West End was eliminated in clearing the right-of-way for the new freeway, county officials said the cut in the tax duplicate "had very little effect" on the overall tax receipts, Willshaw said.

"YOU DECIDE what you want and then you determine what your income will be," Willshaw said. "The income never is enough to take care of all the things you want, so you have to make some cuts."

Funds available for actual operations probably are a little less than in 1962, as most of the increases set up in the 1963 appropriations are accounted for by pay raises and the insurance program, Willshaw said.

Wage increases alone added approximately $45,000 to the outlay in the general fund, Willshaw estimated.

Nearly a half hour was required to read the 12-page ordinance, which then was approved unanimously and without comment.

As the meeting closed, Council President Charles N. Edwards praised the finance committee for "the marvelous job in preparing the ordinance." He commented that the members spent "many, many hours" in drafting the legislation.

"I KNOW that the committee worked from 7 p. m. to midnight last Monday and from 6 p. m. to midnight Tuesday," he said. "It also put in quite a few hours Thursday, hurrying to get the legislation ready on time because some of the figures were late."

Loan To Be Sought To Pay City Wages

Because the first settlement on 1963 property taxes has not been received from Lisbon, Council approved legislation Monday night authorizing a $21,000 loan that will enable the city to meet the payrolls due Friday.

The legislation provides the money will be repaid when the tax settlement is received. Councilman George E. Willshaw, finance committee chairman, told Council at its meeting March 18 it would be necessary to borrow to meet the first April payroll because details of a reappraisal program had slowed collection of real estate taxes.

should be sent to Chief Lewis in care of the Wellsville department.

The instructors will be Asst. Chief Ray Neimi of Warren, Chief W. L. Beechy of Sugar Creek, Lt. Ed Hart of Columbus and Asst. Chief Robert Lloyd of Wellsville.

Some of the classes will be at the school and some of the department training grounds at 21st St. and Danbury Ave. The actual fire - fighting techniques will be demonstrated in the "fire" house on Danbury Ave.

Fires are built in containers inside and various mock situations set up for the firemen to work out.

Bar, Service Station Looted At Kensington

LISBON — Area law enforcement officials are searching for burglars who looted a tavern and a service station at Kensington early today, Sheriff Russell J. VanFossan said.

The intruders entered Stephanic's Tavern and Manfull's Sohio Service Station, forcing open the front doors in each case. At the tavern, $15 was taken from a cash register and an undetermined amount of change was stolen from a coin-operated bowling machine. Six table model radios were stolen from the service station and an inventory was under way to determine if anything else was missing.

The sheriff's department was notified by neighbors, who said they saw the burglars enter the tavern. Sheriff's deputies from Columbiana and Carroll Counties, the State Highway Patrol, Minerva police and Constable Roy Painter all responded to the call, but the burglars had fled on their arrival.

Newell Driver Fined In Court At Palestine

George S. Bourne, 436 Washington St., Newell, was fined $25 and costs Monday by County Judge Herbert Arfman at East Palestine on a charge of reckless operation.

Bourne was cited Thursday afternoon after his car hit another vehicle and downed a utility pole at Calcutta.

Keith Clutter of R. D. 2 was fined $15 and costs by the judge for failure to stop in the assured clear distance.

$4.5 Billion Proposed In Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy asked Congress today for $4.5 billion in new foreign aid money, slashing $420 million from the total he proposed before Gen. Lucius D. Clay's aid advisory committee reported the current program is much too big.

Last year Congress cut the President's $4.9-billion foreign aid request to $3.9 billion, and opponents want to pare even deeper this year.

In a special message to Capitol Hill, Kennedy outlined a six-point program aimed at improving the big overseas assistance program. He drew heavily on findings of the Clay committee with which he agrees.

"Our world is near the climax of an historic convulsion," Kennedy said. He declared that U.S. aid will help determine whether large segments of the world chose "consent or coercion" as a way of life.

"Despite noisy opposition from the very first days," Kennedy added, U.S. military and economic help has advanced freedom and the U.S. national interest around the world. Past Democratic and Republican presidents, a bipartisan majority in Congress and among the people and the Clay committee all agree on this, he said.

The presidential message launched the annual legislative battle over the politically unpopular aid bill.

A preliminary skirmish has already been set off by the recent report of the Clay committee, a group of 10 prominent citizens appointed by Kennedy to take a look at the aid program.

The Clay report said a "properly conceived and implemented" effort is essential to U.S. security—words which Kennedy quoted. But the group concluded the current program is a half-billion dollars too big. It passed no judgment on Kennedy's request for the next fiscal year.

Kennedy's new money request for the fiscal year starting next July 1 is now $4,525,000,000, or $420 million below the $4,945,000,000 he called for in his fiscal 1964 budget submitted in January before he got the Clay report.

Officials figured actual spending for fiscal 1964 would probably drop less than $100 million during the year as a result of the proposed savings because spending lags behind appropriations.

In the new money request, $1,405,000,000 would go for arms aid—a $75-million reduction from the January figure—and $3,120,000,000 for economic assistance, a $345-million cutback.

Most of the economic aid savings, officials said, stem from from postponements of the time when developing countries are expected to be ready to qualify for loans and from reducing from $400 million to $300 million the amount of the presidential contingency fund used for emergencies. They said $300 million seemed ample for any foreseeable emergencies.

The westbound lane will be closed in the stretch under repair and traffic will be detoured into the eastbound lane with one-way traffic in each direction, the officials decided.

The officials said they are not certain how deep an excavation will be necessary until the work is under way and the reason for the slide can be determined.

The four-lane highway section is within the city limits and it is the city's responsibility to do the work but Mayor Bert H. Goodballet sought the state's co-operation to reduce the cost to the city.

The session brought together Mayor Goodballet, Safety-Service Director Robert Owen and Street Superintendent W. M. Laughlin along with three highway representatives, including Chester Whitehouse of East Palestine, county supervisor for the highway department.

To eliminate a condition which has forced pedestrians using steps between W. 8th St. and Ridgeway Ave. to cross private property, state highway workers were scheduled to move a fence surrounding the city freeway today to allow for installation of a slag sidewalk, Owen said.

The fence was erected by the highway department to prevent pedestrian access to the freeway but was located so close to the privately - owned property that pedestrians had to cross over it, he explained.

When the fence is relocated, the street department will install a slag sidewalk from the top of the steps to Ridgeway Ave. A similar sidewalk will be placed from W. 8th St. to the steps, the director said.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Rush, 311 Haywood St., a seventh-grader at East Junior.

Jeffrey Taylor, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Taylor, 1320 Ceramic St., also a sixth-grader at Pleasant Heights.

Ava Fisher, 12, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Alex S. Fisher, 2716 St. Clair Ave., a sixth-grader at Taft.

Sharon Wolfe, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wolfe, 919 Lincoln Ave., and a sixth-grader at Westgate.

When Miss Banfield forgot the "g" in "diaphragm", the field was narrowed to Barringer and Rolley, who worked through six more words before the young fifth-grader left out the second "i" in "conscientious". Gary got it correctly and then ended the bee with "remedy".

TEN SPELLERS battled hard for the final eight places, using up 81 words before George Manning of Lincoln inserted an "i" for the "e" in "trapezoid".

When the bell rang for Wayne Rudibaugh of LaCroft on "troposphere" 15 words later, it also decided the eight county contestants.

With the representatives selected, the spellers apparently all relaxed and the next 15 words eliminated all but Miss Banfield, Rolley and Barringer.

Miss Wolfe missed "geyser" and Miss Fisher went down on "heritage". Taylor was eliminated on "gratification" and Miss Rush bowed out on "apprentice" and Miss Derr on "innocent".

Continuing with the order in which the other spellers finished from 11th through 16th and the words they missed:

Sharon Miller of Glenmoor, "domino", Elaine Morgan, also of Glenmoor, "decency", Janet Davis of Neville, "caboose", Kenneth Johnson of Garfield, "chafe", Michelle Curran of Lincoln, "skillet".

Principal Clarence G. Means, who served as pronouncer for the second year, used up 275 words on his list before Barringer was crowned as champion.

The judges, provided through the cooperation of the City Federation of Parent - Teacher Organizations, were Mrs. Dale Franklin, John Parsons and William Sutherland.

Each of the contestants was presented with a "Certificate of Merit" given the finalists by the Blue and White Nonpareil Club. The presentations were made by Arthur T. Thomas, editor of The Review, who presided.

The committee which arranged the bee was headed by Keith Dunlevy, principal of Neville and Klondyke Schools. Others on the committee were Mrs. Nessie Davis and Miss Pauline Smiley of Westgate, Mrs. Virginia Futhey of Taft and James Gordon of East Junior.

Final Reading Slated On Chester 'Head Tax'

Chester Council will meet tonight at 7:30 to consider final reading of a group of ordinances establishing a $6 individual tax for residents of the city.

The so-called "head tax," which would go into effect July 1, would levy a $3 tax for police services, $1.50 for lighting and 75 cents each for the City Park and fire department.

Petitions are being circulated through the city by some residents in a move to have the tax proposal submitted to a public vote. Such a move would require signatures of 30 per cent of Chester's qualified voters.

Council, which approved first reading of the measures last week in a 4-0 vote, ordered the tax legislation to supplement city funds for 1963 after anticipated increased property tax revenue was delayed by Hancock County's rejection of a reappraisal.

Tax Enjoiner Hearing Set

and a Board of Equalization and Review.

The brief of the plaintiffs alleges that the new assessments made by Anderson and aides from the state tax commissioner's office are "improper, have no legal basis, are excessive, unconstitutional, and amount to the taking of property without due process of law."

The brief argues that the sheriff's tax department is now preparing tax bills based on the new assessments, and that because of a state ruling, the taxpayers of the county will be helpless to protest and to seek redress unless the Circuit Court intervenes to enjoin the defendants from proceeding further.

Atty. Pietranton also objected to a property reappraisal program several weeks ago by presenting a petition attacking its legality. But the petition objecting to work of Cole, Layer & Trumble of Dayton was denied.

Aides from the state tax chief's office spent five days in the county in March using the property reappraisal figures to adjust assessments to meet the minimum requirements of state law.

Anderson was named new assessor after the resignation of Anthony Leon, who said he quit because the state tax chief ordered him to use the property reappraisal program.

Pavlov And The 'Yankee Dogs'

According to the now classical experiments of Ivan Petrovish Pavlov, action and reaction are as easy to control as the slobbering of a hungry dog that sees and smells meat.

In the Russian physiologist's experiments, he demonstrated that if a bell is rung when the dog slobbers in the presence of meat, the bell itself will stimulate slobbering once the dog's reflex has been "conditioned." No meat is needed.

This momentous discovery has been used systematically by modern Russia. Pavlov lived until 1936, long enough to see what an absolutist state could do with his demonstration that the behavior of living creatures could be controlled absolutely.

UNABLE to think for themselves, they are made to do what their masters want them to do by the use of slogans and provocations.

"Brain-washing" is the Pavlovian postulation applied to politics.

And now Americans are seeing it applied to international politics in the way they are being "conditioned" about Cuba.

"Conditioned" is the word.

Americans are being subjected day by day and week by week to annoyances arising from Russia's domination of Cuba. They are being "conditioned" to the Russian presence, to hostility 90 miles offshore, to their own inability to do anything about it and to the collapse of the U.S. doctrine that the New World is closed to Old World colonialism. Their will to fight is being sapped.

THIS IS BEING done by careful degrees, to dull U.S. apprehension and make the people believe they are actually helpless. When it's all over, the United States will be in as pathetic a state of confusion as pitiful wretches "brain-washed" until they forgot everything they once believed to be true.

There have been many times during the rise of Soviet absolutism when it could be said the man most to be feared was Pavlov, not Lenin, nor Stalin, nor Khrushchev. This is one of them.

What Pavlov did is known throughout the world. Every student of psychology learns about it. But only in Russia has the Pavlov postulation been used systematically, as it is being used right now in Cuba to paralyze the will of the American people.

A Case Of Poor Reporting

There were inaccuracies in the story. The master of ceremonies wasn't Joe McMullen, but Frank Dawson Jr. of East Liverpool. One quartet that had been listed as appearing hadn't even been scheduled to take part in the program, according to the sponsors. Without question, it was a poor job of reporting.

However, in The Review's defense it seems only fair to point out that the reporter who has covered the event so capably at past "parades" was called out of town by illness and circumstances beyond our control prevented a last-minute substitution.

Also, in defense, may we point out that no one has been a more staunch reporter of the barbershop society than The Review. Over the years we have "plugged" its activities to the limit, with the firm belief that they merited such support. And we have a feeling we have played a big part in helping to publicize the "parade" annually, an event which helps "sell" East Liverpool to other parts of the country.

As admitted earlier, there were inaccuracies and we did a lousy job of reporting this year, but a study will show the scales still weigh heavily in our favor over the years so far as publicizing quartet programs are concerned.

Along with other music lovers, we will be looking forward to next year's "parade".

You May Fire When Ready, Gridley

Whatever may have been the political thought behind giving up missile bases in Turkey and Italy—a decision whose timing suggested a connection with the Cuban crisis last fall—the military thought has raised no doubts.

Within the next few days, three Polaris submarines will arrive on their assigned Mediterranean stations. They will replace Jupiter missiles at North Atlantic Treaty Organization bases in Turkey and Italy.

The 30 Jupiter missiles in Italy and 15 in Turkey were prime targets because of their fixed sites. Because they were prime targets, the governments of Italy and Turkey had to give consent before the missiles could be fired. The threat of retaliation was very real and very dreadful to foreign countries fearful of being involved in a military reaction over which they had no control.

This made every foreign missile base a hostage, in effect, of the government that shared the decision to fire the missiles.

The missiles of the Polaris submarines, as long as the submarines remain the property of the United States, can be fired by the single decision of the President of the United States. The Mediterranean patrol will not be berthed at a Mediterranean port. The submarines will come and go at will.

Their missiles require no countdown. They can be fired instantly. Their "bases" are mobile. They are virtually unlimited in the distances they can cover and the time they can remain concealed beneath the surface of the ocean.

There may have been a political connection between the decision to write off a billion-dollar investment in the Jupiter bases in Italy and Turkey; that is uncertain.

There was a military connection between the decision to write them off and the availability of a trio of Polaris submarines to operate in the Mediterranean Ocean; that is certain.

It Was Bound To Happen

That unresolved question about who called whom and said what before a football game between University of Georgia and University of Alabama promises to stay unresolved for a long time, the way things look now.

There is a deadlock among the lie detectors. It was bound to happen sometime.

All the principals involved in a tussle that is going to leave one of them in the lurch and wishing big-time football never had been invented, with its terrifying pressures and temptations, claim clean reports on lie-detector tests.

One must by lying, or there would be no conflict in their accounts of what happened.

The way things have fallen into place, with law enforcement officials talking about possible violations of gambling laws, there is more at stake here than a violation of honor. Someone might have to go to the pokey.

Yet, how can anyone be sent to the pokey if the lie detector showed he wasn't lying when he gave a straightforward account of his blameless role in a blameless incident?

Confidence in lie detectors may be set back to what it was in the administration of President James K. Polk — even farther than the threatened setback to big-time football down South.

Gentility

By Truman Twill

If you've nothing more urgent to think about, decide what you think a "gentleman" is.

Because you have no ready-made definition on the tip of your tongue, you will think of an example.

It will be clear to you there is a substantial difference between some men who come to your mind and that not all of them are what you would consider plausible examples of gentlemanliness.

If you want to take in more territory, it would occur to you in the same lien of thought that not all women are gentlewomen, either.

So what is a "gentleman"?

It is easiest to get a line on the quality you have in mind by understanding that "gentle" in English is from "gentil" in French, which means "good."

This in the course of time came to be the quality associated with a certain kind of people — the quality people, the ones who behaved well — people who shared the quality of gentility.

Some were of the nobility in olden days, but not necessarily all. Some of the raunchiest characters in history were noblemen. Nobility was a quality bestowed on them by lineage, not by behavior.

Real gentlemen were evaluated by the way they behaved. This did not keep them from being given a bad name by imposters taking advantage of family connections, marriages and fortunes.

It did not spare them the pain of being despised by people who had no use for gentility because "nice guys never win," nor mistrusted by people forced by circumstances to believe they belonged neither to the powerful nor the gentle.

These latter were the "simple" people — those of humble origin and occupation. Human society once was divided into the three groups of the nobility, the gentlemen and the simples.

With a little doctoring of terms, human society still is divided into three groups.

Nobility has been replaced by the powerful — people who know how to make things turn out the way they want them to turn out, with coercion, terror, threats, corruptions, politicking, sycophancy, dynamism, sometimes sheer energy and so on.

The simples of old — people who had nothing and despaired of getting anything—have their counterpart in those who consider themselves to be neither powerful nor gentle — the have-nots. They are a self-designated group. Their members can pass over at any given time to the other groups.

That leaves gentlemen and gentlewomen betwixt and between — a middle class. But not an economic middle class. Nor the moderates of politics. Rather, all the men and women who are "gentle" — the good, the quality people of our era.

It can be interesting to decide what you think a gentleman is — educational, too.

'Police State' Tactics Are Criticized

By DAVID LAWRENCE

David Lawrence

Americans are quick to criticize Russia as a "police state," but in certain respects the United States is today operating as a "police state." Armed forces of the federal government are not supposed to be used internally except in case of "insurrection." Under the Constitution, the preservation of law and order is a state function.

If the federal government can at any time use troops, with the excuse that order doesn't prevail locally, and if there is no way to review in the courts whether the federal government is acting arbitrarily or justly, then the people of the United States are in a dilemma analogous of that which confronts people of a totalitarian state.

These observations are occasioned by a news dispatch the other day when the hitherto secret testimony of Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara was released by a House subcommittee on appropriations. He was testifying about the continued presence of federal troops at the University of Mississippi six months after the federal court order has been obeyed by the university. He said:

"We are very anxious to withdraw the troops and, given any reason to believe that the local authorities would maintain order, we would certainly withdraw them immediately."

When asked whether the assurance must be satisfactory to him or to Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, the defense secretary replied, "satisfactory to me."

NOW MR. McNAMARA is said to be a conscientious public servant, but long after he retires from public life his conscience may bother him for having made the foregoing statements.

Even if the state of Mississippi now were to seek an injunction in the federal courts to end the improper use of federal troops, this would hardly provide a practical form of relief. For some ingenious way has to be devised to set up the question for a ruling by the courts. The American people, in the meantime, are supposed to rely on the conscience of men in public office to adhere to the Constitution.

Even assuming that the admission of James Meredith, Negro student, to the University of Mississippi was morally justified, despite the university's ruling that he had not fulfilled the requirements for admission, the question arises as to whether a proper objective in free America should ever be sought by unconstitutional means.

The original court order directed that Meredith be admitted and that neither the university nor anybody else should interfere with his "admission to continued attendance." There is no such interference today, and there hasn't been for months.

Has the federal government a right to maintain federal troops indefinitely on the scene just because it thinks a threat to his "continued attendance" could someday arise? Who is to pass judgment on the imaginary threat?

FLIMSY PRETEXTS are being used to keep a federal army on duty in Mississippi. Expediency is the rationalized doctrine of many a dictatorship. Nikita Khrushchev can order the arrest and imprisonment of anyone he pleases. Americans have prided themselves that this couldn't happen in free America.

But several proclamations and executive orders have been issued which claim the right to ignore the state and local governments, on which the constitution imposes the obligation to preserve order.

The federal government can, under the Constitution, intervene only when it is clear that an insurrection or other unlawful obstruction or "rebellion" has occurred, and the state has been proved negligent—not when some high official arbitrarily thinks this might possibly occur.

The statutes cited by the administration for the sending of troops to Mississippi were passed in 1861 and 1871, when a state of organized rebellion by armed forces had occurred. These statutes refer to opposition or obstruction of "the laws of the United States." But no laws have ever been passed by Congress requiring "integration" or specifying that a university may not be the judge of the admissibility of applicants.

A FEDERAL COURT order written in the broadest language was issued last year when Meredith was admitted, but since then there has been no court order covering the ensuing situation.

But many federal troops remain on duty at Oxford, Miss., just the same, and millions of dollars of taxpayers' money have been and are being spent without their consent in this questionable adventure in presidential politics.

The same point of criticism was made in these dispatches in 1957 in connection with the improper use of federal troops in Little Rock, Ark.

Any American critic of the Communist autocracy will, therefore, find himself hard put today to argue that in the United States no official of the federal government possesses arbitrary power, but is subject to a written constitution and explicit orders of the courts.

Every day that the federal troops remain on duty on and around the campus of the University of Mississippi — after Meredith has been admitted and has attended nearly two terms as a student — the United States stands in the position of having again condoned the ways of a "police state" by invoking the age-old doctrine that "the end justifies the means."

Chicago Teamsters Pay Officers Well

By VICTOR RIESEL

CHICAGO

If you're ambitious and are a friend of the boss in the Teamsters Brotherhood you can earn a fair living. I have in mind one John T. (Sandy) O'Brien, member of the union for some 50 years. His salary as of the first of the year ran upward of $88,000.

Victor Riesel

Of course, Sandy O'Brien is first vice president of the international union and that requires considerable travel — especially to Miami Beach. Of course, he also is secretary-treasurer of Local 710 here — a much investigated union, by the way. It is known as the Meat and Highway Drivers, Dockmen, Helpers and Miscellaneous Truck Terminal Employes.

Sen. McClellan's racket committee went into it rather deeply and found that during one era in the 50s, four officers had drawn $1,136,275, of which $471,286 had gone to O'Brien.

When the McClellan committee issued its report on March 28, 1960, it said:

"For sheer brazen plunder, the story of O'Brien and his companion officers and how they siphoned off huge amounts of the union dues was unequalled in the committee's experience."

SOME OF THIS money came from taking a 90 cent commission on each $4 in monthly dues collected from hard-working local members.

More than two years later Sandy O'Brien is still doing well. His annual gross salary from the local was $76,320 in 1962. He is still earning this sum — plus another thousand a month for being first vice president of the international. Thus, without expenses, the annual income is a basic $88,320. In '62 the expenses were $1,199.

O'Brien does about as well as his chief, Jim Hoffa, though Local 710 has 14,000 members compared with the international president's vast domain. Hoffa's official salary from the national office is $75,000 annually. In addition Hoffa is the $15,000-a-year president of his home local over in Detroit. There are some expenses, all of which puts him over the $90,000-a-year mark.

Of course, these finances do not quite reflect the talents shown by a fellow officer, Anthony (Tony Pro) Provenzano, 12th vice president of the international union. His nominal total wage is $113,800 a year. But he really is not drawing that.

MR. PRO also is president of Teamster Local 560 in New Jersey. Last December its members —about 350 of them out of a total of some 13,000 — voted him a $25,000 -a - year raise. Two months later, they voted him another $50,000 a year, making it $75,000 in all — above his regular salary.

All this has been duly recorded. But Mr. Pro told a membership meeting in Hoboken on March 13 that he just was not taking the raises.

However, they are still on the books. They have not been taken off the record as the "will of the membership," small as the voting contingent was.

This means that whether Mr. Pro takes the money or not, it continues to accrue. Thus by next December he will have $25,000 more due him. And by next February, an additional $50,000 will be due him. And every year thereafter the local will in effect owe him another $75,000. This could get to be quite a tidy retirement fund.

That is, unless Mr. Pro convinces his membership to rescind the two raises. Otherwise, legally he would be entitled to retroactive pay — either in a lump sum or stretched out over the years to ease the tax burden.

THE OPPOSITION in Local 560 plans to make quite an issue over this. Especially since Mr. Pro does rather handsomely without it. As president of the local he receives $20,800. As 12th vice president of the brotherhood he gets another $12,000 annually. And he has been taking $6,000 a year as head of New Jersey Joint Teamsters Council 73.

All this still gives him an income of some $746 a week. That's not a bad proletarian wage. There are expenses, too. Of course, one must realize this is before taxes.

Foreign Aid Program

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON

The President is like a union and Congress like a management negotiating a new contract every year when it's time to put through another foreign aid program. It's that time now.

The President invariably asks more than he must realistically expect to get. Congress invariably and indignantly rejects the opening request as out of the question.

Then the two sides get down to the real bargaining for something they both can live with. The public, like football spectators watching the end runs, hears the speeches but doesn't see the infighting in the line.

This is where both sides put on the pressure and do the arm-twisting. If a president winds up with about $1 billion less than he asked he probably feels he came out all right.

It's been that way in the past. It's probably that way now with President Kennedy who arranged to send his special message on foreign aid to Congress today.

He already told Congress in his budget earlier this year he wanted $4.9 billion for foreign aid. That's what he asked last year and Congress gave him $3.9 billion. He'd probably settle for that this year gladly.

He probably won't get more. The message itself is usually the frosting on the cake. It has some noble and urgent passages about the needs of mankind and the American obligation to help the backward and the impoverished.

But it also notes the aid, particularly the military part of it, is a sensible investment in national security. All this is routine, like a union starting negotiations by laying down its contract demands in general terms.

The President has one advantage starting out, like a union which knows management won't argue about its right to a contract but only the terms of it.

Congress won't argue about the need to continue foreign aid. It's generally accepted the United States will have to provide foreign aid for years. The only argument is over how much it will cost and the details.

This is where the frosting melts and both sides dig into the cake to explore what's in it, who gets what and how much, what country needs less, what country needs more, and what one can finally do without any.

In this operation the White House and the State Department, which have to handle foreign policy are all for delicacy in opening the cake. Compared with their approach, Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., is a man with a meat ax.

Last year this dapper congressman talked of cutting about $2 billion from Kennedy's request of almost $5 billion for foreign aid.

In the end, just as in any typical union-management negotiation there was a compromise. The cut was about $1 billion.

Passman, chairman of a House Appropriations subcommittee which handles international spending, has made a career of whacking foreign aid funds. The favorite word in his vocabulary is economy.

This year again Passman stands in Kennedy's path. But this year he got some particularly distinguished outside help: from a 10-man committee appointed by Kennedy, and headed by Gen. Lucius Clay, to study foreign aid.

It recommended economy. But it was such a hedged and confused report that it never clearly said whether it suggested a $1.5-billion cut, a $500-million cut, or no dollar figure at all.

It got more publicity than, it seemed, its recommendations were worth. It produced not only a jumbled report but one which contained practically nothing really new.

It said foreign aid must continue indefinitely. Everybody knew that. It said some of the money being spent on aid was wasted. That seemed to be generally recognized. It called for tighter controls and more economy. That appeared to be the general attitude, too.

When the man who runs foreign aid, administrator David Bell of the Agency for International Development, agreed with the Clay committee, there wasn't any argument on the need for economy or that the amount would be cut.

The only question left was getting down to details on control and economy. That's where all in the in-fighting occurs every year anyway. Congress will be batting it around for months to come.

Pavlov And The 'Yankee Dogs'

According to the now classical experiments of Ivan Petrovish Pavlov, action and reaction are as easy to control as the slobbering of a hungry dog that sees and smells meat.

In the Russian physiologist's experiments, he demonstrated that if a bell is rung when the dog slobbers in the presence of meat, the bell itself will stimulate slobbering once the dog's reflex has been "conditioned." No meat is needed.

This momentous discovery has been used systematically by modern Russia. Pavlov lived until 1936, long enough to see what an absolutist state could do with his demonstration that the behavior of living creatures could be controlled absolutely.

Every Communist-led uprising employs Pavlov's discovery. People are tricked by their automatic reactions.

UNABLE to think for themselves, they are made to do what their masters want them to do by the use of slogans and provocations.

"Brain-washing" is the Pavlovian postulation applied to politics.

And now Americans are seeing it applied to international politics in the way they are being "conditioned" about Cuba.

"Conditioned" is the word.

Americans are being subjected day by day and week by week to annoyances arising from Russia's domination of Cuba. They are being "conditioned" to the Russian presence, to hostility 90 miles offshore, to their own inability to do anything about it and to the collapse of the U.S. doctrine that the New World is closed to Old World colonialism. Their will to fight is being sapped.

THIS IS BEING done by careful degrees, to dull U.S. apprehension and make the people believe they are actually helpless. When it's all over, the United States will be in as pathetic a state of confusion as pitiful wretches "brain-washed" until they forgot everything they once believed to be true.

There have been many times during the rise of Soviet absolutism when it could be said the man most to be feared was Pavlov, not Lenin, nor Stalin, nor Khrushchev. This is one of them.

What Pavlov did is known throughout the world. Every student of psychology learns about it. But only in Russia has the Pavlov postulation been used systematically, as it is being used right now in Cuba to paralyze the will of the American people.

A Case Of Poor Reporting

Any American critic of the Communist autocracy will, therefore, find himself hard put today to argue that in the United States no official of the federal government possesses arbitrary power, but is subject to a written constitution and explicit orders of the courts.

Every day that the federal troops remain on duty on and around the campus of the University of Mississippi — after Meredith has been admitted and has attended nearly two terms as a student — the United States stands in the position of having again condoned the ways of a "police state" by invoking the age-old doctrine that "the end justifies the means."

Chicago Teamsters Pay Officers Well

By VICTOR RIESEL

CHICAGO

If you're ambitious and are a friend of the boss in the Teamsters Brotherhood you can earn a fair living. I have in mind one John T. (Sandy) O'Brien, member of the union for some 50 years. His salary as of the first of the year ran upward of $88,000.

Victor Riesel

Of course, Sandy O'Brien is first vice president of the international union and that requires considerable travel — especially to Miami Beach. Of course, he also is secretary-treasurer of Local 710 here — a much investigated union, by the way. It is known as the Meat and Highway Drivers, Dockmen, Helpers and Miscellaneous Truck Terminal Employes.

Sen. McClellan's racket committee went into it rather deeply and found that during one era in the 50s, four officers had drawn $1,136,275, of which $471,286 had gone to O'Brien.

When the McClellan committee issued its report on March 28, 1960, it said:

"For sheer brazen plunder, the story of O'Brien and his companion officers and how they siphoned off huge amounts of the union dues was unequalled in the committee's experience."

SOME OF THIS money came from taking a 90 cent commission on each $4 in monthly dues collected from hard-working local members.

More than two years later Sandy O'Brien is still doing well. His annual gross salary from the local was $76,320 in 1962. He is still earning this sum — plus another thousand a month for being first vice president of the international. Thus, without expenses, the annual income is a basic $88,320. In '62 the expenses were $1,199.

O'Brien does about as well as his chief, Jim Hoffa, though Local 710 has 14,000 members compared with the international president's vast domain. Hoffa's official salary from the national office is $75,000 annually. In addition Hoffa is the $15,000-a-year president of his home local over in Detroit. There are some expenses, all of which puts him over the $90,000-a-year mark.

Of course, these finances do not quite reflect the talents shown by a fellow officer, Anthony (Tony Pro) Provenzano, 12th vice president of the international union. His nominal total wage is $113,800 a year. But he really is not drawing that.

MR. PRO also is president of Teamster Local 560 in New Jersey. Last December its members —about 350 of them out of a total of some 13,000 — voted him a $25,000 -a - year raise. Two months later, they voted him another $50,000 a year, making it $75,000 in all — above his regular salary.

All this has been duly recorded. But Mr. Pro told a membership meeting in Hoboken on March 13 that he just was not taking the raises.

However, they are still on the books. They have not been taken off the record as the "will of the membership," small as the voting contingent was.

This means that whether Mr. Pro takes the money or not, it continues to accrue. Thus by next December he will have $25,000 more due him. And by next February, an additional $50,000 will be due him. And every year thereafter the local will in effect owe him another $75,000. This could get to be quite a tidy retirement fund.

That is, unless Mr. Pro convinces his membership to rescind the two raises. Otherwise, legally he would be entitled to retroactive pay — either in a lump sum or stretched out over the years to ease the tax burden.

THE OPPOSITION in Local 560 plans to make quite an issue over this. Especially since Mr. Pro does rather handsomely without it. As president of the local he receives $20,800. As 12th vice president of the brotherhood he gets another $12,000 annually. And he has been taking $6,000 a year as head of New Jersey Joint Teamsters Council 73.

All this still gives him an income of some $746 a week. That's not a bad proletarian wage. There are expenses, too. Of course, one must realize this is before taxes.

Foreign Aid Program

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON

The President is like a union and Congress like a management negotiating a new contract every year when it's time to put through another foreign aid program. It's that time now.

The President invariably asks more than he must realistically expect to get. Congress invariably and indignantly rejects the opening request as out of the question.

Then the two sides get down to the real bargaining for something they both can live with. The public, like football spectators watching the end runs, hears the speeches but doesn't see the infighting in the line.

This is where both sides put on the pressure and do the arm-twisting. If a president winds up with about $1 billion less than he asked he probably feels he came out all right.

It's been that way in the past. It's probably that way now with President Kennedy who arranged to send his special message on foreign aid to Congress today.

He already told Congress in his budget earlier this year he wanted $4.9 billion for foreign aid. That's what he asked last year and Congress gave him $3.9 billion. He'd probably settle for that this year gladly.

He probably won't get more. The message itself is usually the frosting on the cake. It has some noble and urgent passages about the needs of mankind and the American obligation to help the backward and the impoverished.

But it also notes the aid, particularly the military part of it, is a sensible investment in national security. All this is routine, like a union starting negotiations by laying down its contract demands in general terms.

The President has one advantage starting out, like a union which knows management won't argue about its right to a contract but only the terms of it.

Congress won't argue about the need to continue foreign aid. It's generally accepted the United States will have to provide foreign aid for years. The only argument is over how much it will cost and the details.

This is where the frosting melts and both sides dig into the cake to explore what's in it, who gets what and how much, what country needs less, what country needs more, and what one can finally do without any.

In this operation the White House and the State Department, which have to handle foreign policy are all for delicacy in opening the cake. Compared with their approach, Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., is a man with a meat ax.

Last year this dapper congressman talked of cutting about $2 billion from Kennedy's request of almost $5 billion for foreign aid.

In the end, just as in any typical union-management negotiation there was a compromise. The cut was about $1 billion.

Passman, chairman of a House Appropriations subcommittee which handles international spending, has made a career of whacking foreign aid funds. The favorite word in his vocabulary is economy.

This year again Passman stands in Kennedy's path. But this year he got some particularly distinguished outside help: from a 10-man committee appointed by Kennedy, and headed by Gen. Lucius Clay, to study foreign aid.

It recommended economy. But it was such a hedged and confused report that it never clearly said whether it suggested a $1.5-billion cut, a $500-million cut, or no dollar figure at all.

It got more publicity than, it seemed, its recommendations were worth. It produced not only a jumbled report but one which contained practically nothing really new.

It said foreign aid must continue indefinitely. Everybody knew that. It said some of the money being spent on aid was wasted. That seemed to be generally recognized. It called for tighter controls and more economy. That appeared to be the general attitude, too.

When the man who runs foreign aid, administrator David Bell of the Agency for International Development, agreed with the Clay committee, there wasn't any argument on the need for economy or that the amount would be cut.

The only question left was getting down to details on control and economy. That's where all in the in-fighting occurs every year anyway. Congress will be batting it around for months to come.

Bill Will Ask Streamlining Of Public Aid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The legislature will be handed today a broad bill to reform and streamline public assistance operations in all Ohio counties and cities. The idea is to make better use of welfare dollars.

The bill will come from the Ohio Citizens Council for Health and Welfare.

Wilson H. Posey of Worthington, executive director of the organization, termed the 76-page proposal an "omnibus public welfare bill" covering the multitude of welfare programs. He said it represents a 15-month study.

Sponsors will be Reps. Judson Hoy, R-Hamilton; Jacob Shawan, R-Franklin; Michael Sweeney, D-Cuyahoga, and Mrs. Bernice MacKenzie, D-Stark.

House members started their 13th work week Monday night with passage of a series of routine bills to make uniform the penalty for failure to buy dog tags; permit increases in the salaries of school superintendents during terms of their contracts, and change the title of "executive head" in local school districts to "local superintendent."

The big welfare-reform bill:

—Is designed to get persons off welfare rolls through rehabilitation, training and retraining and to prevent chronic dependency.

—Would require all able-bodied recipients of relief to work.

—Would qualify Ohio for participation in the federal program of aid for dependent children of the unemployed.

—Would make awards to recipients of aid for the aged a county, instead of a state, problem. But the state would continue to foot the bill.

—Would merge all city-county relief organizations into county groups.

—Would eliminate so - called state matching of spending by local relief departments in favor of the state's assumption of all the non-federal share of a number of other programs for which counties now pay a large share. Counties, if they had the money, could set relief levels higher than those approved by the state.

The Senate unanimously passed and sent to the House a bill to require calling at least 30 candidates before a 15-member county grand jury is selected. The author is Sen. Oakley Collins, R - Lawrence.

Also in the Senate, Sen. Ross Pepple, R-Allen, chairman of the Education Committee, had two major education proposals.

—His first asks the Ohio Supreme Court to reduce from four to two the number of college academic years required of a person seeking admission to a law school.

—His second would require two years of college training before a person could be admitted to schools for embalmers and morticians.

Perhaps the most interesting bill introduced Monday was one by Rep. Edward C. Schmacher, R-Hamilton. It would provide a true "share-the-wealth" state program of school financing.

Schumacher's plan envisions a huge pool of school money—from real estate taxes collected statewide — distributed equally across the state. The State Board of Education would administer the distribution of all school money—local, state or federal.

More than 30 years ago, the state—realizing that real estate no longer could bear the entire burden of public education—embarked on the new idea that the state should share with local school boards the cost of operating the public schools.

Now at the outset, but a few years later, the school subsidy got the name of "the school foundation program." The idea was that the state should lay a foundation under the guaranteed education of each child — with local school boards making up the rest of the cost. The original plan was to guarantee each child, regardless of where he lived, a minimum-adequate education through the public schools.

So many buildings have risen on the grounds of the American Museum of Natural History in New York that the original cornerstone cannot be found. President Ulysses S. Grant set the cornerstone in 1874.

3-Way Crash Injures Pair

A 9-year-old child and a 45 - year-old motorist escaped with slight injuries in a three - way crash late Monday afternoon on a ramp leading onto the new freeway from W. 8th St., police reported.

Karen Angus, daughter of Mrs. Doris Angus, 31, of 8th Ave., a large bruise on the right side of the skull, and Joseph Reed of Shadyside Ave., a whiplash injury of the neck.

Police said the "chain reaction" crash at 4:55 p. m. involved a 1955 four-door sedan driven by the injured child's mother; a 1963 four-door operated by Reed and a 1957 four-door sedan driven by William Prosser, 30, of Niles.

The Angus and Reed cars were halted when Prosser's car hit Reed's from the rear and drove it forward into the Angus auto, officers said. The Niles motorist blamed brake failure.

Mrs. Angus told police she halted on the ramp to yield the right-of-way to autos approaching on the freeway. Reed reported he halted behind the Angus auto when his car was hit from the rear and driven forward into the LaCroft woman's car.

There was damage to the rear of the Reed and Angus cars and the front of the Prosser vehicle, police said.

Prosser, cited for failure to stop in the assured clear distance, posted a $32.50 bond for a Municipal Court hearing Friday at 9 a. m.

City firemen were called when the battery in the Prosser car shorted and caught fire, scorching the hood and wiring.

BORON® CLEANS CARBURETORS

HERE'S WHY CARBURETOR DEPOSITS FORM
The air that comes into the carburetor contains dirt particles. These particles are too tiny to be trapped by the air cleaner. They stick to carburetor walls around the throttle plate and form hard deposits. When the engine is idling and the throttle plate nearly closed, the deposits block the air flow. This causes stalling, rough idling, gasoline waste.

HERE'S HOW BORON REMOVES CARBURETOR DEPOSITS To remove carburetor deposits, a special, patented Carburetor Cleaner has been added to Boron Gasoline. While you drive, Boron passes over the dirty throttle plate section. The special Carburetor Cleaner starts to dissolve the deposits. Because the deposits are hard, this cleaning action may take time. The end result is a Boron Clean Carburetor.

BORON KEEPS NEW DEPOSITS FROM FORMING
Once your carburetor is clean, the special Carburetor Cleaner in Boron is so effective that, with regular use, it keeps new deposits from forming. And if your carburetor is clean to start with, Boron will keep it clean. No one wants stalling, rough idling, and gasoline waste so always use Boron to keep your carburetor clean.

THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY (OHIO)

Boron cleans your carburetor while you drive...and keeps it clean!

A 9-year-old child and a 45 - year-old motorist escaped with slight injuries in a three - way crash late Monday afternoon on a ramp leading onto the new freeway from W. 8th St., police reported.

Karen Angus, daughter of Mrs. Doris Angus, 31, of 8th Ave., a large bruise on the right side of the skull, and Joseph Reed of Shadyside Ave., a whiplash injury of the neck.

Police said the "chain reaction" crash at 4:55 p. m. involved a 1955 four-door sedan driven by the injured child's mother; a 1963 four-door operated by Reed and a 1957 four-door sedan driven by William Prosser, 30, of Niles.

The Angus and Reed cars were halted when Prosser's car hit Reed's from the rear and drove it forward into the Angus auto, officers said. The Niles motorist blamed brake failure.

Mrs. Angus told police she halted on the ramp to yield the right-of-way to autos approaching on the freeway. Reed reported he halted behind the Angus auto when his car was hit from the rear and driven forward into the LaCroft woman's car.

There was damage to the rear of the Reed and Angus cars and the front of the Prosser vehicle, police said.

Prosser, cited for failure to stop in the assured clear distance, posted a $32.50 bond for a Municipal Court hearing Friday at 9 a. m.

City firemen were called when the battery in the Prosser car shorted and caught fire, scorching the hood and wiring.

BORON® CLEANS CARBURETORS

Boron has a special Carburetor Cleaner that removes carburetor deposits, keeps new deposits from forming.

HERE'S WHY CARBURETOR DEPOSITS FORM The air that comes into the carburetor contains dirt particles. These particles are too tiny to be trapped by the air cleaner. They stick to carburetor walls around the throttle plate and form hard deposits. When the engine is idling and the throttle plate nearly closed, the deposits block the air flow. This causes stalling, rough idling, gasoline waste.

HERE'S HOW BORON REMOVES CARBURETOR DEPOSITS To remove carburetor deposits, a special, patented Carburetor Cleaner has been added to Boron Gasoline. While you drive, Boron passes over the dirty throttle plate section. The special Carburetor Cleaner starts to dissolve the deposits. Because the deposits are hard, this cleaning action may take time. The end result is a Boron Clean Carburetor.

BORON KEEPS NEW DEPOSITS FROM FORMING Once your carburetor is clean, the special Carburetor Cleaner in Boron is so effective that, with regular use, it keeps new deposits from forming. And if your carburetor is clean to start with, Boron will keep it clean. No one wants stalling, rough idling, and gasoline waste so always use Boron to keep your carburetor clean.

THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY (OHIO)

ABC May Toss Out Baby With Bath Water

On Wednesday night, Feb. 20—to quote the last available national audience rating of the A. C. Nielsen Co. — Approximately 7.9 million American homes were tuned in to ABC and a "Naked City" yarn about a Puerto Rican family having economic problems in New York City. Title: "Bringing Far Places Together." Over on NBC that night, "Eleventh Hour's" Dr. Bassett was dealing with a wild patient who also happened to be an old flame of his. Title: "Beauty Playing a Mandolin Under a Willow Tree." Audience: around 10.6 million.

MEANWHILE, on CBS, "The U.S. Steel Hour" had a drama about a lonely woman, her invalid husband, and a burly truck driver who enters their life. Title: "Night Run to the West." Audience: again about 10.6 million.

"Naked City," trailing by 2.7 million, is obviously the weak sister in the end-of-the-evening slot these Wednesday nights. And the chieftains up at ABC — at least for the moment — have written it off next season's schedule.

But wait.

"Naked City" is preceded on its network by "Going My Way" and "Our Man Higgins," a couple of lame ducks which never made it on the ratings sheet; "City," therefore, gets under way every week with a sizeable handicap. (You can't expect people to walk across the room and snap on another channel, can you? That's passe.)

-:-

"THE STEEL HOUR," meanwhile, enjoys the considerable support of its lead-ins, "Beverly Hillbillies" and "The Dick Van Dyke Show"; and Dr. Basset comes hard on the heels of Dr. Como.

Asking an aging melodrama to win against such odds is like asking a track star to break the 4-minute mile after you've taken the elastic out of his pants.

Good programs have been tossed off the air before without vastly affecting our lives, though a number of people got sore, it's true, when they heard "It's a Man's World" was going off earlier this season. (The deluge of protests, you remember, did not stay the hand of NBC.)

The tragedy of "Naked City's" impending death, though, is rather unique, I feel, because "Naked City" is the most consistently excellent dramatic series on television.

NO OTHER PROGRAM can touch it, week in, week out, for literate writing, sharp characterization and acting, and atmosphere that's the real thing.

I can't remember seeing a "Naked City" that was an out-and-out dud; but I cherish many a "Naked City" yarn or character I saw weeks, or months ago.

Did you see the one about the disfigured young fellow who walked the roofs and alleys of New York after dark? Or the one about some feuding gypsies—Akim Tamiroff and Nehemiah Persoff—and a drunken wedding reception that derailed a burglary? Or—but this could take the rest of the day, and we have things to do.

PAUL BURKE, Harry Ballaver, Horace McMahon — they'll all stay on if the show stays on," associate producer Stan Neufeld told me. "We all feel we're still putting out the same caliber show we did three years ago.

"I think we'd do better in an earlier slot. We get lots of complaints from teen-agers and working people who simply can't stay up that late."

ABC has its problems. It has had a bad year. It is jettisoning 90 per cent of its current schedule next season. It has a heavy lineup of entertainers confronting it from the lofty gundecks of CBS.

But it has just announced that it will bring "Hawaiian Eye" back for another go-round, and the "Donna Reed Show" will still be on board.

Meanwhile, out goes the toughest commentary program on TV, Howard K. Smith's Sunday night news analyses. And out goes television's best meller, "The Naked City."

Unless the viewers start hollering — and soon — ABC will be throwing out the babies with the bath water.

New Grievance Procedures Adopted By City Post Office

The East Liverpool Post Office has started to implement the postal department's new program for negotiation and consultation on grievances, working conditions and personnel matters, Postmaster Samuel W. Brown said.

The program, developed following President Kennedy's executive order on Jan. 17, 1962, officially recognizes federal employe organizations for the first time. Recognition is based on the results of the largest nationwide labor management election ever held, in which 451,000 postal employes voted last summer.

The results of the election at the local office show clerks, members of the United Federation of Postal Clerks, gave exclusive recognition to their union and will be represented by Local 50. Richard McClure is the current president.

The carriers gave exclusive recognition to the National Association of Letter Carriers and will be represented locally by Branch 577, headed by Ben Becze.

Six rural carriers, including three regulars and three substitutes, members of the National Rural Letter Carriers Association, also voted for exclusive representation by the NALC through Branch 577.

One custodian voted to be represented by the National Association of Post Office and General Services Maintenance Employes through its national headquarters, while a second, a member of the same organization, voted to be represented by Branch 577. A third custodian didn't vote. Leroy Fotheringham heads the custodians.

"Exclusive" recognition went to employe organizations having a clear majority of the vote in a particular craft unit, Brown explained. He will negotiate with those two organizations, holding regular meetings and work out written agreements on matters affecting all employes in a craft unit regardless of the employe's membership status.

Organizations receiving at least 10 per cent of the vote received formal recognition, the status given the two groups for which the custodians voted, and they will be consulted on matters affecting members only.

National agreements give local employe organizations the right to deal with a postmaster on local working conditions, personnel practices and interpreting local agreements. However, the national agreements reiterate the ban against strikes and discrimination and outline matters not subject to negotiation.

Printers To Vote Thursday On Cleveland Paper Contract

CLEVELAND (AP)— Members of the Printers Union are to meet Thursday night to vote on a contract agreement with Cleveland's two daily newspapers, which have been idled by a strike for 124 days. The president of the local union, Clifford C. Hilpert, predicts the new pact will be approved.

However, two other unions are still on strike, the Machinists and the Teamsters.

Publishers of the morning Plain Dealer and the afternoon Press and News reportedly are aiming at a target date of Monday for resuming publication.

No progress was reported in five hours of negotiating with the Machinists Monday, and another session was set for 2:30 p.m. today.

A management spokesman said no further problems were anticipated with the Teamsters after a meeting with a union representative Monday.

Anthony DePalma, business manager for Teamsters Local 473, confirmed that details had been worked out on vacations and disposition of funds from delivery of Plain Dealer Sunday supplements. The funds are to go to the welfare and pension programs.

"The only thing remaining is language clarification," said DePalma, adding that "if we don't get the language settled, we'll keep the picket lines up." He predicted the contract would be ratified at a membership meeting Wednesday night.

He denied reports that the Teamsters, who ratified terms of a new contract conditionally in a membership meeting several weeks ago, would demand additional money to match the settlement given the Printers Union.

PAUL BURKE, Harry Ballaver, Horace McMahon — they'll all stay on if the show stays on," associate producer Stan Neufeld told me. "We all feel we're still putting out the same caliber show we did three years ago.

"I think we'd do better in an earlier slot. We get lots of complaints from teen-agers and working people who simply can't stay up that late."

ABC has its problems. It has had a bad year. It is jettisoning 90 per cent of its current schedule next season. It has a heavy lineup of entertainers confronting it from the lofty gundecks of CBS.

But it has just announced that it will bring "Hawaiian Eye" back for another go-round, and the "Donna Reed Show" will still be on board.

Meanwhile, out goes the toughest commentary program on TV, Howard K. Smith's Sunday night news analyses. And out goes television's best meller, "The Naked City."

Unless the viewers start hollering — and soon — ABC will be throwing out the babies with the bath water.

1-Car Mishap Fatal

TROY, Ohio (AP)—A 17-year-old Dayton youth, Jerry Duncan Bart, was killed Monday when his sports car, which had been involved in an earlier collision in Dayton, crashed into a bridge about two miles north of Frederick.

New Grievance Procedures Adopted By City Post Office

The East Liverpool Post Office has started to implement the postal department's new program for negotiation and consultation on grievances, working conditions and personnel matters, Postmaster Samuel W. Brown said.

The program, developed following President Kennedy's executive order on Jan. 17, 1962, officially recognizes federal employe organizations for the first time. Recognition is based on the results of the largest nationwide labor management election ever held, in which 451,000 postal employes voted last summer.

The results of the election at the local office show clerks, members of the United Federation of Postal Clerks, gave exclusive recognition to their union and will be represented by Local 50. Richard McClure is the current president.

The carriers gave exclusive recognition to the National Association of Letter Carriers and will be represented locally by Branch 577, headed by Ben Becze.

Six rural carriers, including three regulars and three substitutes, members of the National Rural Letter Carriers Association, also voted for exclusive representation by the NALC through Branch 577.

One custodian voted to be represented by the National Association of Post Office and General Services Maintenance Employes through its national headquarters, while a second, a member of the same organization, voted to be represented by Branch 577. A third custodian didn't vote. Leroy Fotheringham heads the custodians.

"Exclusive" recognition went to employe organizations having a clear majority of the vote in a particular craft unit, Brown explained. He will negotiate with those two organizations, holding regular meetings and work out written agreements on matters affecting all employes in a craft unit regardless of the employe's membership status.

Organizations receiving at least 10 per cent of the vote received formal recognition, the status given the two groups for which the custodians voted, and they will be consulted on matters affecting members only.

National agreements give local employe organizations the right to deal with a postmaster on local working conditions, personnel practices and interpreting local agreements. However, the national agreements reiterate the ban against strikes and discrimination and outline matters not subject to negotiation.

Printers To Vote Thursday On Cleveland Paper Contract

CLEVELAND (AP)— Members of the Printers Union are to meet Thursday night to vote on a contract agreement with Cleveland's two daily newspapers, which have been idled by a strike for 124 days. The president of the local union, Clifford C. Hilpert, predicts the new pact will be approved.

However, two other unions are still on strike, the Machinists and the Teamsters.

Publishers of the morning Plain Dealer and the afternoon Press and News reportedly are aiming at a target date of Monday for resuming publication.

No progress was reported in five hours of negotiating with the Machinists Monday, and another session was set for 2:30 p.m. today.

A management spokesman said no further problems were anticipated with the Teamsters after a meeting with a union representative Monday.

Anthony DePalma, business manager for Teamsters Local 473, confirmed that details had been worked out on vacations and disposition of funds from delivery of Plain Dealer Sunday supplements. The funds are to go to the welfare and pension programs.

"The only thing remaining is language clarification," said DePalma, adding that "if we don't get the language settled, we'll keep the picket lines up." He predicted the contract would be ratified at a membership meeting Wednesday night.

He denied reports that the Teamsters, who ratified terms of a new contract conditionally in a membership meeting several weeks ago, would demand additional money to match the settlement given the Printers Union.

Two employes in Manypenny's tax office noticed the shortage last fall when they attempted to run a trial balance on the books in time for August and September tax statements, the prosecutor said.

At the time, Mayhew was hospitalized with a heart ailment, the prosecutor added.

The unidentified employes reported the shortage immediately to Sheriff Manypenny and Prosecutor Tarr, who then requested an audit of the sheriff's books by the state tax commissioner's office.

J. Rector Britton, field auditor from the office of West Virginia State Tax Commissioner G. Thomas Battle, began the audit in November. His presence in the Courthouse in New Cumberland touched off rumors of a shortage in the tax office.

Rector sent copies of his completed audit Monday to Hancock County commissioners, the sheriff and the prosecutor.

Tarr said the audit indicated the shortage dates as far back as Jan. 1, 1941, and has "progressively accumulated." The shortage 22 years ago was $10,000.

Mayhew has been chief clerk in the tax office since 1933, retained with each succeeding new administration.

'Dollars For Scholars'

High School Committees To Aid Scholarship Fund

Student Council committees have been named at three area high schools to aid in the "Dollars for Scholars" fund drive later this month.

The campaign is sponsored by the Area Citizens Scholarship Foundation to raise money for interest free loans to qualified students with a financial need who are planning to go to college.

The Foundation group will meet tonight at 7:30 at the Westgate School auditorium to further plans for the April 14-21 campaign.

A booth will be sponsored at the Jaycees Home Show Wednesday through Saturday to provide information concerning the scholarship program and to issue applications for students seeking to apply for loans.

The first loans under the foundation program will be awarded later this spring to students planning to enter college, now in college or planning to receive advanced training.

Student Council at East Liverpool, Chester and Beaver Local high schools have endorsed the program and named committees to aid the fund drive.

Funds obtained from each district will be used for students in that particular district.

The East Liverpool High School committee is headed by Bob Gilmore and Keith Locke and includes Ted Waters, Kerry Jarvis, Marlene Laughlin, Barbara Hall and Virginia Cole.

The Chester High School Student Council is serving as the committee there. It includes Jeff Oyster, president, Paula Gibbs, Nancy Olash, Ed Clunk, Roger Durbin, Darlene Ferguson, Jerry Mayhew, Jeannie Lafferre, John Brand, Susan Miller, Bob Graham and Cherri Smith.

Primary Votes' Importance Stressed At GOP Meeting

The importance of the primary election was stressed by Atty. Charles Pike, county GOP chairman, at the meeting of the East Liverpool Women's Republican Club Monday night at the Mary Patterson Memorial.

Pike also discussed the functions of the precinct committeemen and committeewomen and how they are elected. He was introduced by Mrs. Ruth Crawford, president.

Mrs. R. L. Cawood played tape recordings of the "Human Events" meetings she attended in Washington.

The club also approved the new by-laws. Mrs. Helen Risinger, secretary, and Mrs. Grace Cartwright, treasurer, gave reports.

Mrs. Gladys Keys read a letter from State Rep. Clarence L. Wetzel outlining what the Ohio Legislature is doing. It was announced that a "Legislative Review" will be broadcast Sunday at 7:30 p. m. on WOHI.

Mrs. Crawford announced the club will hold a joint meeting with the Men's Republican Club on May 1 for a "Meet Your Candidates" program. The women's group will meet June 3 at the Mary Patterson.

ing, then launched a bitter attack on gambling.

He lashed out at gambling, its effect on those who "permit themselves to be mulcted" of their savings, and the adverse effects on local law enforcement agencies.

Judge Paul said it was "most reprehensible" the inference that gambling operations could exist without the negligence of local, county and state officials, and "possibly even subversion" of these officials.

Jury Panel Excused

Judge Paul excused the jury of nine men, including one from Hancock County, and three women shortly after resuming court at 2 p. m. Monday, until 10 a. m. today to allow opposing attorneys time to argue points of law.

The five defendants acquitted in one indictment were Domenic Bieno, 66, of Pittsburgh, Peter Short, 57, of White Oak Borough, Joseph Rizzo, 54, of Glassport, and Abraham Silverhart, 56, and Louis Anzelone, 25, both of Pittsburgh.

Five others named in an eight-count indictment were also acquitted. They are Sidney Bahm, 54, of McKeesport, Paul Belo, 50, Michael Simmera, 40, Alex Zrinyi Jr., and Joseph Tamburro, 40, all of Steubenville.

Eleven of the defendants were arrested by the FBI in a raid on the plush establishment in the upstairs of Club Paddock east of Chester, and Teemer and Bello were picked up later. All were charged with traveling interstate to conduct a gambling operation at the Jockey Club.

The dismissals were based on grounds that the government could not—and the government admitted it could not prove violations in some instances — offer proof that the 10 defendants acquitted were guilty of a federal crime.

One of the key positions of the government was the contention that the federal statute prohibited interstate travel for the purpose of going to work at the Jockey Club. The men who were acquitted were described as employes of the club.

In Literal Sense

A defense attorney remarked during his argument that if the literal sense of the federal statute was effective it would make a man a prisoner of West Virginia. He suggested that it would be a federal violation if the man went from West Virginia to Ohio on an innocent trip, such as to a funeral, and then returned to go to work at the club.

Gilbert Bachmann, principal defense attorney, told the court that he does not believe that that was the intent or spirit of the federal statute on which the government based its case.

In attempting to refute the defense comments, U. S. Atty. Robert E. Maxwell cited what he said were the intents of the Congress and reports of the House and Senate committee on judiciary.

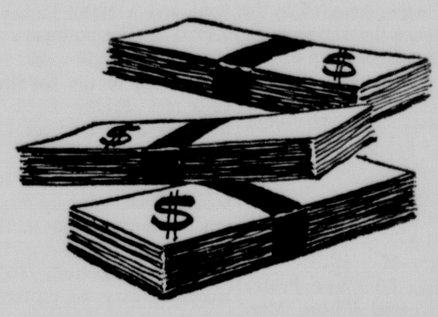

The statute involved states, in effect, that it is illegal to travel in interstate commerce for the purpose to promote, manage, or establish activities of a gambling nature.

Judge Paul referred to a letter written by Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy to the speaker of the House April 6, 1962, concerning the federal anti - racketeering laws. He said that Kennedy's letter clearly does not fit the activities of the Jockey Club or the commuters going to work at the club.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a junior in college. Last semester he was introduced to some "stay-awake pills." The kids call them Bennies. From Bennies he went to other stuff.

At first he took pills only when he had to stay up and cram for finals. Then he began to take them when he needed a lift. It wasn't long before he was taking pills just to keep going.

His disposition has changed from a sweet, likeable guy to a belligerent bully. He argues with everybody. Hardly a civil word has passed between us in months. His grades have slipped badly and he has lost confidence in himself.

I'm worried about his health. He has lost a lot of weight and looks terrible. The man who started him on the pills provided them free at first. Now they cost $14 a dozen.

I am a nervous wreck. Please tell me what to do. — MRS. HOOKED.

Dear Mrs.: Your husband should be in the hands of a competent physician — and soon. And the man who is peddling the junk should be reported to the police. I hope you have the courage to turn in the scoundrel and spare other young people the agony you are now suffering.

Keep In Touch

Dear Ann: I am a mother who does not agree with your position on going steady.

My daughter is 13 years old and in the seventh grade. She is going steady with a very nice boy of 14 and I am delighted. Last year when she didn't have a steady boy friend she was a terribly unhappy girl. She always was worried to death she wouldn't be invited to this party or to that ball game. It was a sad sight to see this child tear-eyed and fretting — waiting for the telephone to ring.

Going steady means nothing more to a seventh grader than having somebody to count on. It's what the youngsters call "social security."

Please don't be so tough with these 13-year-olds, Ann. Things are different than when you and I were teen-agers. Today it's a serious thing for a girl to be dateless.—R.D.

Dear R.D.: And who made it a "serious thing" for a 13-year-old to be dateless? Mothers like you.

The divorce rate is going through the roof and largely because of half-baked, premature marriages. When mothers prime their 12-year-old daughters to be man traps, the kids become so jaded and bored at 17 there is nothing left to do but get married. At 19 there's no place to go but to the divorce court.

Please keep my address handy, mother. I have a sneaking suspicion you'll be writing again.

Try A Magician

Dear Ann: You have expressed your views about the single girl who becomes involved with the married man and you've discussed the eternal triangular affairs among married couples. Yet you've never explained why the female always pays for the involvement while the man goes free.

When a woman gets caught up in an illicit love affair she often loses her home, her job, her friends, her place in respectable society and yes, sometimes even her health. The man continues on his merry way with nary a scar —looking for his next pigeon.

What is the secret? How can a woman immunize herself against a tattered and torn heart the way men do?

Please don't dodge behind the obvious line that a woman can protect herself by not becoming involved in the first place. Women will continue to become involved, regardless of the consequences. What's your solution? — D. PRESSED.

Dear D.: Being a mere columnist and not a magician, I have no cureall. As the poet has said — "to a woman love is all. To man 'tis a thing apart."

Foolish women will continue to become involved. And men will continue to take things apart. You can count on it, Babe.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a junior in college. Last semester he was introduced to some "stay-awake pills." The kids call them Bennies. From Bennies he went to other stuff.

At first he took pills only when he had to stay up and cram for finals. Then he began to take them when he needed a lift. It wasn't long before he was taking pills just to keep going.

His disposition has changed from a sweet, likeable guy to a belligerent bully. He argues with everybody. Hardly a civil word has passed between us in months. His grades have slipped badly and he has lost confidence in himself.

I'm worried about his health. He has lost a lot of weight and looks terrible. The man who started him on the pills provided them free at first. Now they cost $14 a dozen.

I am a nervous wreck. Please tell me what to do. — MRS. HOOKED.

Dear Mrs.: Your husband should be in the hands of a competent physician — and soon. And the man who is peddling the junk should be reported to the police. I hope you have the courage to turn in the scoundrel and spare other young people the agony you are now suffering.

Keep In Touch

Dear Ann: I am a mother who does not agree with your position on going steady.

My daughter is 13 years old and in the seventh grade. She is going steady with a very nice boy who becomes involved with the married man and you've discussed the eternal triangular affairs among married couples. Yet you've never explained why the female always pays for the involvement while the man goes free.

When a woman gets caught up in an illicit love affair she often loses her home, her job, her friends, her place in respectable society and yes, sometimes even her health. The man continues on his merry way with nary a scar —looking for his next pigeon.

What is the secret? How can a woman immunize herself against a tattered and torn heart the way men do?

Please don't dodge behind the obvious line that a woman can protect herself by not becoming involved in the first place. Women will continue to become involved, regardless of the consequences. What's your solution? — D. PRESSED.

Dear D.: Being a mere columnist and not a magician, I have no cureall. As the poet has said — "to a woman love is all. To man 'tis a thing apart."

Foolish women will continue to become involved. And men will continue to take things apart. You can count on it, Babe.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a mother who does not agree with your position on going steady.

My daughter is 13 years old and in the seventh grade. She is going steady with a very nice boy of 14 and I am delighted. Last year when she didn't have a steady boy friend she was a terribly unhappy girl. She always was worried to death she wouldn't be invited to this party or to that ball game. It was a sad sight to see this child tear-eyed and fretting — waiting for the telephone to ring.

Going steady means nothing more to a seventh grader than having somebody to count on. It's what the youngsters call "social security."

Please don't be so tough with these 13-year-olds, Ann. Things are different than when you and I were teen-agers. Today it's a serious thing for a girl to be dateless.—R.D.

Dear R.D.: And who made it a "serious thing" for a 13-year-old to be dateless? Mothers like you.

The divorce rate is going through the roof and largely because of half-baked, premature marriages. When mothers prime their 12-year-old daughters to be man traps, the kids become so jaded and bored at 17 there is nothing left to do but get married. At 19 there's no place to go but to the divorce court.

Please keep my address handy, mother. I have a sneaking suspicion you'll be writing again.

Try A Magician

Dear Ann: You have expressed your views about the single girl who becomes involved with the married man and you've discussed the eternal triangular affairs among married couples. Yet you've never explained why the female always pays for the involvement while the man goes free.

When a woman gets caught up in an illicit love affair she often loses her home, her job, her friends, her place in respectable society and yes, sometimes even her health. The man continues on his merry way with nary a scar —looking for his next pigeon.

What is the secret? How can a woman immunize herself against a tattered and torn heart the way men do?

Please don't dodge behind the obvious line that a woman can protect herself by not becoming involved in the first place. Women will continue to become involved, regardless of the consequences. What's your solution? — D. PRESSED.

Foolish women will continue to become involved. And men will continue to take things apart. You can count on it, Babe.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruse —

Dear Heloise: There is no reason to waste leftover food if one owns a deep freeze. Place a plastic container of about one-half gallon capacity in the freezer. When clearing the table after a meal, put all of the leftovers in the bowls into this container.

I include everything from creamed potatoes, gravy, vegetables of all types, rice, leftover roast, steak, and broth from boiled ham or chicken.

These leftovers may be added daily.

It will quick-freeze in layers. After about a few weeks of collection, depending on the size of the container, I buy some nice soup bones.

I boil the soup meat with three or four medium onions until the meat is well done and falling from the bones!

I then add three or four No. 2 cans of tomatoes and the leftovers. I let this boil for about an hour with salt and pepper to taste. This makes delicious homemade soup. After the soup cools, I freeze the mixture in ice-cube trays.

When this is thoroughly frozen I remove the cubes and place them in plastic bags. This enables one to take out just as many cubes as they need for a cup or bowl of soup without thawing the entire supply.

The cubes are very nice to take when calling on a shut-in.

MILDRED C. BANKS

This is fabulous! I dumped in that one spoonful of green beans, leftover peas, those teaspoonfuls of mashed potatoes (and I found out this makes wonderful thickening for my soup), the extra spoonful of carrots, two boiled onions and even a few slices of leftover tomatoes.

It was amazing what I collected in two weeks!

When making my soup, I always add a dash of paprika (this makes it real red and rich looking, and lots of celery salt and fresh pepper. I have also found that if you do not like watery soup that some tomato paste can be added to this vegetable soup. It makes the soup thick and filling instead of watery.

Don't forget. . . if you want it to go a long way and suffice for an entire meal add some noodles, macaroni, rice, and diced potatoes.

HELOISE

DEAR HELOISE: I make a "square" of cotton with ties on each corner to use over my plastic playpen pads. This not only saves the plastic but saves the babies' skin from irritation.

These squares may be removed and washed in the machine easily.

JEANNE PETERSON

DEAR HELOISE: If cooks ever have a little tomato paste left over from cooking. . . place it in a small container and pour vegetable oil over the top of the tomato paste before putting it into the refrigerator and it will keep for weeks, without molding. When ready to use the paste again, just pour the oil off.

Road Coating Receives OK

SUMMITVILLE — New applications of calcium chloride on two Franklin Township roads were authorized by the township trustees at a meeting Monday night.

Frank Allison of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. discussed the chemical and the trustees authorized a second application on a mile section of County Line Rd. and a first application on a mile section of Road 845 west from St. John's Catholic Church.

The first application in the three-year project on County Line Rd. was placed last year. There has been little winter damage on that road, trustees noted. The chemical aids in water seepage and helps protect the surface, Allison said.

Carl Brewer of Summitville questioned the trustees about the status of a lane leading to his home and John Wargo, trustee, will check official maps to determine if the township is responsible for maintenance.

Bills totaling $689 were paid. Paul Dowdell, president, was in charge.

The next meeting will be April 15.

Karlsrud Chorale Concert Described As 'Outstanding'

By CLARA HALL

Edmond Karlsrud and his Chorale certainly rounded out the season of the Tri - State Civic Music Association with an outstanding concert of all types of music Monday night at Westgate School.

The bass - baritone had the audience completely in his command at all times and his artistry was quite evident both in singing and speaking.

Norman Johnson, director accompanist, displayed professionalism not only at the keyboard but in holding the attention of the personable vocalists.

Karlsrud did the solo parts for the opening numbers, "For All the Saints" (Williams) and "The Harvest of Sorrows" (Rachmaninoff).

His verbal explanations of the Hebrew Chants, "V'Shom' Ru" and "Mi Chomocho," advised the audience that the music is composed of statements and answers. He sang the part of the cantor in the synagogue and the Chorale acted as the choir, usually occupying the back of the temple.

The ensemble sang "O Filii et Filiae" (Leisring), "The Rose Stood Bathed In Dew" (Schumann) and "Ave Verum" (Mozart) and "La Danza" (Rossini). The baritone trio drew much applause.

When they sang "Brumbasken I Bumba" (Grieg), it sounded like a counterpart of "She'll Be Coming Round the Mountain" with continual new verses popping up.

Johnson was joined by Max Mendenhall, second pianist, in accompanying the number, "The Coronation Scene" from Boris Godunov with the scene set in the great square of Moscow.

Operatic selections, dramatically presented, included choruses from "Fidelio" (Beethoven), "L Elisir d'Armore" (Donizetti) and "La Boheme" (Puccini).

Hits of the evening were "The Toreador Song" from Carmen (Bizet), and "Student Prince" (Romberg) to which the several soloists added a touch of humor.

The last portion of the program included a catchy American folk song, "Drill, Ye Tarriers;" a solemn English folk song, "Green Sleeves;" a lively spiritual, "Swing Away Pearly Gates," and a wonderful arrangement of "Joshua Fit De Battle Ob Jericho" befitting a male chorus.

Encores included "Happy Days," "Der Fleidermus," "Songs My Mother Taught Me," "The Sleigh" and a domestic problem ditty, "Johnny Sands."

When closing with the audience favorite, "Old Man River," Karlsrud and the Chorale proved why they have won so many laurels in the world of music.

Ernest Lowe, president, announced that the fall campaign will open early this year and four concerts are guaranteed with a fifth possible. Under the new national arrangement, the membership drive will be conducted completely by local persons without a national representative.

Issue On Negro Vote Registration Due Court Airing

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP) — A federal judge has rejected a Justice Department request for an immediate court order barring interference with Negro vote registration efforts.

But U.S. Dist. Judge Claude F. Clayton of Tupelo plans a hearing on the matter Thursday at Greenville, Miss.

Meanwhile, Negro comic Dick Gregory—who flew here to speak at a vote registration rally—said he would join members of his race going to the Leflore County courthouse today to take registration tests.

This city of 22,000, in the heart of Mississippi's cotton-growing area, has been stirred by racial unrest. Negroes, who outnumber white persons nearly 2-1, have spurred a vote registration drive. Of Leflore County's 6,400 registered voters, only 47, are Negroes.

Tax Receipts Total $64,656 For 3 Months

Receipts from the city income tax totaled $64,656 in the first three months of the year, Commissioner D. G. Wilkinson said in a report filed with Council Monday night.

Wilkinson sent a letter to Council showing $42,124 was collected from withholding taxes turned in by employers; $4,838 was received from business places and $17,-694 was collected from individuals whose income is not subject to withholding at the source.

Wilkinson's report covered the period Jan. 1-March 30.

He added that he noted the annual appropriation ordinance contained no provision for funds for a citywide survey of all prospective taxpayers.

Wilkinson had asked Council several months ago for money to finance such a survey. He said there has been no door-to-door survey since about 1958 to list all the persons who are subject to the tax.

Wilkinson's letter declared the need for such a survey "is urgent" and asked Council to consider it as soon as possible.

Councilman George E. Willshaw, chairman, said the finance committee already is considering Wilkinson's suggestion, based on the tax commissioner's earlier recommendation.

"We hope to have a report on it before long," Willshaw said. Council then approved his motion to file Wilkinson's letter.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruse —

Dear Heloise: There is no reason to waste leftover food if one owns a deep freeze. Place a plastic container of about one-half gallon capacity in the freezer. When clearing the table after a meal, put all of the leftovers in the bowls into this container.

I include everything from creamed potatoes, gravy, vegetables of all types, rice, leftover roast, steak, and broth from boiled ham or chicken.

These leftovers may be added daily.

It will quick-freeze in layers. After about a few weeks of collection, depending on the size of the container, I buy some nice soup bones.

I boil the soup meat with three or four medium onions until the meat is well done and falling from the bones!

I then add three or four No. 2 cans of tomatoes and the leftovers. I let this boil for about an hour with salt and pepper to taste. This makes delicious homemade soup. After the soup cools, I freeze the mixture in ice-cube trays.

When this is thoroughly frozen I remove the cubes and place them in plastic bags. This enables one to take out just as many cubes as they need for a cup or bowl of soup without thawing the entire supply.

The cubes are very nice to take when calling on a shut-in.

MILDRED C. BANKS

This is fabulous! I dumped in that one spoonful of green beans, leftover peas, those teaspoonfuls of mashed potatoes (and I found out this makes wonderful thickening for my soup), the extra spoonful of carrots, two boiled onions and even a few slices of leftover tomatoes.

It was amazing what I collected in two weeks!

When making my soup, I always add a dash of paprika (this makes it real red and rich looking, and lots of celery salt and fresh pepper. I have also found that if you do not like watery soup that some tomato paste can be added to this vegetable soup. It makes the soup thick and filling instead of watery.

Don't forget. . . if you want it to go a long way and suffice for an entire meal add some noodles, macaroni, rice, and diced potatoes.

HELOISE

DEAR HELOISE: I make a "square" of cotton with ties on each corner to use over my plastic playpen pads. This not only saves the plastic but saves the babies' skin from irritation.

These squares may be removed and washed in the machine easily.

JEANNE PETERSON

DEAR HELOISE: If cooks ever have a little tomato paste left over from cooking. . . place it in a small container and pour vegetable oil over the top of the tomato paste before putting it into the refrigerator and it will keep for weeks, without molding. When ready to use the paste again, just pour the oil off.

Road Coating Receives OK

SUMMITVILLE — New applications of calcium chloride on two Franklin Township roads were authorized by the township trustees at a meeting Monday night.

Frank Allison of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. discussed the chemical and the trustees authorized a second application on a mile section of County Line Rd. and a first application on a mile section of Road 845 west from St. John's Catholic Church.

The first application in the three-year project on County Line Rd. was placed last year. There has been little winter damage on that road, trustees noted. The chemical aids in water seepage and helps protect the surface, Allison said.

Carl Brewer of Summitville questioned the trustees about the status of a lane leading to his home and John Wargo, trustee, will check official maps to determine if the township is responsible for maintenance.

Bills totaling $689 were paid. Paul Dowdell, president, was in charge.

The next meeting will be April 15.

Karlsrud Chorale Concert Described As 'Outstanding'

By CLARA HALL

Edmond Karlsrud and his Chorale certainly rounded out the season of the Tri - State Civic Music Association with an outstanding concert of all types of music Monday night at Westgate School.

The bass - baritone had the audience completely in his command at all times and his artistry was quite evident both in singing and speaking.

Norman Johnson, director accompanist, displayed professionalism not only at the keyboard but in holding the attention of the personable vocalists.

Karlsrud did the solo parts for the opening numbers, "For All the Saints" (Williams) and "The Harvest of Sorrows" (Rachmaninoff).

His verbal explanations of the Hebrew Chants, "V'Shom' Ru" and "Mi Chomocho," advised the audience that the music is composed of statements and answers. He sang the part of the cantor in the synagogue and the Chorale acted as the choir, usually occupying the back of the temple.

The ensemble sang "O Filii et Filiae" (Leisring), "The Rose Stood Bathed In Dew" (Schumann) and "Ave Verum" (Mozart) and "La Danza" (Rossini). The baritone trio drew much applause.

When they sang "Brumbasken I Bumba" (Grieg), it sounded like a counterpart of "She'll Be Coming Round the Mountain" with continual new verses popping up.

Johnson was joined by Max Mendenhall, second pianist, in accompanying the number, "The Coronation Scene" from Boris Godunov with the scene set in the great square of Moscow.

Operatic selections, dramatically presented, included choruses from "Fidelio" (Beethoven), "L Elisir d'Armore" (Donizetti) and "La Boheme" (Puccini).

Hits of the evening were "The Toreador Song" from Carmen (Bizet), and "Student Prince" (Romberg) to which the several soloists added a touch of humor.

The last portion of the program included a catchy American folk song, "Drill, Ye Tarriers;" a solemn English folk song, "Green Sleeves;" a lively spiritual, "Swing Away Pearly Gates," and a wonderful arrangement of "Joshua Fit De Battle Ob Jericho" befitting a male chorus.

Encores included "Happy Days," "Der Fleidermus," "Songs My Mother Taught Me," "The Sleigh" and a domestic problem ditty, "Johnny Sands."

When closing with the audience favorite, "Old Man River," Karlsrud and the Chorale proved why they have won so many laurels in the world of music.

Ernest Lowe, president, announced that the fall campaign will open early this year and four concerts are guaranteed with a fifth possible. Under the new national arrangement, the membership drive will be conducted completely by local persons without a national representative.

Issue On Negro Vote Registration Due Court Airing

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP) — A federal judge has rejected a Justice Department request for an immediate court order barring interference with Negro vote registration efforts.

But U.S. Dist. Judge Claude F. Clayton of Tupelo plans a hearing on the matter Thursday at Greenville, Miss.

Meanwhile, Negro comic Dick Gregory—who flew here to speak at a vote registration rally—said he would join members of his race going to the Leflore County courthouse today to take registration tests.

This city of 22,000, in the heart of Mississippi's cotton-growing area, has been stirred by racial unrest. Negroes, who outnumber white persons nearly 2-1, have spurred a vote registration drive. Of Leflore County's 6,400 registered voters, only 47, are Negroes.

Receipts from the city income tax totaled $64,656 in the first three months of the year, Commissioner D. G. Wilkinson said in a report filed with Council Monday night.

Wilkinson sent a letter to Council showing $42,124 was collected from withholding taxes turned in by employers; $4,838 was received from business places and $17,-694 was collected from individuals whose income is not subject to withholding at the source.

Wilkinson's report covered the period Jan. 1-March 30.

He added that he noted the annual appropriation ordinance contained no provision for funds for a citywide survey of all prospective taxpayers.

Wilkinson had asked Council several months ago for money to finance such a survey. He said there has been no door-to-door survey since about 1958 to list all the persons who are subject to the tax.

Wilkinson's letter declared the need for such a survey "is urgent" and asked Council to consider it as soon as possible.

Councilman George E. Willshaw, chairman, said the finance committee already is considering Wilkinson's suggestion, based on the tax commissioner's earlier recommendation.

"We hope to have a report on it before long," Willshaw said. Council then approved his motion to file Wilkinson's letter.

Tebbetts Says Tribe Ready For Opener; Lauds Pitchers

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Birdie Tebbetts says his Cleveland Indians are ready now to open the season, which starts for a week from today against Minnesota in Minneapolis.

"The boys are on their toes and ready," Tebbetts said Monday. "I'm especially pleased with the way the pitching has come around in the last week. Everybody I've started has done a good job."

The Tribe's field boss singled out 20-game winner Dick Donovan, who blanked San Francisco on one hit through three innings in a game which Cleveland lost 4-3.

"Donovan did very well," Tebbetts said. "I pitched him only three innings because I wanted to look at a couple of youngsters who hadn't worked much."

The veteran right-hander's performance was the best so far this spring. The one hit Donovan allowed was a bad-hop single.

Although Tebbetts has made no official announcement, it appears Donovan will pitch the home opener April 11 in Cleveland against Detroit rather than the first game of the season.

"It's a bigger honor to make the home start," said Tebbetts, "and Dick earned it by winning 20 games last season."

Pounded hard by opposing batsmen in previous spring training exhibition games, Donovan didn't seem to worry about it. He claimed he was concentrating on his control.

Sizing up the team picture, Tebbetts said:

"I like the motion of the club. Base running has been heads up. They have been moving from first to third on singles, and they have been applying the hit-and-run extremely well."

The Cuban-born player didn't figure to make the team, but he is having a fine spring and is expected to remain with the Tribe as a utility player, if not a regular.

Jim (Mudcat) Grant, who may pitch the season opener, will start for the Indians today as they continue their Coast series with the Giants.

Yank Injury List Grows With Addition Of Maris

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—Slugger Roger Maris hit the liniment bottle today, the latest addition to a growing injury list that threatens to send the world champion New York Yankees out for the opening day of the baseball season next week with a somewhat makeshift line-up.

Maris, the 61-homer hammerer of 1961 who led the Yankees in runs batted in with 100 last season, pulled a hamstring muscle in his left leg Monday while making a diving catch of a line drive in a 3-2 exhibition triumph over Detroit here.

"I guess I won't be able to play until the World Series," Maris quipped as he lay on a dressing room table undergoing a poking and prodding process by trainer Joe Soares that obviously had the Yankee outfielder in pain.

Soares said the injury appeared to be so severe that Maris was definitely out for the remainder of the exhibition season and likely would not be ready for the Yankees' season opener a week from today. Maris will undergo whirlpool treatments and may be sent home to rest.

Pan-Am Cage Trial Finals Set Tonight

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Armed Forces All-Stars will pit their experience and smooth team play against a tall, rugged college all-star team in the finals of the Pan-American basketball trials tonight.

The service team, without a starter taller than 6-foot-4, upset the NCAA University All-Stars 75-70 Monday night with Mel Petersen, 6-4 former Wheaton, Ill., player, scoring 20 points.

Tom Thacker, Cincinnati's all-around star, led the university team with 18 points and grabbed 15 rebounds, tops for both teams, despite his 6-2 size. All-America Gary Bradds of Ohio State had 10 points.

The College All-Stars, led by Lucious Jackson and Willis Reed, a pair of 6-foot-9, 240-pound rebounders and scorers, beat the favored AAU All-Stars 85-84.

In the first game tonight, the AAU and NCAA university teams will play.

After the second game, the 20-man United States Olympic Basketball Committee will select a 12-man squad to represent the U.S. in the Pan-American Games at San Paolo, Brazil, April 20-May 5, and in the world tournament at Rio de Janiero in May. At least five—but no more than seven—players must come from the winner of the trials.

Cline Is Honored At All-Eastern Fete

While East Liverpool's Dean Cline was being named to the Big 8 All - Conference team, he also was being honored at Martins Ferry Monday night when he attended the All-Eastern Ohio banquet. Cline was named to the All - Eastern squad and was presented a trophy. Lou Rossini, head basketball coach at New York University, was guest speaker.

Byron Nelson May Try Comeback In Masters

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — At the age of 50, after 20 years of semi-retirement and casual, token tournament appearances, Byron Nelson is flirting with ideas of a comeback.

The Masters Tournament, starting Thursday, may serve as a springboard back to bigtime golf for the lean Roanoke, Tex., cattle rancher, the mechanical marvel of the late 1930s and early 1940s.

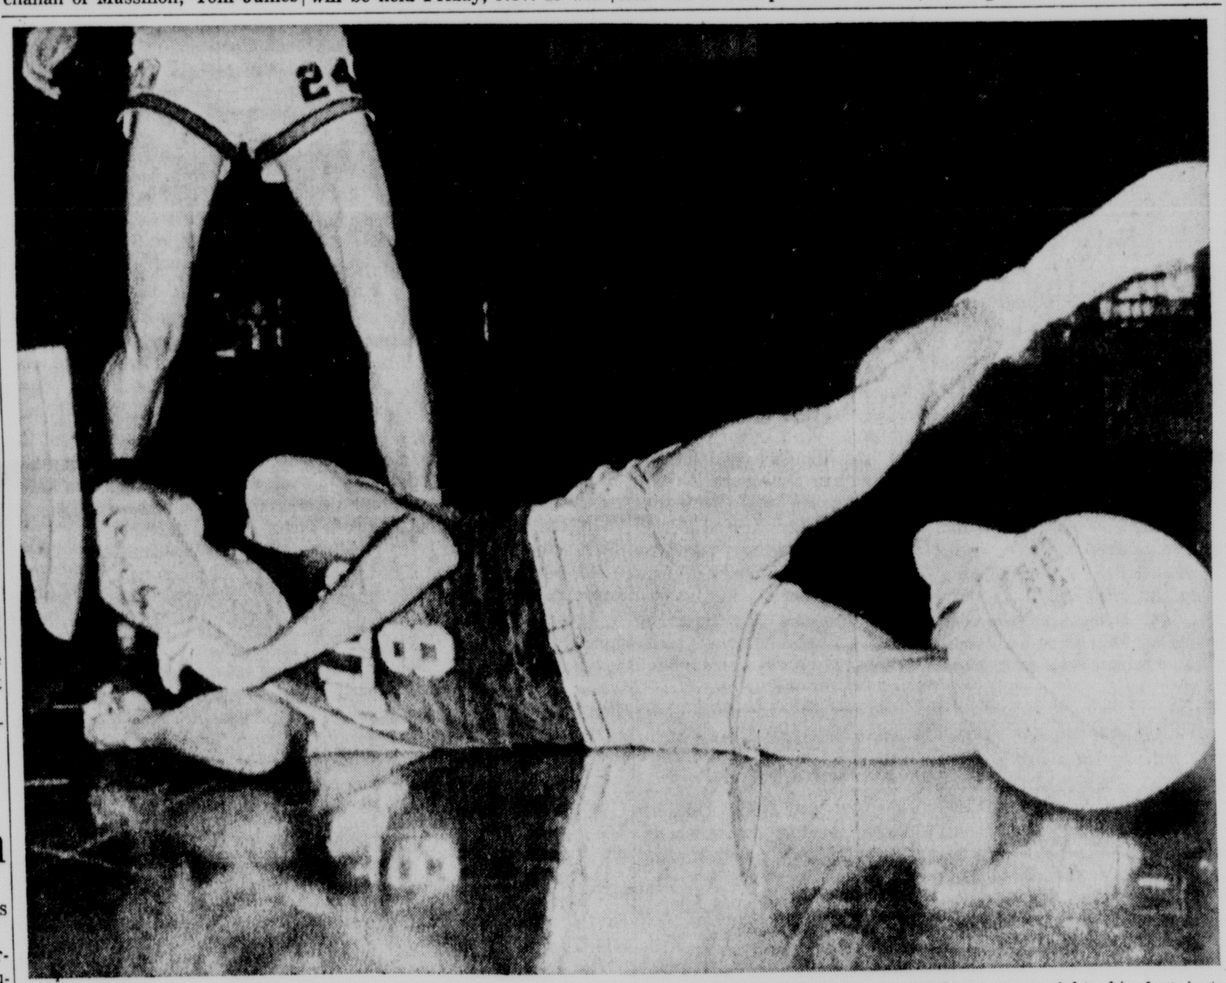

"I don't say I'm going back on the tour or that I'm going to push all these strong, young fellows aside," Nelson said today. "But I've decided it would be interesting to get my game back in the best possible shape and see how I'd fare.

"I've always kept myself in good physical condition. I've changed my outlook so that I'm not so scared any more. I've worked harder on my game than I have in several years. I still am afflicted with putting nerves — that's age, I guess—but I've built up a lot of confidence."

Nelson came to the Augusta National Course after two weeks of intensive practice. On his first practice round, he had a 76. Then he had a 73. The third time it was 70, two under par.

Now the rangy, graying Texan is one of the hardest working of the 82 players practicing for the 27th Masters — first on and last off the practice tees.

THIS WAS A CLOSE CALL for Gary Hill of Oklahoma City who played for the NCAA College All-Stars as a mighty big foot just misses his head during action Monday night at Kansas City. The College All-Stars beat the favored AAU All-Stars, 85-84 in the Pan-American basketball trials. (UPI Telephoto)

Cincinnati Basketball Pros Change Hands Again

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati's Royals have changed hands again—while the team still was in the middle of the Eastern Division National Basketball Association playoffs.

Warren Hensel, wealthy Cincinnati businessman and minority stockholder, said Monday night he had completed a deal to buy 56 per cent of the club's stock from Emprise Corp. of Buffalo, N.Y.

Emprise, operated by wealthy concessionaire Louis M. Jacobs, was to retain control of Cincinnati Gardens where the Royals play.

Emprise acquired the Royals and Gardens stock Friday in a purchase from the estate of the late Thomas E. Wood. Reliable sources indicated the sale involved about $500,000.

Hensel declined to give any financial details, but said he was in the Royals' deal alone.

Hensel, 48-year-old manufacturers' representative and distributor, said he planned to retain the team in Cincinnati.

His announcement Monday night puzzled Royals officials who said they knew nothing of Hensel acquiring the club.

General Manager Pepper Wilson suggested the timing of the announcement was poor because the Royals were deep in the playoffs, holding a 2-1 edge on Boston with the fourth game coming up Wednesday.

Hensel said he hoped to acquire former Ohio State All - America Jerry Lucas as a player. The Royals hold NBA draft rights on Lucas, but he signed with the rival American Basketball League before it folded.

Alabama Players Testify

Report Is Expected Today On Probe Of Gridiron Fix

ATLANTA (AP) — Sports fans waited today for a report on Georgia's probe of gridiron fix charges that rocked the sports world and touched off four separate investigations.

Gov. Carl E. Sanders, who ordered the state investigation, was to release a summary of findings by Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook.

Investigations by Georgia, Alabama, the Southeastern Conference and a U.S. Senate Committee followed the Saturday Evening Post's publication March 23 of rigging allegations against Wally Butts, former athletic director at Georgia, and Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant of Alabama.

The Post said Butts gave Georgia football secrets to Bryant the week before the Sept. 22 game which Alabama won 35-0. Both men have denied the charges and Butts has sued the Post for $10 million.

An Alabama legislative committee summoned more witnesses after hearing closed-door testimony from five of Bryant's players Monday.

The committee asked Sports Editor Benny Marshall of the Birmingham News to appear Wednesday and SEC Commissioner Bernie Moore the following day.

Moore has been investigating for the SEC. A U.S. Senate Committee, looking into gambling in sports, sent four men into Georgia and Alabama for more than a week.

Net Finals Set At Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — Two tall, wiry players with different styles will meet tonight for the singles championships of the professional tennis tournament at Cleveland Arena.

The 6-foot-4 Gimeno will team with Luis Ayala of Chile against Australia's Rod Laver and Ken Rosewall for the doubles title.

Gimeno is a young Spaniard whose strong serve, graceful ground strokes and powerful overhead play give him a classical appearance on the court. Buchholz, a 6-foot-2, 170-pounder, likes to hit the ball as hard as he can and rush the net.

Gimeno scored two upsets Monday night. He defeated third-seeded Barry McKay of Dayton 8-4 in the opening singles round, then turned back Rosewall 8-5 in the semifinals.

Buchholz drew an opening round bye and beat Laver 8-5 in the semifinals.

Gimeno-Ayala advanced to the doubles finals by defeating defending titlists Buchholz-Mckay 8-6. The Laver-Rosewall combination whipped veterans Don Budge and Al Doyle 8-3 in the other semifinals match.

Tebbetts Says Tribe Ready For Opener; Lauds Pitchers

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Birdie Tebbetts says his Cleveland Indians are ready now to open the season, which starts for a week from today against Minnesota in Minneapolis.

"The boys are on their toes and ready," Tebbetts said Monday. "I'm especially pleased with the way the pitching has come around in the last week. Everybody I've started has done a good job."

The Tribe's field boss singled out 20-game winner Dick Donovan, who blanked San Francisco on one hit through three innings in a game which Cleveland lost 4-3.

"Donovan did very well," Tebbetts said. "I pitched him only three innings because I wanted to look at a couple of youngsters who hadn't worked much."

The veteran right-hander's performance was the best so far this spring. The one hit Donovan allowed was a bad-hop single.

Although Tebbetts has made no official announcement, it appears Donovan will pitch the home opener April 11 in Cleveland against Detroit rather than the first game of the season.

"It's a bigger honor to make the home start," said Tebbetts, "and Dick earned it by winning 20 games last season."

Pounded hard by opposing batsmen in previous spring training exhibition games, Donovan didn't seem to worry about it. He claimed he was concentrating on his control.

Sizing up the team picture, Tebbetts said:

"I like the motion of the club. Base running has been heads up. They have been moving from first to third on singles, and they have been applying the hit-and-run extremely well."

The Cuban-born player didn't figure to make the team, but he is having a fine spring and is expected to remain with the Tribe as a utility player, if not a regular.

Jim (Mudcat) Grant, who may pitch the season opener, will start for the Indians today as they continue their Coast series with the Giants.

Byron Nelson May Try Comeback In Masters

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — At the age of 50, after 20 years of semi-retirement and casual, token tournament appearances, Byron Nelson is flirting with ideas of a comeback.

The Masters Tournament, starting Thursday, may serve as a springboard back to bigtime golf for the lean Roanoke, Tex., cattle rancher, the mechanical marvel of the late 1930s and early 1940s.

"I don't say I'm going back on the tour or that I'm going to push all these strong, young fellows aside," Nelson said today. "But I've decided it would be interesting to get my game back in the best possible shape and see how I'd fare.

"I've always kept myself in good physical condition. I've changed my outlook so that I'm not so scared any more. I've worked harder on my game than I have in several years. I still am afflicted with putting nerves — that's age, I guess—but I've built up a lot of confidence."

Nelson came to the Augusta National Course after two weeks of intensive practice. On his first practice round, he had a 76. Then he had a 73. The third time it was 70, two under par.

Now the rangy, graying Texan is one of the hardest working of the 82 players practicing for the 27th Masters — first on and last off the practice tees.

Yank Injury List Grows With Addition Of Maris

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—Slugger Roger Maris hit the liniment bottle today, the latest addition to a growing injury list that threatens to send the world champion New York Yankees out for the opening day of the baseball season next week with a somewhat makeshift line-up.

Maris, the 61-homer hammerer of 1961 who led the Yankees in runs batted in with 100 last season, pulled a hamstring muscle in his left leg Monday while making a diving catch of a line drive in a 3-2 exhibition triumph over Detroit here.

"I guess I won't be able to play until the World Series," Maris quipped as he lay on a dressing room table undergoing a poking and prodding process by trainer Joe Soares that obviously had the Yankee outfielder in pain.

Soares said the injury appeared to be so severe that Maris was definitely out for the remainder of the exhibition season and likely would not be ready for the Yankees' season opener a week from today. Maris will undergo whirlpool treatments and may be sent home to rest.

Pan-Am Cage Trial Finals Set Tonight

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Armed Forces All-Stars will pit their experience and smooth team play against a tall, rugged college all-star team in the finals of the Pan-American basketball trials tonight.

The service team, without a starter taller than 6-foot-4, upset the NCAA University All-Stars 75-70 Monday night with Mel Petersen, 6-4 former Wheaton, Ill., player, scoring 20 points.

Tom Thacker, Cincinnati's all-around star, led the university team with 18 points and grabbed 15 rebounds, tops for both teams, despite his 6-2 size. All-America Gary Bradds of Ohio State had 10 points.

The College All-Stars, led by Lucious Jackson and Willis Reed, a pair of 6-foot-9, 240-pound rebounders and scorers, beat the favored AAU All-Stars 85-84.

In the first game tonight, the AAU and NCAA university teams will play.

After the second game, the 20-man United States Olympic Basketball Committee will select a 12-man squad to represent the U.S. in the Pan-American Games at San Paolo, Brazil, April 20-May 5, and in the world tournament at Rio de Janiero in May. At least five—but no more than seven—players must come from the winner of the trials.

Cline Is Honored At All-Eastern Fete

While East Liverpool's Dean Cline was being named to the Big 8 All - Conference team, he also was being honored at Martins Ferry Monday night when he attended the All-Eastern Ohio banquet. Cline was named to the All - Eastern squad and was presented a trophy. Lou Rossini, head basketball coach at New York University, was guest speaker.

THIS WAS A CLOSE CALL for Gary Hill of Oklahoma City who played for the NCAA College All-Stars as a mighty big foot just misses his head during action Monday night at Kansas City. The College All-Stars beat the favored AAU All-Stars, 85-84 in the Pan-American basketball trials. (UPI Telephoto)

Cincinnati Basketball Pros Change Hands Again

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati's Royals have changed hands again—while the team still was in the middle of the Eastern Division National Basketball Association playoffs.

Warren Hensel, wealthy Cincinnati businessman and minority stockholder, said Monday night he had completed a deal to buy 56 per cent of the club's stock from Emprise Corp. of Buffalo, N.Y.

Emprise, operated by wealthy concessionaire Louis M. Jacobs, was to retain control of Cincinnati Gardens where the Royals play.

Emprise acquired the Royals and Gardens stock Friday in a purchase from the estate of the late Thomas E. Wood. Reliable sources indicated the sale involved about $500,000.

Hensel declined to give any financial details, but said he was in the Royals' deal alone.

Hensel, 48-year-old manufacturers' representative and distributor, said he planned to retain the team in Cincinnati.

His announcement Monday night puzzled Royals officials who said they knew nothing of Hensel acquiring the club.

General Manager Pepper Wilson suggested the timing of the announcement was poor because the Royals were deep in the playoffs, holding a 2-1 edge on Boston with the fourth game coming up Wednesday.

Hensel said he hoped to acquire former Ohio State All - America Jerry Lucas as a player. The Royals hold NBA draft rights on Lucas, but he signed with the rival American Basketball League before it folded.

Alabama Players Testify

Report Is Expected Today On Probe Of Gridiron Fix

ATLANTA (AP) — Sports fans waited today for a report on Georgia's probe of gridiron fix charges that rocked the sports world and touched off four separate investigations.

Gov. Carl E. Sanders, who ordered the state investigation, was to release a summary of findings by Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook.

Investigations by Georgia, Alabama, the Southeastern Conference and a U.S. Senate Committee followed the Saturday Evening Post's publication March 23 of rigging allegations against Wally Butts, former athletic director at Georgia, and Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant of Alabama.

The Post said Butts gave Georgia football secrets to Bryant the week before the Sept. 22 game which Alabama won 35-0. Both men have denied the charges and Butts has sued the Post for $10 million.

An Alabama legislative committee summoned more witnesses after hearing closed-door testimony from five of Bryant's players Monday.

The committee asked Sports Editor Benny Marshall of the Birmingham News to appear Wednesday and SEC Commissioner Bernie Moore the following day.

Moore has been investigating for the SEC. A U.S. Senate Committee, looking into gambling in sports, sent four men into Georgia and Alabama for more than a week.

Belinsky Plans Marriage With Miss Van Doren

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP)—Southpaw Bo Belinsky of the Los Angeles Angels says he's planning on marrying actress Mamie Van Doren, but hasn't gotten around to buying her a ring.

"She's my kind of girl," the pitcher said in explaining his intentions. "I like her a lot. In fact, I'm mad about her, but things are too unstable to think of a wedding date now."

"I'm just plain nutty about Bo," Miss Van Doren said in Hollywood when told that Belinsky had announced his engagement. "We became engaged last Sunday night in Palm Springs, but I thought we were going to make a joint announcement when Bo returned home with the Angels for the weekend series with the Dodgers. He was going to buy me a ring in Las Vegas. I like him better than any man I've met before."

Net Finals Set At Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — Two tall, wiry players with different styles will meet tonight for the singles championships of the professional tennis tournament at Cleveland Arena.

The 6-foot-4 Gimeno will team with Luis Ayala of Chile against Australia's Rod Laver and Ken Rosewall for the doubles title.

Gimeno is a young Spaniard whose strong serve, graceful ground strokes and powerful overhead play give him a classical appearance on the court. Buchholz, a 6-foot-2, 170-pounder, likes to hit the ball as hard as he can and rush the net.

Gimeno scored two upsets Monday night. He defeated third-seeded Barry McKay of Dayton 8-4 in the opening singles round, then turned back Rosewall 8-5 in the semifinals.

Buchholz drew an opening round bye and beat Laver 8-5 in the semifinals.

Gimeno-Ayala advanced to the doubles finals by defeating defending titlists Buchholz-Mckay 8-6. The Laver-Rosewall combination whipped veterans Don Budge and Al Doyle 8-3 in the other semifinals match.

Friend Goes Distance, Limits Twins To Only 4 Hits

Injury Sends Law To Bucs' Minor Camp

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bob Friend has the range from 60 feet, but the 250-foot experiment has failed Vern Law, and today the pitching partners who brought Pittsburgh a world championship in 1960 were worlds apart.

Friend pitched a four-hitter over the nine-inning route Monday as the Pirates defeated Minnesota 3-0 in an exhibition at Orlando, clinching the opening day pitching assignment only hours after Law learned he was leaving the team for awhile.

Law's failure to overcome his shoulder ailment — and the announcement that he would be sent to the club's minor league camp to try and regain the form that made him a 20-game winner in 1960—came on a day filled with events of more than passing interest.

Roger Maris, the New York Yankees' 61-homer hitter of 1961, pulled a hamstring muscle in his left leg while making a diving catch during a 3-2 victory over Detroit at Lakeland, and likely will miss the world champions' season opener a week from today.

Duke Snider, veteran Dodger outfielder, was sold by Los Angeles to the New York Mets. The official confirmation of the much-discussed transaction was made by the Mets, who did not play Monday. The Dodgers were beaten 6-1 by Baltimore at Vero Beach.

Elsewhere, the Chicago Cubs belted Boston 13-3 at San Bernardino, San Francisco edged Cleveland 4-3 at Santa Barbara and the Los Angeles Angels whipped Houston 5-1 in California games. In other Florida action, Washington defeated Milwaukee 4-2 in 10 innings at West Palm Beach, Philadelphia edged St. Louis 5-4 at St. Petersburg and Cincinnati downed Kansas City 4-1 at Bradenton.

Law, a 33-year-old right-hander who posted a 20-9 record in 1960, then followed with 3-4 and 10-7 marks, had been pitching at distances up to 250 feet in an effort to strengthen his arm muscles. The plan failed. Law has pitched in only one exhibition, giving up four runs in three innings.

Law will be sent to Daytona Beach, and may stay until the last minor league club leaves about April 20.

Friend, meanwhile, was midseason sharp, allowing the Twins only four singles. The Pirates also got only four hits—but Don Clendenon's two-run homer in the sixth wrapped it up.

Maris homered for the Yankees in the top of the fourth, then in the bottom of the inning made a spectacular catch of a Dick McAuliffe liner and wound up on the injury list. Joe Pepitone continued to sizzle for the Yanks, hitting his third homer in two games and eighth of the spring.

Robin Roberts went nine for the Orioles, holding the Dodgers to six hits while Brooks Robinson paced an 11-hit attack with a two-run homer and single.

Lou Brock collected a single, two doubles and a triple while Ron Santo and Ernie Banks hit consecutive homers as the Cubs walloped the Red Sox. Tom Haller's two-run homer proved decisive for the Giants as Juan Marichal pitched two-hit ball in his six-inning sting against the Indians.

Don Lee and Julio Navarro combined for a four-hitter as the Angels beat the Colts, Jim King's two-run 10th inning triple gave the Senators their victory over the Braves, the Phillies used a triple by Tony Taylor and a wild pitch in the eighth to beat the Cards and Don Blasingame and Gordie Coleman each stroked three hits in the Reds triumph over the A's.

Lamb Recommended For Advisory Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industrialist Edward S. Lamb, Toledo, Ohio, is among eight persons Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn, has recommended for possible service on an advisory group for development of a supersonic jetliner.

Kefauver was invited by Najeeb Halaby, administrator of the Federal Aviation Agency, to make recommendations after he criticized the FAA for its selections. Kefauver contended the advisory group appointed by Halaby did not represent a sufficiently wide range of interests.

USW Employes Stay Off Job At Kaiser Co. Plant

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—The entire midnight shift of the Kaiser Aluminum Co. here stayed off the job today and set up picket lines in what the workers' union termed an unauthorized strike.

The walkout was triggered Monday night by about three dozen night shift employes—members of the AFL-CIO United Steelworkers Union—when they left their jobs in protest of what they called unsafe working conditions.

Mason Harmon, president of Steelworkers Local 341, said the men had been asked to return to work but they refused.

He called the walkout an "unauthorized strike over work conditions such as safety and elimination of manpower," and said that "every effort is being made to reach an agreement."

Harmon said a meeting has been set for 10 a.m. with officials of the international union.

The plant employs an estimated 1,400 workers, about 400 of them on the two night shifts.

1 Killed, 3 Injured As Car Rams Another

LANCASTER, Ohio (AP)—A 2-year-old boy was killed and his mother and two brothers were injured late Monday night when the car they were in was struck from behind by another, the Highway Patrol reported.

Driving the Cremeans car was the father, Willard A. Cremeans, 26, who was not injured.

The patrol said a car driven by Ray Albert Griffith, 20, of Lancaster struck the rear of the Cremeans car on U.S. 33 four miles north of here. Griffith was not injured.

Seizures Of Water Repellant Ordered

DETROIT (AP)—An official of the Food and Drug Administration has ordered seizures of a water repellant which the government claims is not properly labeled as extremely inflammable.

Four 5-gallon cans of the repellant, manufactured by the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., were seized Monday in Detroit. George Fowler, assistant director of the FDA, said similar seizures were ordered in Western Michigan and Ohio.

Jay Effective In Reds' 4-1 Win Over A's

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Joey Jay, 21-game winner for the Cincinnati Reds last season, gripes about the news pitching rules, but he's throwing as effectively as ever.

He gave up five hits in seven innings Monday to help the Reds defeat the Kansas City Athletics 4-1 in exhibition play.

Jay groused about the rules change that outlawed his controversial no-windup delivery that had Los Angeles officials particularly unhappy.

He said he used it rarely — chiefly in an effort to cut down base stealing by the Dodgers Maury Wills.

As for the new high strike zone, the 6-foot-5, 220-pound Jay took a dim view of that, too, especially on the umpires part.

"It will be a big change if they do call it," he said. "It should help a fastball pitcher if they are consistent in the call.

"But I'm not going to fool around with a high pitch unless I know they will call it consistently."

The Athletics got to him Monday for a single run in the fifth with three hits.

The Reds tied into former teammate Orlando Pena for three runs in the first two innings. They clustered four hits and an error for two runs in the first inning, and acquired another marker in the second on two-out doubles by Vada Pinson and Don Blasingame.

Four more exhibition games, all against the White Sox, were mapped for Cincinnati's trip north. They open the season next Monday against Pittsburgh.

Snider To Wear Mets' Uniform In '63 Season

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Duke Snider, the king of Flatbush, is headed back to the city that gave him the royal treatment—both cheers and boos—joining seven other former Dodger teammates on the New York Mets.

His waist a little wider and his hair a little whiter, the 36-year-old slugger who spent 11 years in a Brooklyn uniform and 16 years as a Dodger, officially was sold to the Mets Monday night for a price in the $30,000-40,000 neighborhood.

The left-handed swinging outfielder has been the subject of a cloak-and-dagger transaction that has been rumored for weeks. The deal finally was confirmed by Mets President George Weiss while Snider was en route to the West Coast.

In Albuquerque, Snider stepped off a plane, denied reports he had asked to be traded so he could play regularly, but noted that "it'll be interesting playing for Casey Stengel (Mets manager)." Snider said he was sad, but had expected "to feel a lot worse."

Snider, whose lifetime National League achievements include a .300 batting average, 1,995 hits, 1,271 runs batted in and 389 homers, plans to spend a few days with his family in Fallbrook, Calif., before joining the Mets. He said his wife and four children would probably come to New York in May.

An outspoken critic of baseball's boo-birds, Snider was a hero to the Ebbets Field crowds that jammed into the now dismantled park to watch the Dodger stars of the 1950s—Jackie Robinson, Roy Campanella, PeeWee Reese, Carl Furillo and Gil Hodges, the latter now also with the Mets.

To the cheers, Snider would doff his cap. To the boos, Snider would respond with a verbal attack. The fans always came back to applaud.

Bailey Wanted Trade But Dark Gains Raise

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Giants had brought the first National League pennant to San Francisco and the veteran catcher had played a prominent role, hitting 17 home runs, including one on the final day of the regular season, in a limited number of games.

But shortly after the World Series, Bailey contacted manager Alvin Dark and requested he be traded. The request was not made in anger. It was not one of these "play me or trade me" ultimatums.

"I didn't want to leave the Giants," Bailey said today. "They are a fine organization and they have treated me well. But I did not play as much as I would have liked last year. And I knew the same thing would be in store for me this year. We have one of the finest young catchers in baseball in Tom Haller and the club figured to play him more than me because of his youth, as well as ability.

"I told Dark I felt it would be better for both of us if I were traded. I knew there were several clubs interested in me and would play me regularly. At 31, I felt I could still catch 140 or so games a year. If not with the Giants, then with some other club.

"Dark understood how I felt but said he was counting on me for the '63 season. Instead of trading me, he went to bat for me and helped me get a raise. It's not every manager who goes to bat for a .232 hitter and I'll always be grateful to Dark for that."

The Philadelphia Phillies collected 10 runs in the third inning against Cincinnati on June 15, 1962, high for the year in the National League.

Leafs, Wings Favored In NHL Playoff

By The Associated Press

The National Hockey League Stanley Cup semifinal playoffs resume tonight with the Toronto Maple Leafs favored to eliminate the Montreal Canadiens and the Detroit Red Wings favored to even their series with the Chicago Black Hawks.

Toronto carries a commanding 3-0 lead onto Montreal ice and aims to sweep the best-of-7 series. Playing on home ice the Red Wings are expected to duplicate their Sunday victory over the Hawks and square the best-of-7 series at 2-2.

Toronto's hopes for a sweep are enhanced by the improvement in the condition of big Frank Mahovlich who came down with the flu several weeks ago and so far hasn't scored a point in the playoffs.

"I feel my strength coming back now that I have been eating solid food for a couple of days," said the 200-pound left winger.

"One win, that's all we need," said Toe Blake, the Montreal coach, indicating that a victory would get the Canadiens going.

The possible loss of their high scoring Bobby Hull is expected to hurt Chicago's chances against Detroit, despite the fact that the Wings' Vic Stasiuk would miss the game because of a sore shoulder and jaw suffered in Sunday's game.

'Skateathon' Set Next Tuesday Over Local Rink

The latest craze has been 50-mile walks but Jim Flasco, proprietor of the Harmony Skateland on Minerva St., will present a "skateathon."

The distance will be set between 70 and 100 miles and it takes 17 times around the floor to make one mile at Skateland. The "skateathon" will be held next Tuesday from 2 p. m. to 10 p. m.

Anyone interested can register at the skating rink. Prizes will be awarded to those completing the distance.

Guatemala's Dictator To Oust All Reds

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP)—Vowing to fight communism "to the death," Guatemala's new dictator, Col. Enrique Peralta announced Monday night he will deport all Communists in the country and let no others enter.

The provisional president told a news conference Guatemala is calm following Sunday's military coup. But the Defense Ministry charged Communist agitators are planning disorders.

Communist demonstrations were banned, but a mass rally was planned today to register public approval for Peralta, 54, an army officer and former diplomat who seized power with the avowed purpose of cracking down on Communist subversion.

Most political parties in this Central American nation approved the coup, although Miguel Ydigadoras Fuentes, the elected president it deposed, was a militant anti-Communist and a conservative.

Alberto Herrate Gonzalez, the new foreign minister, expressed hope for prompt recognition by all members of the Organization of American States.

The request presented a problem for the United States and those of Guatemala's anti-Communist allies in South America who feel freely elected governments are the best defense against communism.

Friend Goes Distance, Limits Twins To Only 4 Hits

Injury Sends Law To Bucs' Minor Camp

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bob Friend has the range from 60 feet, but the 250-foot experiment has failed Vern Law, and today the pitching partners who brought Pittsburgh a world championship in 1960 were worlds apart.

Friend pitched a four-hitter over the nine-inning route Monday as the Pirates defeated Minnesota 3-0 in an exhibition at Orlando, clinching the opening day pitching assignment only hours after Law learned he was leaving the team for awhile.

Law's failure to overcome his shoulder ailment — and the announcement that he would be sent to the club's minor league camp to try and regain the form that made him a 20-game winner in 1960—came on a day filled with events of more than passing interest.

Roger Maris, the New York Yankees' 61-homer hitter of 1961, pulled a hamstring muscle in his left leg while making a diving catch during a 3-2 victory over Detroit at Lakeland, and likely will miss the world champions' season opener a week from today.

Duke Snider, veteran Dodger outfielder, was sold by Los Angeles to the New York Mets. The official confirmation of the much-discussed transaction was made by the Mets, who did not play Monday. The Dodgers were beaten 6-1 by Baltimore at Vero Beach.

Elsewhere, the Chicago Cubs belted Boston 13-3 at San Bernardino, San Francisco edged Cleveland 4-3 at Santa Barbara and the Los Angeles Angels whipped Houston 5-1 in California games. In other Florida action, Washington defeated Milwaukee 4-2 in 10 innings at West Palm Beach, Philadelphia edged St. Louis 5-4 at St. Petersburg and Cincinnati downed Kansas City 4-1 at Bradenton.

Law, a 33-year-old right-hander who posted a 20-9 record in 1960, then followed with 3-4 and 10-7 marks, had been pitching at distances up to 250 feet in an effort to strengthen his arm muscles. The plan failed. Law has pitched in only one exhibition, giving up four runs in three innings.

Law will be sent to Daytona Beach, and may stay until the last minor league club leaves about April 20.

Friend, meanwhile, was mid-season sharp, allowing the Twins only four singles. The Pirates also got only four hits—but Don Clendenon's two-run homer in the sixth wrapped it up.

Maris homered for the Yankees in the top of the fourth, then in the bottom of the inning made a spectacular catch of a Dick McAuliffe liner and wound up on the injury list. Joe Pepitone continued to sizzle for the Yanks, hitting his third homer in two games and eighth of the spring.

Robin Roberts went nine for the Orioles, holding the Dodgers to six hits while Brooks Robinson paced an 11-hit attack with a two-run homer and single.

Lou Brock collected a single, two doubles and a triple while Ron Santo and Ernie Banks hit consecutive homers as the Cubs walloped the Red Sox. Tom Haller's two-run homer proved decisive for the Giants as Juan Marichal pitched two-hit ball in his six-inning sting against the Indians.

Don Lee and Julio Navarro combined for a four-hitter as the Angels beat the Colts, Jim King's two-run 10th inning triple gave the Senators their victory over the Braves, the Phillies used a triple by Tony Taylor and a wild pitch in the eighth to beat the Cards and Don Blasingame and Gordie Coleman each stroked three hits in the Reds triumph over the A's.

Lamb Recommended For Advisory Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industrialist Edward S. Lamb, Toledo, Ohio, is among eight persons Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn, has recommended for possible service on an advisory group for development of a supersonic jetliner.

Kefauver was invited by Najeeb Halaby, administrator of the Federal Aviation Agency, to make recommendations after he criticized the FAA for its selections. Kefauver contended the advisory group appointed by Halaby did not represent a sufficiently wide range of interests.

USW Employes Stay Off Job At Kaiser Co. Plant

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—The entire midnight shift of the Kaiser Aluminum Co. here stayed off the job today and set up picket lines in what the workers' union termed an unauthorized strike.

The walkout was triggered Monday night by about three dozen night shift employes—members of the AFL-CIO United Steelworkers Union—when they left their jobs in protest of what they called unsafe working conditions.

Mason Harmon, president of Steelworkers Local 341, said the men had been asked to return to work but they refused.

He called the walkout an "unauthorized strike over work conditions such as safety and elimination of manpower," and said that "every effort is being made to reach an agreement."

Harmon said a meeting has been set for 10 a.m. with officials of the international union.

The plant employs an estimated 1,400 workers, about 400 of them on the two night shifts.

1 Killed, 3 Injured As Car Rams Another

LANCASTER, Ohio (AP)—A 2-year-old boy was killed and his mother and two brothers were injured late Monday night when the car they were in was struck from behind by another, the Highway Patrol reported.

Killed was Jimmy Cremeans of Rt. 1, Carroll.

Driving the Cremeans car was the father, Willard A. Cremeans, 26, who was not injured.

The patrol said a car driven by Ray Albert Griffith, 20, of Lancaster struck the rear of the Cremeans car on U.S. 33 four miles north of here. Griffith was not injured.

Seizures Of Water Repellant Ordered

DETROIT (AP)—An official of the Food and Drug Administration has ordered seizures of a water repellant which the government claims is not properly labeled as extremely inflammable.

Four 5-gallon cans of the repellant, manufactured by the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., were seized Monday in Detroit. George Fowler, assistant director of the FDA, said similar seizures were ordered in Western Michigan and Ohio.

Jay Effective In Reds' 4-1 Win Over A's

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Joey Jay, 21-game winner for the Cincinnati Reds last season, gripes about the news pitching rules, but he's throwing as effectively as ever.

He gave up five hits in seven innings Monday to help the Reds defeat the Kansas City Athletics 4-1 in exhibition play.

Jay groused about the rules change that outlawed his controversial no-windup delivery that had Los Angeles officials particularly unhappy.

He said he used it rarely — chiefly in an effort to cut down base stealing by the Dodgers Maury Wills.

As for the new high strike zone, the 6-foot-5, 220-pound Jay took a dim view of that, too, especially on the umpires part.

"It will be a big change if they do call it," he said. "It should help a fastball pitcher if they are consistent in the call.

"But I'm not going to fool around with a high pitch unless I know they will call it consistently."

The Athletics got to him Monday for a single run in the fifth with three hits.

The Reds tied into former teammate Orlando Pena for three runs in the first two innings. They clustered four hits and an error for two runs in the first inning, and acquired another marker in the second on two-out doubles by Vada Pinson and Don Blasingame.

Four more exhibition games, all against the White Sox, were mapped for Cincinnati's trip north. They open the season next Monday against Pittsburgh.

Snider To Wear Mets' Uniform In '63 Season

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Duke Snider, the king of Flatbush, is headed back to the city that gave him the royal treatment—both cheers and boos—joining seven other former Dodger teammates on the New York Mets.

His waist a little wider and his hair a little whiter, the 36-year-old slugger who spent 11 years in a Brooklyn uniform and 16 years as a Dodger, officially was sold to the Mets Monday night for a price in the $30,000-40,000 neighborhood.

The left-handed swinging outfielder has been the subject of a cloak-and-dagger transaction that has been rumored for weeks. The deal finally was confirmed by Mets President George Weiss while Snider was en route to the West Coast.

In Albuquerque, Snider stepped off a plane, denied reports he had asked to be traded so he could play regularly, but noted that "it'll be interesting playing for Casey Stengel (Mets manager)." Snider said he was sad, but had expected "to feel a lot worse."

Snider, whose lifetime National League achievements include a .300 batting average, 1,995 hits, 1,271 runs batted in and 389 homers, plans to spend a few days with his family in Fallbrook, Calif., before joining the Mets. He said his wife and four children would probably come to New York in May.

An outspoken critic of baseball's boo-birds, Snider was a hero to the Ebbets Field crowds that jammed into the now dismantled park to watch the Dodger stars of the 1950s—Jackie Robinson, Roy Campanella, PeeWee Reese, Carl Furillo and Gil Hodges, the latter now also with the Mets.

To the cheers, Snider would doff his cap. To the boos, Snider would respond with a verbal attack. The fans always came back to applaud.

Bailey Wanted Trade But Dark Gains Raise

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Giants had brought the first National League pennant to San Francisco and the veteran catcher had played a prominent role, hitting 17 home runs, including one on the final day of the regular season, in a limited number of games.

But shortly after the World Series, Bailey contacted manager Alvin Dark and requested he be traded. The request was not made in anger. It was not one of these "play me or trade me" ultimatums.

"I didn't want to leave the Giants," Bailey said today. "They are a fine organization and they have treated me well. But I did not play as much as I would have liked last year. And I knew the same thing would be in store for me this year. We have one of the finest young catchers in baseball in Tom Haller and the club figured to play him more than me because of his youth, as well as ability.

"I told Dark I felt it would be better for both of us if I were traded. I knew there were several clubs interested in me and would play me regularly. At 31, I felt I could still catch 140 or so games a year. If not with the Giants, then with some other club.

"Dark understood how I felt but said he was counting on me for the '63 season. Instead of trading me, he went to bat for me and helped me get a raise. It's not every manager who goes to bat for a .232 hitter and I'll always be grateful to Dark for that."

The Philadelphia Phillies collected 10 runs in the third inning against Cincinnati on June 15, 1962, high for the year in the National League.

Leafs, Wings Favored In NHL Playoff

By The Associated Press

The National Hockey League Stanley Cup semifinal playoffs resume tonight with the Toronto Maple Leafs favored to eliminate the Montreal Canadiens and the Detroit Red Wings favored to even their series with the Chicago Black Hawks.

Toronto carries a commanding 3-0 lead onto Montreal ice and aims to sweep the best-of-7 series. Playing on home ice the Red Wings are expected to duplicate their Sunday victory over the Hawks and square the best-of-7 series at 2-2.

Toronto's hopes for a sweep are enhanced by the improvement in the condition of big Frank Mahovlich who came down with the flu several weeks ago and so far hasn't scored a point in the playoffs.

"I feel my strength coming back now that I have been eating solid food for a couple of days," said the 200-pound left winger.

"One win, that's all we need," said Toe Blake, the Montreal coach, indicating that a victory would get the Canadiens going.

The possible loss of their high scoring Bobby Hull is expected to hurt Chicago's chances against Detroit, despite the fact that the Wings' Vic Stasiuk would miss the game because of a sore shoulder and jaw suffered in Sunday's game.

'Skateathon' Set Next Tuesday Over Local Rink

The latest craze has been 50-mile walks but Jim Flasco, proprietor of the Harmony Skateland on Minerva St., will present a "skateathon."

The distance will be set between 70 and 100 miles and it takes 17 times around the floor to make one mile at Skateland. The "skateathon" will be held next Tuesday from 2 p. m. to 10 p. m.

Anyone interested can register at the skating rink. Prizes will be awarded to those completing the distance.

Guatemala's Dictator To Oust All Reds

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (AP)—Vowing to fight communism "to the death," Guatemala's new dictator, Col. Enrique Peralta announced Monday night he will deport all Communists in the country and let no others enter.

The provisional president told a news conference Guatemala is calm following Sunday's military coup. But the Defense Ministry charged Communist agitators are planning disorders.

Communist demonstrations were banned, but a mass rally was planned today to register public approval for Peralta, 54, an army officer and former diplomat who seized power with the avowed purpose of cracking down on Communist subversion.

Most political parties in this Central American nation approved the coup, although Miguel Ydigadoras Fuentes, the elected president it deposed, was a militant anti-Communist and a conservative.

Alberto Herrate Gonzalez, the new foreign minister, expressed hope for prompt recognition by all members of the Organization of American States.

The request presented a problem for the United States and those of Guatemala's anti-Communist allies in South America who feel freely elected governments are the best defense against communism.

Rep. Bolton Also Questions ARA's News Handling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Oliver P. Bolton, R-Ohio, has joined other House Republicans in questioning the manner in which the Area Redevelopment Administration handles it news releases.

Bolton told ARA Administrator William L. Batt Jr. Monday that in one instance, he was told that approval of a certain project in his district would be announced in a few days and that the congressman would be advised.

"Half an hour later," Bolton said, "the senior senator from Ohio (Sen. Frank J. Lausche) called the newspapers and released the story."

Batt replied that announcements are made to congressional and senatorial offices "as near simultaneously as possible and before public announcements."

Batt and Commerce Secretary Luther H. Hodges appeared before the House Banking Committee seeking more funds for the program to aid depressed areas.

Ex-Ohioan Charged In Scholarship Case

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — James H. Lochary, 30, former assistant dean of students at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, has been charged with embezzling $2,200 in rigged scholarships at Indiana University.

Eight counts of embezzlement were filed Monday in Monroe County Circuit Court after a sophmore student's suspicions led to a state audit. Lochary quit last month while the audit was being made.

Contacted at his home Monday, Lochary said: "I know nothing about this, and I have nothing to say."

Young Attacks Army On Purchasing Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Any idea of purchasing new sites for two Army Reserve centers in Columbus, Ohio, is "a fantastic, unthinkable raid upon our federal treasury," Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, says.

Young told the Senate Monday that the Army is giving serious consideration to such purchases when the Fort Hayes military installation, in the heart of the city, would provide an excellent location.

The Army plans to abandon Fort Hayes in 1965.

U.S. Steel Profits Lowest Since 1945

CLEVELAND (AP)—Profits in the U.S. steel industry, which hit 7.82 per cent of the sales dollar in 1955, dropped last year to their lowest point since 1945, Steel Magazine reported today.

The 1962 average was 4.05 per cent, compared with 3.06 per cent in 1945, Steel reported, and the dollar volume of net profits was the lowest since 1952.

"The profit squeeze was so pronounced in 1962 that even a rise in shipments and dollar volume of sales failed to halt the several-year decline in net profits," the trade publication noted.

The industry's net profit last year was about $582.7 million, compared with $541 million in 1952.

Lima Mother Due As Ohio Entrant In Mrs. America

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—An attractive, 38-year-old mother of four children will represent Ohio in the annual Mrs. America pageant here.

Mrs. Helen Schuh of Lima, Ohio, was among 50 state winners announced Monday by the Mrs. America Homemaking Council. The council is made up of home economists and representatives of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

She is a teacher at the Nancy Taylor Charm and Finishing School and at Northwestern School of Commerce in Lima. Her husband, F. Niles, is an engineer for the Westinghouse Electric Corp. plant there.

The couple's four children are Frazier, 14, Debbie, 12, Robin, 10, and Lynn, 8.

Two Lima women were among Ohio's three finalists. The other was Mrs. James M. Coolahan. Mrs. David Mitchell of Wintersville (Jefferson County) was the state's third finalist.

Selections were made on the basis of information supplied on contest forms, including recipes, homemaking quizzes and essays. Mrs. Schuh will receive an expense-paid trip and a week's lodging for the pageant April 22-29.

Rep. Bolton Also Questions ARA's News Handling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Oliver P. Bolton, R-Ohio, has joined other House Republicans in questioning the manner in which the Area Redevelopment Administration handles it news releases.

Bolton told ARA Administrator William L. Batt Jr. Monday that in one instance, he was told that approval of a certain project in his district would be announced in a few days and that the congressman would be advised.

"Half an hour later," Bolton said, "the senior senator from Ohio (Sen. Frank J. Lausche) called the newspapers and released the story."

Batt replied that announcements are made to congressional and senatorial offices "as near simultaneously as possible and before public announcements."

Batt and Commerce Secretary Luther H. Hodges appeared before the House Banking Committee seeking more funds for the program to aid depressed areas.

Ex-Ohioan Charged In Scholarship Case

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — James H. Lochary, 30, former assistant dean of students at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, has been charged with embezzling $2,200 in rigged scholarships at Indiana University.

Eight counts of embezzlement were filed Monday in Monroe County Circuit Court after a sophmore student's suspicions led to a state audit. Lochary quit last month while the audit was being made.

Contacted at his home Monday, Lochary said: "I know nothing about this, and I have nothing to say."

Young Attacks Army On Purchasing Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Any idea of purchasing new sites for two Army Reserve centers in Columbus, Ohio, is "a fantastic, unthinkable raid upon our federal treasury," Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, says.

Young told the Senate Monday that the Army is giving serious consideration to such purchases when the Fort Hayes military installation, in the heart of the city, would provide an excellent location.

The Army plans to abandon Fort Hayes in 1965.

U.S. Steel Profits Lowest Since 1945

CLEVELAND (AP)—Profits in the U.S. steel industry, which hit 7.82 per cent of the sales dollar in 1955, dropped last year to their lowest point since 1945, Steel Magazine reported today.

The 1962 average was 4.05 per cent, compared with 3.06 per cent in 1945, Steel reported, and the dollar volume of net profits was the lowest since 1952.

"The profit squeeze was so pronounced in 1962 that even a rise in shipments and dollar volume of sales failed to halt the several-year decline in net profits," the trade publication noted.

The industry's net profit last year was about $582.7 million, compared with $541 million in 1952.

Junior Editors Quiz on POSTAL SERVICE

QUESTION: Why was special delivery mail service started and how does it work?

ANSWER: Ever since Benjamin Franklin became the first American Postmaster General in 1775, consistent efforts have been made to improve the postal service. In 1885, the Post Office Department, wishing to provide fast delivery of important mail, tried out special delivery service. It proved of value, since about a million letters were handled the first year; since then it has been a regular part of the job of a post office.

Suppose you have a letter you want delivered as soon as possible after it reaches the post office near the person addressed. You would put on the regular stamp for first class mail and then add a special delivery stamp, costing 30 cents. When your letter arrives at the post office of the place where it was addressed, an effort would be made to deliver it within two hours. In cities and larger places, special carriers take out special delivery mail, usually traveling by car. If the person addressed lives on a rural delivery route, he or she would be contacted by phone so they could come in to the post office to get the letter. Otherwise, the regular rural carrier will deliver it when he calls at the addressed person's box, but will come up to the door to make sure it is delivered personally.

FOR YOU TO DO: See if you can reply to these questions before you read the answers: (1) is there a faster way to send a letter than by special? Answer: over a long distance, yes, by air mail. (2) Is there even a faster way to send a long distance letter? Answer: yes, by sending it by both air mail and special delivery.

How To Keep Insects Off Tomatoes

Most insects that plague tomatoes can be controlled successfully by making regular spray or dust applications every 7 to 10 days with a general - purpose garden spray or dust.

It's easier to prevent insect damage than to correct a serious infestation later. Read the label and use insecticides according to manufacturer's direction.

Flea beetles are small, black, jumping beetles which eat small round holes in the leaves of newly - set plants. Spray or dust plants before transplanting and repeat treatment in the garden if necessary. Dieldrin, methoxychlor or rotenone are effective in controlling flea beetles.

Cutworms are soft, smooth-bodied larvae, dull gray, brown or black in color, which commonly cut off plants near the soil surface. There are many different kinds which vary in appearance and habits.

Commercially prepared baits are effective when spread over an infested area in the late afternoon (1 lb. per 1000 sq. ft.) Damage also can be prevented by wrapping a 4-inch cardboard collar around the stems. Sprays or dusts containing TDE, Toxaphene, Dieldrin or Heptachlor applied around the base of the plant also give control.

APHIDS commonly attack the growing terminals. These pink and green soft - bodied plant lice suck sap from growing plants. Malathion applied as a spray or dust effectively controls aphids.

Hornworms feed on the leaves. These large (3 to 4 inches long) green worms, with diagonal lines on the side, have a prominent horn on the rear end. Hand-picking these larvae usually gives satisfactory control in the home garden. TDE applied as a spray or dust is the most effective insecticide.

Fruitworms commonly burrow into the developing fruits and feed inside. The greenish - brown worms are usually about 1½ inches long and have light stripes along the sides and back. Collect and destroy infested tomatoes, or apply TDE as a spray or dust when first fruit sets. Repeat 2 or 3 times a 10-day intervals.

Use insecticides at the manufacturer's recommendations.

Fustarium wilt, caused by certain fungi that live in the soil, is a problem frequently encountered where the same garden spot is used for vegetables and flowers year after year.

In addition to the use of resistant varieties mentioned in section on varieties, the tomatoes should not be planted in the same spot in the garden any more often than is necessary. Plant them in one part of the garden one year and in a different part the next.

Blights on tomatoes are of two types, early and late.

Late blight is the more spectacular. It can be very destructive to unsprayed plants during periods of cool, damp weather. Late blight is most likely to occur in late August or September but can appear in late June or July. It causes a rapid, severe defoliation of the plants and a destructive fruit rot.

INFECTED leaves have irregular, grenish - black, water - soaked patches which enlarge rapidly during cool, wet weather. Infected fruits remain solid, but a dark, brownish - green area develops on them. This may cover only a part or all of the surface of the fruit.

Early blight is caused by an entirely different fungus and is often a problem early in the season. However, it may not appear until late in the season.

Although this fungus can infect tomato stems, fruits and leaves, the most usual and conspicuous symptom is irregular, brown, dead areas in the leaflets. These areas usually appear on the oldest leaves first. Infected leaves eventually die and drop off the plant. Defoliation starts at the base of the stem and gradually moves upward.

To prevent losses from tomato blights and other foliage diseases, set the plants where they will be shaded as little as possible, especially during the morning.

In addition, follow a regular and continuous dusting or spraying program. You should start this program about 3 weeks after the plants are set in the garden and continue it throughout the season.

Coldness Varies In Refrigerator

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A drawer - style refrigerator will be on the market soon. But the idea isn't brand new.

Originally conceived by Frank Lloyd Wright and designed and manufactured by Sidney Spielman, it has been serving a housing development in New York for 18 years.

"When Wright asked me to do it, I thought it was a wonderful idea. But there were so many problems involved in building and installing them that I was on the verge of bankruptcy," Spielman says in recalling that original venture.

But now he has improved and will produce the refrigerator, having profited by the experiences of people who have used the first model.

"I returned to see how they liked it and to observe their recommendations. What they needed was a larger than six-cubic-foot model and more storage space for meat and general items," he says.

THE NEW model has four drawers and an ice - cube compartment, Spielman explains — two main drawers and two auxiliaries. There will be an area for cheese, butter and tall bottles, a vegetable bin, meat bin, a freezer section and another compartment for general use.

Each unit has its own temperature. An egg may be kept indefinitely, Spielman claims, by setting the temperature to a proper degree; fruit temperatures are tricky and must be controlled. Meat may be kept a year and a half, he says, at a temperature of from zero to 5 degrees.

The refrigerator will be made in 10, 12 and 14 cubic - foot sizes. They will be less than three-feet square, about counter height. New developments in insulation make it possible to build units smaller.

But there is more to building new equipment than just making a pretty design and manufacturing it, Spielman points out. He knows women wonder why more progress isn't made in the home appliance field.

"Many ideas sound dreamy but are practical. A wall-type, cupboard-like refrigerator unit may sound chic and modern but America's average woman at 5 feet 4 inches would have to climp a step-ladder to reach it. Engineers often think ideas are great, but it takes time to iron out wrinkles. Every product must be field-tested," he says.

SPIELMAN is known for his compact kitchens, a line of refrigerators combined with sinks and draw - pull type burners, and ice cube makers used in playrooms. One unit comprises sink, range, oven and refrigerator in a 48-inch width.

"When a new hotel in New York ordered 2,631 automatic ice cube makers for every bathroom at more than a half-million dollars, I was puzzled. But as it turned out they had surveyed their hotel chain, finding out that 70 per cent of their guests call for ice between 6 and 7:30 in the evening. There just aren't that many bellhops to go around or facilities to accommodate so many rooms. Then, too, people object to waiting for the ice and having to tip the boy for refill."

The ice cube makers are automatic, attached to a water connection, he says, so that maids do not have to refill them.

Spielman visualizes the day when we will have two - refrigerator homes, one in the food area, and another in the entertainment area.

"But there is no need for me in this business unless we come up with something unique," says Spielman, president of the Acme Co.

"We cannot compete with big companies, and we have no desire to sell anything by improving on a handle or adding a little chrome to make last year's model obsolete."

Much of his work is custom order, such as refrigerators designed for Jean Paul Getty, who wanted some that would work at his plant on the Gulf of Persia where it is 110 degrees.

Spielman also has just solved the noise problem of a night-table refrigerator used between two beds at resorts.

Home Should Be Remodeled To Get Most In Livability

Today's home owner is well advised to take an L.Q. test. If he scores low, he is losing money by not getting the full dollar's worth of livability from his home.

According to the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, L.Q., or Livability Quotient, is determined by the amount of square feet of floor space the family actually lives in.

For example, if there are areas where the family spends 30 per cent of its time and others where it only spends 5 per cent, then the relative number of square feet of these areas should correspond roughly with the time spent in them.

When it is realized that homes cost anywhere from $10 to $20 a square foot, plus maintenance and taxes, it's not hard to see that this unused space comes at a high price.

If a house rates a low L.Q. a well-planned remodeling job can often raise the quotient to give the family economical livability. One home owner found that his dining room, which was used only about 10 per cent of the time, was the same size of his adjacent, frequently used living room.

The solution in this case was to remove the wall from between the two rooms and construct a partition which provided the family with a smaller, less formal dining area. At the same time, the living room space was increased.

Hallways also can be space wasters. No more than 10 per cent of a home's square footage should be devoted to halls.

However, no remodeling should be done without professional counsel and without first investigating the family's present and future needs.

The home owner should take into consideration the size of his family today and what he expects it will be in the coming years, how much entertaining he does, and the privacy he and other members of the family desire.

Also careful investigation of the house is necessary so that remodeling can be done with out weakening the structure. Removing a wall may seem an easy thing to do, but it may ultimately affect the structural stability of the house.

Consultation with an architect can insure that the needs and wishes of the home owner will be translated into a remodeling job that will accomplish the desired objectives.

Perhaps The Thief Wanted Protection

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—Sam Rose is pretty touchy about the subject of burglar alarms after thieves stole his alarm system the other night.

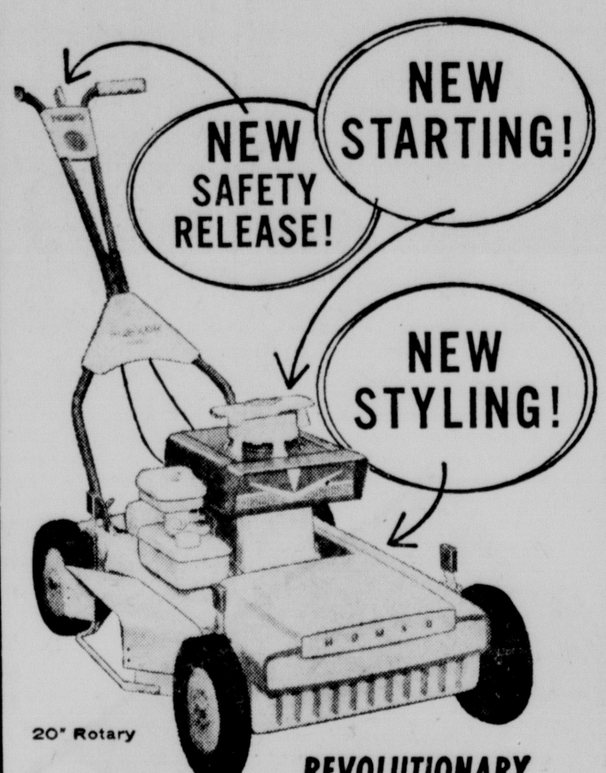

A pianist, Rose works late hours. When he got home in the wee hours of the morning, he found the front door kicked in and his new alarm system gone.

"Strange they didn't take anything else," Rose said. "Maybe they just wanted to put it out of commission and come back later for other stuff."

How To Keep Insects Off Tomatoes

Most insects that plague tomatoes can be controlled successfully by making regular spray or dust applications every 7 to 10 days with a general - purpose garden spray or dust.

It's easier to prevent insect damage than to correct a serious infestation later. Read the label and use insecticides according to manufacturer's direction.

Flea beetles are small, black, jumping beetles which eat small round holes in the leaves of newly - set plants. Spray or dust plants before transplanting and repeat treatment in the garden if necessary. Dieldrin, methoxychlor or rotenone are effective in controlling flea beetles.

Cutworms are soft, smooth-bodied larvae, dull gray, brown or black in color, which commonly cut off plants near the soil surface. There are many different kinds which vary in appearance and habits.

Commercially prepared baits are effective when spread over an infested area in the late afternoon (1 lb. per 1000 sq. ft.) Damage also can be prevented by wrapping a 4-inch cardboard collar around the stems. Sprays or dusts containing TDE, Toxaphene, Dieldrin or Heptachlor applied around the base of the plant also give control.

APHIDS commonly attack the growing terminals. These pink and green soft - bodied plant lice suck sap from growing plants. Malathion applied as a spray or dust effectively controls aphids.

Hornworms feed on the leaves. These large (3 to 4 inches long) green worms, with diagonal lines on the side, have a prominent horn on the rear end. Hand-picking these larvae usually gives satisfactory control in the home garden. TDE applied as a spray or dust is the most effective insecticide.

Fruitworms commonly burrow into the developing fruits and feed inside. The greenish - brown worms are usually about 1½ inches long and have light stripes along the sides and back. Collect and destroy infested tomatoes, or apply TDE as a spray or dust when first fruit sets. Repeat 2 or 3 times a 10-day intervals.

Use insecticides at the manufacturer's recommendations.

Fustarium wilt, caused by certain fungi that live in the soil, is a problem frequently encountered where the same garden spot is used for vegetables and flowers year after year.

In addition to the use of resistant varieties mentioned in section on varieties, the tomatoes should not be planted in the same spot in the garden any more often than is necessary. Plant them in one part of the garden one year and in a different part the next.

Blights on tomatoes are of two types, early and late.

Late blight is the more spectacular. It can be very destructive to unsprayed plants during periods of cool, damp weather. Late blight is most likely to occur in late August or September but can appear in late June or July. It causes a rapid, severe defoliation of the plants and a destructive fruit rot.

INFECTED leaves have irregular, grenish - black, water - soaked patches which enlarge rapidly during cool, wet weather. Infected fruits remain solid, but a dark, brownish - green area develops on them. This may cover only a part or all of the surface of the fruit.

Early blight is caused by an entirely different fungus and is often a problem early in the season. However, it may not appear until late in the season.

Although this fungus can infect tomato stems, fruits and leaves, the most usual and conspicuous symptom is irregular, brown, dead areas in the leaflets. These areas usually appear on the oldest leaves first. Infected leaves eventually die and drop off the plant. Defoliation starts at the base of the stem and gradually moves upward.

To prevent losses from tomato blights and other foliage diseases, set the plants where they will be shaded as little as possible, especially during the morning.

In addition, follow a regular and continuous dusting or spraying program. You should start this program about 3 weeks after the plants are set in the garden and continue it throughout the season.

Coldness Varies In Refrigerator

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A drawer - style refrigerator will be on the market soon. But the idea isn't brand new.

Originally conceived by Frank Lloyd Wright and designed and manufactured by Sidney Spielman, it has been serving a housing development in New York for 18 years.

"When Wright asked me to do it, I thought it was a wonderful idea. But there were so many problems involved in building and installing them that I was on the verge of bankruptcy," Spielman says in recalling that original venture.

But now he has improved and will produce the refrigerator, having profited by the experiences of people who have used the first model.

"I returned to see how they liked it and to observe their recommendations. What they needed was a larger than six-cubic-foot model and more storage space for meat and general items," he says.

THE NEW model has four drawers and an ice - cube compartment, Spielman explains — two main drawers and two auxiliaries. There will be an area for cheese, butter and tall bottles, a vegetable bin, meat bin, a freezer section and another compartment for general use.

Each unit has its own temperature. An egg may be kept indefinitely, Spielman claims, by setting the temperature to a proper degree; fruit temperatures are tricky and must be controlled. Meat may be kept a year and a half, he says, at a temperature of from zero to 5 degrees.

The refrigerator will be made in 10, 12 and 14 cubic - foot sizes. They will be less than three-feet square, about counter height. New developments in insulation make it possible to build units smaller.

But there is more to building new equipment than just making a pretty design and manufacturing it, Spielman points out. He knows women wonder why more progress isn't made in the home appliance field.

"Many ideas sound dreamy but are practical. A wall-type, cupboard-like refrigerator unit may sound chic and modern but America's average woman at 5 feet 4 inches would have to climb a step-ladder to reach it. Engineers often think ideas are great, but it takes time to iron out wrinkles. Every product must be field-tested," he says.

SPIELMAN is known for his compact kitchens, a line of refrigerators combined with sinks and draw - pull type burners, and ice cube makers used in playrooms. One unit comprises sink, range, oven and refrigerator in a 48-inch width.

"When a new hotel in New York ordered 2,631 automatic ice cube makers for every bathroom at more than a half-million dollars, I was puzzled. But as it turned out they had surveyed their hotel chain, finding out that 70 per cent of their guests call for ice between 6 and 7:30 in the evening. There just aren't that many bellhops to go around or facilities to accommodate so many rooms. Then, too, people object to waiting for the ice and having to tip the boy for refill."

The ice cube makers are automatic, attached to a water connection, he says, so that maids do not have to refill them.

Spielman visualizes the day when we will have two - refrigerator homes, one in the food area, and another in the entertainment area.

"But there is no need for me in this business unless we come up with something unique," says Spielman, president of the Acme Co.

"We cannot compete with big companies, and we have no desire to sell anything by improving on a handle or adding a little chrome to make last year's model obsolete."

Much of his work is custom order, such as refrigerators designed for Jean Paul Getty, who wanted some that would work at his plant on the Gulf of Persia where it is 110 degrees.

Speilman also has just solved the noise problem of a night-table refrigerator used between two beds at resorts.

Home Should Be Remodeled To Get Most In Livability

Today's home owner is well advised to take an L.Q. test. If he scores low, he is losing money by not getting the full dollar's worth of livability from his home.

According to the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, L.Q., or Livability Quotient, is determined by the amount of square feet of floor space the family actually lives in.

For example, if there are areas where the family spends 30 per cent of its time and others where it only spends 5 per cent, then the relative number of square feet of these areas should correspond roughly with the time spent in them.

When it is realized that homes cost anywhere from $10 to $20 a square foot, plus maintenance and taxes, it's not hard to see that this unused space comes at a high price.

If a house rates a low L.Q. a well-planned remodeling job can often raise the quotient to give the family economical livability. One home owner found that his dining room, which was used only about 10 per cent of the time, was the same size of his adjacent, frequently used living room.

The solution in this case was to remove the wall from between the two rooms and construct a partition which provided the family with a smaller, less formal dining area. At the same time, the living room space was increased.

Hallways also can be space wasters. No more than 10 per cent of a home's square footage should be devoted to halls.

However, no remodeling should be done without professional counsel and without first investigating the family's present and future needs.

The home owner should take into consideration the size of his family today and what he expects it will be in the coming years, how much entertaining he does, and the privacy he and other members of the family desire.

Also careful investigation of the house is necessary so that remodeling can be done with out weakening the structure. Removing a wall may seem an easy thing to do, but it may ultimately affect the structural stability of the house.

Consultation with an architect can insure that the needs and wishes of the home owner will be translated into a remodeling job that will accomplish the desired objectives.

Perhaps The Thief Wanted Protection

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—Sam Rose is pretty touchy about the subject of burglar alarms after thieves stole his alarm system the other night.

A pianist, Rose works late hours. When he got home in the wee hours of the morning, he found the front door kicked in and his new alarm system gone.

"Strange they didn't take anything else," Rose said. "Maybe they just wanted to put it out of commission and come back later for other stuff."

Stakes, String Will Keep Rows Straight In Garden

Stretch the string tight enough to lift it above the surface of the soil or it will not be straight. Don't forget the row applications of fertilizer.

Most vegetable seeds should be planted very shallow. The smaller seeds, such as lettuce and radishes, should not be planted more than ¼ inch deep. For such small seeds, the hoe or rake handle is an excellent tool for opening the shallow seed furrow. For the larger seeds, such as peas and beans, the proper depth is from ½ to 1 inch. Late plantings may be somewhat deeper than early plantings.

Sow the seed thinly by shaking it from a cut corner of the package or individually dropping the seeds from the fingers. Many gardeners waste seed and make extra work by sowing seed too thick. After seeding, the soil is drawn over the seed, using the corner of a hoe. In case the soil is somewhat cloddy attempt to draw in the finer soil to cover the seed.

Sandy soils should be firmed above the seed in order to hasten germination. On heavy soils here crusting is likely, packing of the soil above the seed increases the danger of crusting. On such soils a shower of irrigation may be necessary to facilitate germination and crusts will be less severe if the soil is not packed.

Late planted seeds sown during the summer may not germinate unless provisions are made to retain moisture. When sowing late seeded crops, water along the rows and cover with a board or a light mulch.

To water such seeds without protection against evaporation will usually result in failure, as the soil will dry rapidly and the young seedlings die before emerging. Uncover the rows when the first plants appear.

Most gardeners sow too much seed. Consequently plants are too close if seed has good germination. Thin root crops when they are still small.

Turnips, for example, need 3 inches between plants and should be thinned before tap roots become fleshy. Carrots should be thinned early and allowed to stand 1 inch apart. Swiss chard can be thinned at first to 3 inches, then, as plants develop, harvest alternate ones. Cucumbers and melons should be thinned to 2 or 3 plants per hill or to stand 12 to 15 inches apart in the row. Beets should be thinned to 2-3 inches apart.

The question arises frequently on how long does seed remain viable. This will depend greatly upon the particular vegetable involved as well as conditions under which the seed is stored. Seed will retain viability much longer when stored under cool, dry conditions as compared with storage that is warm and moist.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. The mortared joints between the tiles on my bathroom walls have become soiled. How can I restore these to their former whiteness?

A. By rubbing along these joints with a cloth moistened with kerosene. Wrap the cloth around a pointed tool.

Q. How can I clean an oil mop?

A. The oil mop can be cleaned by using hot water, ammonia, and a small amount of washing powder.

Q. Is there anything I can do about old inkstains that have penetrated a wood surface?

A. These usually call for professional treatment, although you might try rottenstone or finely powdered pumice mixed to a thin paste with raw or boiled linseed oil. Rub this in the direction of the grain, wiping off with another cloth moistened with plain linseed oil, and repeating as may be necessary.

Q. How can I keep paint brushes soft?

A. After using a paint or varnish, clean thoroughly, then rub with petroleum jelly and put away free from dust. This will keep your brush soft and usable.

Q. Is there any way I can add luster to my linoleum without waxing it?

A. One easy way is to add a little sour milk to your rinse water when you are washing your floor.

Intriguing Walls

THIS BRICK-VENEERED added room blends nicely with the rest of the house. Snugness is insured through use of insulation board sheathing beneath the brick, and acoustical insulation board tile on the ceiling inside.

One of the most frequent dilemmas in home decorating is the "personality - minus" room —four walls, no architectural interest, no focal point to intrigue and hold the eye.

The solution is simple and happy: a handsome wall covering design that acts as a veritable magnet for enchanted eyes and seems to invest the furnishings of the whole room with new color and charm.

These colors are so vital they serve to create an entire center of interest for a room, developing a focal point for decorating and a color line to follow or contrast. Furniture and decorative accessories may be simple and unadorned, since the wall covering would supply all the excitement needed.

In rooms where complete wall covering is not desired, this type of bold design enriches the inner scene with one-wall application. It may be used to add high fashion to modestly priced furnishings, and is a pure sensation in kitchen decor.

Air-Conditioners Step Up Comfort

Plenty of cooling power in a slim, trim, decorator - styled package.

Quiet operation.

There are two basic types of room air-conditioners available today.

The most familiar fits in a window. The other is essentially the same, but is installed through the wall of a house, leaving windows free.

Both come in a wide range of cooling capacities — from under 5,000 BTU to more than 30,000 BTU. British thermal unit (BTU) is the quantity of heat required to raise the temperature of one pound of water one degree Fahrenheit.

The best way for a family to make sure it is buying a room air-conditioner with the right cooling capacity is to turn the problem over to an appliance dealer.

To help him estimate the required cooling capacity, he should be told the measurements of the area to be cooled, the use made of the room, exposure of outside walls, number and size of windows, whether insulation is used, and the type of electric circuits—115 or 230 volts.

The basic tasks of any room air conditioner are to cool the air, circulate and filter it, and to maintain a comfortable realtive humidity.

However, many models provide other features. These include controls to admit fresh air, special systems for directing air flow, and an exhaust cycle that is often used during cooler weather to clear stale air from a room.

Other models are designed with extra capacity to wring excess moisture from the air. These are ideal for damp basement areas.

Enlarged Beds Offer You More Restful Sleeping

Americans are waking up to the fact that they need not only healthful support in a mattress but also more room for truly restful sleeping.

If you're thinking of buying larger bedding for more sleeping comfort, but fear your bedroom may be too small, here's help.

You can still enjoy the benefits of king - size or twin - size bedding by applying one or more of the following tricks, suggested by Ronald J. Shepherd, executive vice president of the Spring Air Co., a leading national bedding group:

Use a metal frame instead of a bedstead to save space. Many people think a footboard helps to hold blankets in place, but actually it has no real purpose and you'll find bedding stays put better with your longer mattress.

If you like the idea of a headboard, you can paint a make-believe one on the wall above the bed or create an illusion with draperies or a row of pictures.

Instead of separating twin beds with an aisle, put them next to each other. You can use a swing-away bed frame to simplify bedmaking.

If a swinging closet or bedroom door takes up too much space, you can replace it with an inexpensive accordion - fold vinyl door.

If a chest of drawers must be crowded out, use underbed storage chests. You'll have room for at least two.

After that, relax and get a good night's sleep.

When you take that roast pork loin out of its pan, make some gravy. Pour off the fat and then spoon back about four tablespoons of it; add 4 tablespoons of flour. Blend with a wooden spoon over low heat. Add two cups of water and cook and stir constantly until thickened.

Americans are waking up to the fact that they need not only healthful support in a mattress but also more room for truly restful sleeping.

If you're thinking of buying larger bedding for more sleeping comfort, but fear your bedroom may be too small, here's help.

You can still enjoy the benefits of king - size or twin - size bedding by applying one or more of the following tricks, suggested by Ronald J. Shepherd, executive vice president of the Spring Air Co., a leading national bedding group:

Use a metal frame instead of a bedstead to save space. Many people think a footboard helps to hold blankets in place, but actually it has no real purpose and you'll find bedding stays put better with your longer mattress.

If you like the idea of a headboard, you can paint a make-believe one on the wall above the bed or create an illusion with draperies or a row of pictures.

Instead of separating twin beds with an aisle, put them next to each other. You can use a swing-away bed frame to simplify bedmaking.

If a swinging closet or bedroom door takes up too much space, you can replace it with an inexpensive accordion - fold vinyl door.

If a chest of drawers must be crowded out, use underbed storage chests. You'll have room for at least two.

After that, relax and get a good night's sleep.

When you take that roast pork loin out of its pan, make some gravy. Pour off the fat and then spoon back about four tablespoons of it; add 4 tablespoons of flour. Blend with a wooden spoon over low heat. Add two cups of water and cook and stir constantly until thickened.

Air-Conditioners Step Up Comfort

Plenty of cooling power in a slim, trim, decorator - styled package.

Quiet operation.

There are two basic types of room air-conditioners available today.

The most familiar fits in a window. The other is essentially the same, but is installed through the wall of a house, leaving windows free.

Both come in a wide range of cooling capacities — from under 5,000 BTU to more than 30,000 BTU. British thermal unit (BTU) is the quantity of heat required to raise the temperature of one pound of water one degree Fahrenheit.

The best way for a family to make sure it is buying a room air-conditioner with the right cooling capacity is to turn the problem over to an appliance dealer.

To help him estimate the required cooling capacity, he should be told the measurements of the area to be cooled, the use made of the room, exposure of outside walls, number and size of windows, whether insulation is used, and the type of electric circuits—115 or 230 volts.

The basic tasks of any room air conditioner are to cool the air, circulate and filter it, and to maintain a comfortable relative humidity.

However, many models provide other features. These include controls to admit fresh air, special systems for directing air flow, and an exhaust cycle that is often used during cooler weather to clear stale air from a room.

Other models are designed with extra capacity to wring excess moisture from the air. These are ideal for damp basement areas.

'Work Triangle' Helps In Kitchen

Kitchens come in a variety of sizes and shapes, but for good down - to - earth planning, they should have one point in common: a compact and efficient work triangle.

A work triangle, a term used by kitchen planning experts, means the proper relation of refrigeration to sink to range.

Recent findings show that the connecting distances from refrigerator to sink to range, should form a triangle with a total distance not to exceed 22 feet — 15 to 20 is even better.

A good basic rule is to allow from 4 to 7 feet between refrigerator and sink, 4 to 6 feet between sink and range and 4 to 9 between range and refrigerator.

EACH appliance area should have ample work surfaces and storage space.

Minimum counter space is considered to be 15 to 18 inches beside the refrigerator for loading and setting out food; 36 inches at the right of the sink, 30 inches on the left (this can be cut down with the use of an electric dishwasher); 25 inches beside or near the range, and 36 inches or more for mixing and food preparation.

Here's how to work out your three basic areas:

Refrigerator - Freezer center: One of the new 2-in-1 combinations with a roomy "zero zone" freezer eliminates the need of shopping more than once a week and provides long - term storage of frozen foods.

Place the refrigerator fairly close to the kitchen door to save steps with incoming foods. Complete the food preparation center with a work counter, and wall and base cabinets.

The cooking center: All your cooking needs are combined now in the new ranges whether you choose a separate built - in oven and surface units, a free - standing range, or one of the latest drop-in, slide-in, or wall-hung models.

Generally, it's wise to put the range against an outside wall to make it easy to vent an exhaust fan over the cooking area.

Blinds And Curtains Need Good Scrubbing

Modern central heating makes it appropriate to paraphrase "where there's smoke, there's fire", to "where there's heat, there'dirt".

It is important to good housekeeping, as well as to the life of curtains, to wash them often during the heating season.

Deeply - embedded soot and dust weaken fibers and further fabric damage results from the strenuous measures necessary to remove deep soil. So laundering often — but lightly — in soap or detergent suds is an inexpensive way to save expensive furnishings.

The weekly slat - by - slat dusting of Venetian blinds needs to be supplemented by an over - all washing at housecleaning time.

Put each blind into the bathtub filled with warm suds; scrub slats, tapes, and cords with a brush; then rinse in clear water or by letting the shower spray down over the blind.

Hang it over the shower rod until dripping stops, then replace it at the window and wipe it with a clean dry cloth to prevent water spots.

Pittsburgh Playhouse Gets Outside Help

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Small theaters often need outside help to put on plays. The Pittsburgh Playhouse certainly had it for its production of "Anna Kleiber."

Dania Talborg, who had the title role, is from Latvia. Another actor, Laszlo Bogi, was born in Hungary and a third, Ralph Scarpino, is from Italy. Tom Peacock, the director, is a native of Canada.

The play, which takes place in Spain, France and Germany, was written by Alfonso Sastre, a Spaniard, and was first produced in Greece.

DECORATING with books is a colorful and inexpensive way to add interest to a table or desk setting. Hummel figurine bookends will add their delicate charm to the setting and keep the volumes neatly in place, too.

Baby's Nursery Can Take On A Look Of Luxury

The word luxury has a special meaning when it's applied to baby's nursery.

In this haven, luxury consists of the enriching things a baby live with most happily — pretty colors, soft fabrics, fresh air and cleanliness. With these as her guides, mother can often use thoughtful planning in lieu of dollars.

Three or four pieces of furniture are sufficient. Let the crib be as sentimental in design as you yearn for. But the chest of drawers has a long life ahead and should be ample and conservative enough in design to serve in later years.

A daybed is an excellent piece for the overnight baby tender — and the family will always have use for it, anyway. Add one adequately large lamp, perhaps a small chair, and the basic furnishings are complete.

And for the beds, seersucker, terrycloth or chenille are excellent machine - washables that will need no ironing. If a rug is used, the wisest choice is a small throw rug that can also go into the washer.

Chandeliers In Comeback

From the edge of extinction, chandeliers have returned to add light, charm and beauty to dining rooms.

The surge is due both to the generally increased acceptance of installed lighting fixtures in recent years and the trend to bring formality back into the dining room.

Furniture manufacturers and interior designers are combining to separate the dining room from the informality that characterizes modern living.

Chandeliers are becoming a key part of the more formal ensemble. They co-ordinate furnishings, add focal high lights, provide light that flatters diners and add sparkle to glassware and tableware.

Home owners have a wider selection of chandeliers than ever. According to the Home Lighting Institute, there is a chandelier to complement any style or period of furnishings and to accommodate any decorating budget.

Most chandeliers today are shielded and designed to provide comfortable, glare-free light. Discomfort was a principal shortcoming of earlier models.

These are low-wattage bulbs of various types that create dramatic effect but little light. Decorative chandeliers should be supplemented with other light sources.

Wall sconces that match the chandelier help create a comfortable level of soft, relaxing illumination. A lighted cornice or valance on one or more walls helps provide lighting balance in areas that use decorative chandeliers.

Save Wall Space

If kitchen cabinet space is limited, use predecorated pegboard panels for hanging shelves or individual pots and pans. Utensils and condiments will be close at hand and will occupy little space.

Tools To Be Used In Garden Rest Upon Plot's Size

The tools to be used in the garden will depend mostly upon the size of the garden.

The smallest garden will require a spading fork, hoe, rake, trowel and a piece of string for laying out the row. A good hand duster or sprayer for the application of insecticides and fungicides is essential. The larger garden will require a good wheel hoe or hand cultivator.

In addition, there are many small tools which may, although not essential, contribute to the convenience and ease of garden cultivation.

In the large farm garden, where space is not a factor, it is often convenient to space the rows so the regular farm tools may be used in cultivation.

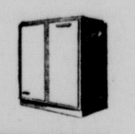

In such gardens, the land is plowed and fitted by the regular farm tools and the rows marked out with a corn planter or marking device. The vegetables are planted in the marked rows and can be cultivated by the use of the same horse or tractor cultivators used on the farm.

Tips Are Offered On Home Garden

(The following article was prepared by E. C. Wittmeyer and W. M. Brooks of the Agricultural Extension Service at Ohio State University.)

Home gardening is truly a satisfying experience. On many farms, the home vegetable garden produces a higher return per acre than any other activity.

The financial value will depend upon the size of area available, the care given to it and the amount of planning to produce a continuous supply of vegetables during the growing season. Also, home preservation by freezing, canning or storing will help to increase the value of the garden to the family. Many families report that their garden is worth $100 or more per year.

The garden is the one place on the farm where the entire family can work together — in the planning, planting, cultivating and harvesting. It is impossible to measure this factor in dollar value.

TOWN AND city gardens also furnish a useful recreation and an excellent experience for young and old alike. Thousands of young people in Ohio and other states have found a great satisfaction from carrying a garden project in the local 4-H Club.

In addition, most home gardeners agree that, "home - grown" vegetables taste better. However, successful gardens do not just happen; they are the result of proper planting, good management and careful workmanship.

The first essential of a good garden is a good soil, loamy in texture, well drained and free from shade. Sandy loam soils are considered ideal because they drain well and are easy to work.

Very coarse sands are usually drouthy and it is difficult to maintain a high state of fertility. Very heavy soils are difficult to work and remain wet until late in the spring. Many town and city gardens do not have the ideal soil. However, it is possible to grow a good garden on practically any soil type, providing it is well-drained and properly managed.

THE GARDEN should be close to the house, so odd moments may be used in growing and harvesting the crops. The availability of water is worth considering as irrigation will pay big dividends during dry weather.

Every garden should be "planted" on paper. The plan will insure the right amount of every desired vegetable. It also will save on the seed order. If space is limited, the most desired crops can be planned for, or if space is unlimited, the size of the garden determined. With the garden on paper, the variety wanted and the quantity of seed required can be listed. In that way, seed orders will be easy to make.

The garden plan will serve as a guide during the planting season. Early maturing crops should be planted adjacent to each other, so that a worthwile area will become available for succession crops to follow. Row spacings and distances in the row should be included. Then, there will be no mistakes at planting time.

THE CROPS to be grown should depend entirely upon the needs and tastes of the family. Vegetables the family will eat should be grown. If space is limited, crops which are most productive for the space available will be first choice.

Sweet corn and the vine crops, for example, will require large amounts of space and to plant them in a very small garden would not be practical. They may be included, however, if the family demands them.

Perennial crops like asparagus and rhubarb should be planted along one side of the garden where they will not interfere with cultivation later on.

These crops will remain in the garden for four to five to as long as 20 years. Tall growing crops should be planted at one side of the garden where they will not shade smaller crops. Grouping together crops that mature early also will help in planning for later crops where more area may be needed. Allow ample space between rows for convenient cultivation.

Special plantings should be made to provide the necessary raw produce for home canning or freezing. To depend upon surpluses for preservation is unwise, since the amounts available may be so small they will hardly be worthwhile. By the time the vegetables become "surplus" their quality usually has deteriorated.

Pilot 'Foggy' After Being Lost In Fog

"Where am I?" he asked as he walked into a strange building.

"It gives you a funny feeling when someone walks in out of the fog and asks where he is," said Mrs. Loretta Grossman, psychiatric technician of Porterville State (mental) Hospital's Ward 12.

"It's even funnier when he tells you he has a plane outside."

Those hard - cooked eggs you are planning to serve for lunch will taste extra good if you add a cheese sauce and a garnish of pimiento strips.

A CONFECTION of pink and white is this bedroom planned for sisters, aged nine and eleven. Though it appears as fragile as the bubbles in a strawberry soda, it is as practical as any children's room must be. Everything is washable — from the white walls, sheer curtains, bedspreads, and carpeting to the pink rattan headboards on the beds. The curtains are hung in several panels for easy laundering.

RATTAN LOVE SEATS, cushioned on buoyant foam rubber lend an airy springtime touch to a tired room. Designer Larry Peabody has styled them so that they will dress up a living room or a garden room four seasons of the year. The curved love seats can be used singly or in pairs to create a banquette. The imported rattan slings are cradled in handsome walnut frames, and the total effect is light, airy.

Furniture Should 'Grow' Along With The Children

While irresistible to parents and doting relatives, many of the designs in children's furniture and accessories do not appeal to the youngsters themselves.

A survey among first-graders showed that bright or deep colors, rather than the typical pastel shades, are most appealing to the small fry. And many of today's youngsters scorn traditional nursery designs.

Children outgrow these designs so fast that it's more economical to shop for items that can "grow" along with the child and his interests.

When it comes to buying headboards, bureaus and other basic items to be used indefinitely, stay away from the ones with representational motifs.

Bedspreads, curtains and other accessories add sufficient color and can be changed inexpensively from time to time. Even in shopping for a child's lamp, it's wise to select a simple design that you can decorate and alter with your child's expanding interests.

Instead of buying a lamp with a Mother Goose design, for example, pick a simple unadorned base with a white shade that can be trimmed with fabric motifs such as a calico cat.

Make a pattern of the calico cat before cutting the fabric. Then put the fabric cut-outs on the shade so that the tails criss-cross and fasten with the invisible tape.

It's important to use this tape because it will keep the edges of the fabric from fraying and, since the tape is permanent, it will not turn yellow or come unstuck. Be sure to tape all the edges securely.

Then take three pieces of black wool and tape them to the cat's face for whiskers. Ink in large dots for eyes. That's all there is to it.

You needn't be limited to this calico cat design. It's just one suggestion. A boy might prefer other animals or car, train or tin soldier shades.

Planters Will Ad Touch Of Nature

In many new homes, planting areas have become so much a part of the over-all scheme that interior designers include them in the plans from the outset.

But there are less extreme ways to summerize every room of your home or apartment.

Some glass shelves in the kitchen, living room or hall window can be decked with trailing ivy, philodendron or other small plants.

The bathroom is an ideal spot for growing exotic orchids because they thrive on heat and humidity.

Flowering plants also are welcome in the middle of winter and they make ideal house gifts.

Clean Brass Safely

Dirt and tarnish can be removed from brass - finished hardware without destroying the antique finish by brushing on a mixture of vinegar and salt. Follow with a thorough washing and rinsing.

Wipe Off Grease

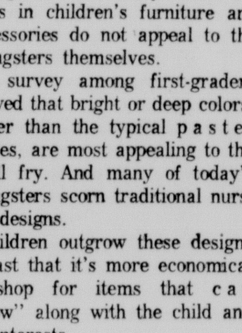

Protect the wall behind a stove from grease spatters and food stains by giving the clean wall thin coats of white shellac. Spatters and stains can then be removed with a damp cloth.

Tips Are Offered On Home Garden

(The following article was prepared by E. C. Wittmeyer and W. M. Brooks of the Agricultural Extension Service at Ohio State University.)

Home gardening is truly a satisfying experience. On many farms, the home vegetable garden produces a higher return per acre than any other activity.

The financial value will depend upon the size of area available, the care given to it and the amount of planning to produce a continuous supply of vegetables during the growing season. Also, home preservation by freezing, canning or storing will help to increase the value of the garden to the family. Many families report that their garden is worth $100 or more per year.

The garden is the one place on the farm where the entire family can work together — in the planning, planting, cultivating and harvesting. It is impossible to measure this factor in dollar value.

TOWN AND city gardens also furnish a useful recreation and an excellent experience for young and old alike. Thousands of young people in Ohio and other states have found a great satisfaction from carrying a garden project in the local 4-H Club.

In addition, most home gardeners agree that, "home - grown" vegetables taste better. However, successful gardens do not just happen; they are the result of proper planting, good management and careful workmanship.

The first essential of a good garden is a good soil, loamy in texture, well drained and free from shade. Sandy loam soils are considered ideal because they drain well and are easy to work.

Very coarse sands are usually drouthy and it is difficult to maintain a high state of fertility. Very heavy soils are difficult to work and remain wet until late in the spring. Many town and city gardens do not have the ideal soil. However, it is possible to grow a good garden on practically any soil type, providing it is well-drained and properly managed.

THE GARDEN should be close to the house, so odd moments may be used in growing and harvesting the crops. The availability of water is worth considering as irrigation will pay big dividends during dry weather.

Every garden should be "planted" on paper. The plan will insure the right amount of every desired vegetable. It also will save on the seed order. If space is limited, the most desired crops can be planned for, or if space is unlimited, the size of the garden determined. With the garden on paper, the variety wanted and the quantity of seed required can be listed. In that way, seed orders will be easy to make.

The garden plan will serve as a guide during the planting season. Early maturing crops should be planted adjacent to each other, so that a worthwile area will become available for succession crops to follow. Row spacings and distances in the row should be included. Then, there will be no mistakes at planting time.

THE CROPS to be grown should depend entirely upon the needs and tastes of the family. Vegetables the family will eat should be grown. If space is limited, crops which are most productive for the space available will be first choice.

Sweet corn and the vine crops, for example, will require large amounts of space and to plant them in a very small garden would not be practical. They may be included, however, if the family demands them.

Perennial crops like asparagus and rhubarb should be planted along one side of the garden where they will not interfere with cultivation later on.

These crops will remain in the garden for four to five to as long as 20 years. Tall growing crops should be planted at one side of the garden where they will not shade smaller crops. Grouping together crops that mature early also will help in planning for later crops where more area may be needed. Allow ample space between rows for convenient cultivation.

Special plantings should be made to provide the necessary raw produce for home canning or freezing. To depend upon surpluses for preservation is unwise, since the amounts available may be so small they will hardly be worthwhile. By the time the vegetables become "surplus" their quality usually has deteriorated.

Pilot 'Foggy' After Being Lost In Fog

"Where am I?" he asked as he walked into a strange building.

"It gives you a funny feeling when someone walks in out of the fog and asks where he is," said Mrs. Loretta Grossman, psychiatric technician of Porterville State (mental) Hospital's Ward 12.

"It's even funnier when he tells you he has a plane outside."

Those hard - cooked eggs you are planning to serve for lunch will taste extra good if you add a cheese sauce and a garnish of pimiento strips.

A CONFECTION of pink and white is this bedroom planned for sisters, aged nine and eleven. Though it appears as fragile as the bubbles in a strawberry soda, it is as practical as any children's room must be. Everything is washable — from the white walls, sheer curtains, bedspreads, and carpeting to the pink rattan headboards on the beds. The curtains are hung in several panels for easy laundering.

RATTAN LOVE SEATS, cushioned on buoyant foam rubber lend an airy springtime touch to a tired room. Designer Larry Peabody has styled them so that they will dress up a living room or a garden room four seasons of the year. The curved love seats can be used singly or in pairs to create a banquette. The imported rattan slings are cradled in handsome walnut frames, and the total effect is light, airy.

Furniture Should 'Grow' Along With The Children

While irresistible to parents and doting relatives, many of the designs in children's furniture and accessories do not appeal to the youngsters themselves.

A survey among first-graders showed that bright or deep colors, rather than the typical pastel shades, are most appealing to the small fry. And many of today's youngsters scorn traditional nursery designs.

Children outgrow these designs so fast that it's more economical to shop for items that can "grow" along with the child and his interests.

When it comes to buying headboards, bureaus and other basic items to be used indefinitely, stay away from the ones with representational motifs.

Bedspreads, curtains and other accessories add sufficient color and can be changed inexpensively from time to time. Even in shopping for a child's lamp, it's wise to select a simple design that you can decorate and alter with your child's expanding interests.

Instead of buying a lamp with a Mother Goose design, for example, pick a simple unadorned base with a white shade that can be trimmed with fabric motifs such as a calico cat.

Make a pattern of the calico cat before cutting the fabric. Then put the fabric cut-outs on the shade so that the tails criss-cross and fasten with the invisible tape.

It's important to use this tape because it will keep the edges of the fabric from fraying and, since the tape is permanent, it will not turn yellow or come unstuck. Be sure to tape all the edges securely.

Then take three pieces of black wool and tape them to the cat's face for whiskers. Ink in large dots for eyes. That's all there is to it.

You needn't be limited to this calico cat design. It's just one suggestion. A boy might prefer other animals or car, train or tin soldier shades.

Planters Will Ad Touch Of Nature

In many new homes, planting areas have become so much a part of the over-all scheme that interior designers include them in the plans from the outset.

But there are less extreme ways to summerize every room of your home or apartment.

Some glass shelves in the kitchen, living room or hall window can be decked with trailing ivy, philodendron or other small plants.

The bathroom is an ideal spot for growing exotic orchids because they thrive on heat and humidity.

Flowering plants also are welcome in the middle of winter and they make ideal house gifts.

Clean Brass Safely

Dirt and tarnish can be removed from brass - finished hardware without destroying the antique finish by brushing on a mixture of vinegar and salt. Follow with a thorough washing and rinsing.

Wipe Off Grease

Protect the wall behind a stove from grease spatters and food stains by giving the clean wall thin coats of white shellac. Spatters and stains can then be removed with a damp cloth.

Your House Will Reflect Loving Care Lavished On It

Homes, in a sense, are like women. A little paint and some new draperies can do wonders for their looks.

From the amount of money spent each year on home improvement (one recent estimate was $750 per U.S. family), it would seem that the home gets its annual facelift even if the lady of the house has to scrimp and save to do it.

Some home improvement projects are the outcome of careful planning for the family's needs. Often the home owner finds it less costly to add to his present home than to buy a larger one. Other projects are the result of a decision to sell.

SPRUCING UP a house before placing it on the market does pay off. Recently a survey taken in three suburban counties showed that 15 per cent of home owners who did a major interior and exterior house-painting before selling, realized from 8 to 12 per cent more than the amount received for comparable dwellings without fresh paint.

Sometimes, though, a home becomes a den of flying sawdust simply because pop got some power tools for his birthday. Whether his efforts result in "improvement" is debatable. But, undoubtedly, some changes are made.

There should be a raft of do-it-yourself jobs coming up soon. Power tool manufacturers claim sales are ahead 30 per cent for the first 10 months of this year, compared with the same period a year ago.

Last year $10 billion was spent on remodeling and repairs, and such a goodly amount should certainly be spent wisely.

Even the experienced do-it-yourselfer shouldn't attempt a structural remodeling job without first consulting an architect. You may want to solve the problem of two tiny, impractical rooms by knocking down the wall between. But unless you check first with an expert, you may damage the structure of your house.

CHECK carefully, too, before you contract for a building or repair job. Be sure that the price quoted covers everything you've been led to believe will be done.

Sometimes modifications alter the price, and you find to your dismay that your final bill is more than you had expected.

Furnishings and appliances take another big chunk out of the budget of American families. Home fashion is now a $47 billion a year industry.

Turn mom loose in the appliance department and she'll give up the idea of a new fur coat. But that won't save any money.

For every squeak in the old refrigerator will be magnified in her ears from that day on, until she's sure it won't last another month. And that beautiful pink one in the store would match the wallpaper perfectly.

At a recent association meeting it was suggested that carpet salesmen should learn more about the way women think if they want to build up sales.

If they've done their "home work", they'll point out to mom that the floor is the first wall of a room and that the room should be decorated from the floor up. You may then find yourself paying for a whole new living room, when all you needed was a new rug.

If that happens, pop, even the score by insisting that watering the lawn is too time-consuming a job to face year after year and you must have an underground watering system. An installation for the lawn area of an average-sized home lot only costs between $500 and $700.

In the home improvement area, it is possible to make a silk purse out of a sow's ear. All you need is the money!

IF YOUR KITCHEN has been looking dull lately, make it bright and distinctive with smart decorating touches you can create. Select a brilliant accent color in adhesive covering, of washable quality, especially designed to enliven your kitchen. Then decide on a theme—a garden, perhaps. Draw an outline of a flower on the backing, cut it out, remove backing and press the design into place.

It's Important To 'Tag' Your Water Pipes

CHICAGO — Knowing where and how to shut off the water for the entire house or for any part of it can be mighty important in an emergency.

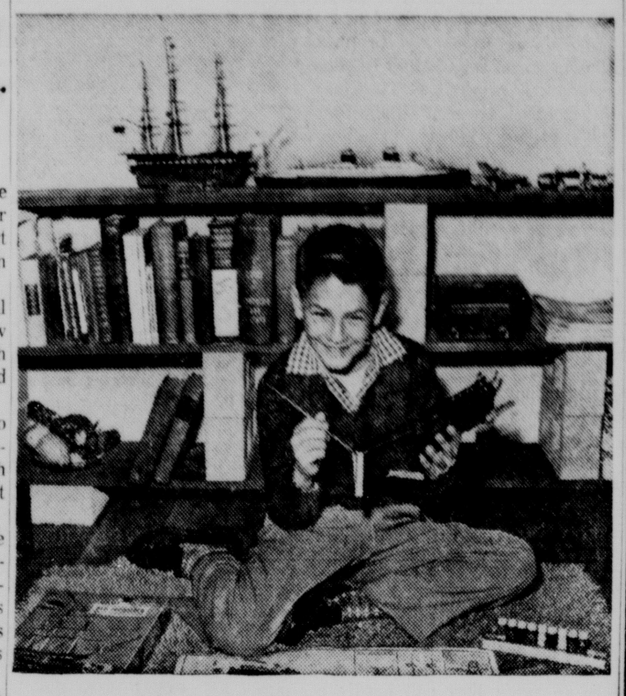

That's why it is well for all members of the family to know where the valves are and in which direction they should be turned to shut off the water.

One way of identification is to have a tag on each valve indicating its function; that is, which fixtures or group of fixtures it controls.

Valve - identifying tags may be obtained from plumbing contractors, the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau points out. Most plumbing contractors will be glad to help home owners identify their valves.

Obviously the most important valve in the house is the main shutoff valve for the entire plumbing system. This valve, generally located on the house side of the water meter, usually has a handle like a wheel.

If this valve has not been turned for many years, it may require a wrench to operate it. Because the free and easy operation of this valve in case of emergency is so important, it is advisable to place a few drops of thin oil around the valve handle once or twice a year, and then to turn it several times.

Paintings Put Life In Room

First, study and analyze the room theme and the total effect to be achieved. Then decide which wall to use and how much area should be covered.

After having made these decisions, study the object to be framed. Is the picture or painting small? Does it need a wide mat to expand its size? Is it large? Then it should have a heavy frame to emphasize its importance.

Would the object look better in a painted frame? If so, use a color in the picture for the frame. If it would look better in a shadow box, the background should be painted or perhaps lined in velvet. And finally, what about grouping?

Having studied all the aspects of the problem, here are some suggestions from Mrs. Edith Nivel of Gallery 63, Inc., a New York-Rome art gallery devoted to exhibiting the works of world-noted painters and sculptors:

Mat pictures imaginatively. Use colored mats, even fabric, instead of paper, where appropriate. Try a circular or oval opening in a rectangular frame.

Line shadow boxes in black or in color, or use painted backgrounds to enhance and display antiques or curios.

One painting can be specifically pinpointed or several paintings and prints can be arranged either freely or symetrically, depending on personal preference.

Plan Cleaning!

These Tips Will Make Work Easier

Spring housecleaning does not have to be the frantic, time-consuming chore usually faced at this time of year, if home-makers will only take the advice of one of the biggest house cleaners of them all.

After 20 years experience cleaning and maintaining more than six million square feet of space in the world's largest city, the maintenance engineers of Kinney Service Corp. in New York have developed commercial cleaning procedures easily adaptable, with minor changes, to the average home or apartment.

At home, this means packing a cart full of the items which will be used, an apron with large pockets for extra dustcloths and paper bags for emptying wastebaskets and ash trays. Be sure, too, that you have the proper tools and appliances to insure quick, easy cleaning. Here are some useful tips:

1. Clean all glasswork — pictures, windows and mirrors — at the same time. Then wash and wax window sills to make periodic sponging more effective.

2. Slip an old sock on each hand; apply furniture polish with one and wipe with the other.

3. To spread liquid furniture polish more evenly, insert a clothes sprinkler top into the bottle neck.

4. Rinse floors thoroughly before waxing to prevent traces of soap or detergent from dulling the finish.

6. Mix warm water and water conditioner to wash down bathroom tiles. To make tiles shine, dry with a towel.

7. To clean lamps, disconnect cord first and run it through a soapy sponge. Remove bulbs, wipe with wet rag; dry thoroughly. A sudsy cloth will clean most lamp bases. Fabric shades can be cleaned in a tubful of warm suds, but coated, glass fiber paper or parchment shades should be vacuumed, washed with "dry" soapsuds on a sponge, rinsed with a damp cloth and wiped dry.

8. Cotton-tipped swabs clean kitchen range buttons and the number plates under telephone dials.

A Pile Of Chairs

Proper Lighting Serves 4 Ways

The four types — general, task, accent and decorative lighting — increase the use of available space, add to the enjoyment of decorative and architectural beauty and accommodate the widest range of activities.

It balances harsh concentrations of light and enlarges a room by lighting perimeters and corners, often lost in shadows created by local lighting. General lighting increases visual comfort and contributes to the decorating scheme by maintaining color prominence and emphasizing patterns, textures and designs of furnishings.

Task lighting is the local light source necessary for quick, accurate and comfortable seeing.

These Tips Will Make Work Easier

Spring housecleaning does not have to be the frantic, time-consuming chore usually faced at this time of year, if home-makers will only take the advice of one of the biggest house cleaners of them all.

After 20 years experience cleaning and maintaining more than six million square feet of space in the world's largest city, the maintenance engineers of Kinney Service Corp. in New York have developed commercial cleaning procedures easily adaptable, with minor changes, to the average home or apartment.

At home, this means packing a cart full of the items which will be used, an apron with large pockets for extra dustcloths and paper bags for emptying wastebaskets and ash trays. Be sure, too, that you have the proper tools and appliances to insure quick, easy cleaning. Here are some useful tips:

1. Clean all glasswork — pictures, windows and mirrors — at the same time. Then wash and wax window sills to make periodic sponging more effective.

2. Slip an old sock on each hand; apply furniture polish with one and wipe with the other.

3. To spread liquid furniture polish more evenly, insert a clothes sprinkler top into the bottle neck.

4. Rinse floors thoroughly before waxing to prevent traces of soap or detergent from dulling the finish.

6. Mix warm water and water conditioner to wash down bathroom tiles. To make tiles shine, dry with a towel.

7. To clean lamps, disconnect cord first and run it through a soapy sponge. Remove bulbs, wipe with wet rag; dry thoroughly. A sudsy cloth will clean most lamp bases. Fabric shades can be cleaned in a tubful of warm suds, but coated, glass fiber paper or parchment shades should be vacuumed, washed with "dry" soapsuds on a sponge, rinsed with a damp cloth and wiped dry.

8. Cotton-tipped swabs clean kitchen range buttons and the number plates under telephone dials.

A Pile Of Chairs

One way to solve the seating problem for guests is to purchase a stack of plastic shell chairs, upholstered in foam rubber, which fit together in a pile when not in use.

It's Important To 'Tag' Your Water Pipes

CHICAGO — Knowing where and how to shut off the water for the entire house or for any part of it can be mighty important in an emergency.

That's why it is well for all members of the family to know where the valves are and in which direction they should be turned to shut off the water.

One way of identification is to have a tag on each valve indicating its function; that is, which fixtures or group of fixtures it controls.

Valve - identifying tags may be obtained from plumbing contractors, the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau points out. Most plumbing contractors will be glad to help home owners identify their valves.

Obviously the most important valve in the house is the main shutoff valve for the entire plumbing system. This valve, generally located on the house side of the water meter, usually has a handle like a wheel.

If this valve has not been turned for many years, it may require a wrench to operate it. Because the free and easy operation of this valve in case of emergency is so important, it is advisable to place a few drops of thin oil around the valve handle once or twice a year, and then to turn it several times.

Proper Lighting Serves 4 Ways

The four types — general, task, accent and decorative lighting — increase the use of available space, add to the enjoyment of decorative and architectural beauty and accommodate the widest range of activities.

It balances harsh concentrations of light and enlarges a room by lighting perimeters and corners, often lost in shadows created by local lighting. General lighting increases visual comfort and contributes to the decorating scheme by maintaining color prominence and emphasizing patterns, textures and designs of furnishings.

Task lighting is the local light source necessary for quick, accurate and comfortable seeing.

Paintings Put Life In Room

First, study and analyze the room theme and the total effect to be achieved. Then decide which wall to use and how much area should be covered.

After having made these decisions, study the object to be framed. Is the picture or painting small? Does it need a wide mat to expand its size? Is it large? Then it should have a heavy frame to emphasize its importance.

Would the object look better in a painted frame? If so, use a color in the picture for the frame. If it would look better in a shadow box, the background should be painted or perhaps lined in velvet. And finally, what about grouping?

Having studied all the aspects of the problem, here are some suggestions from Mrs. Edith Nivel of Gallery 63, Inc., a New York-Rome art gallery devoted to exhibiting the works of world-noted painters and sculptors:

Mat pictures imaginatively. Use colored mats, even fabric, instead of paper, where appropriate. Try a circular or oval opening in a rectangular frame.

Line shadow boxes in black or in color, or use painted backgrounds to enhance and dispiay antiques or curios.

One painting can be specifically pinpointed or several paintings and prints can be arranged either freely or symetrically, depending on personal preference.

Roof's Color Is Important

When one house looks better than its neighbors, but you can't quite figure out why, check its color scheme.

With a wide pallete of colors available today in both exterior paints and roofing materials, the appearance of any home can be improved and given individuality wiathout making architectural changes.

Since the roof normally is the largest visible exterior area of a house, it's color is the most important. It should harmonize with both the landscape and other exterior colors.

Many of them harmonize with a variety of colors, so that the home owner can change other exterior colors completely when the house is repainted, without causing a jarring note.

Since white and pastel asphalt shingles help keep a house cool by bouncing the sun off without causing glare, they are a good choice for sunny locations.

They also help make a low house look higher and add a light modern look. Darker colors are used with Colonial or traditional architecture. Another choice is a blend of different tones of one color or a combination of several.

To avoid a cluttered look, color consultants advise home owners to use no more than four exterior colors on roof, siding, trim and accent points such as entrance door and shutters. Each color should be a different value—lighter or darker than the others.

Good Paint Job Helps When Replacing Steps

By DOUGLAS TUOMEY

As many suburban and country home owners know, wood steps have a habit of roting away in spite of seasonal painting and general upkeep.

To have them replaced is an expensive job. The truth of the matter is that in 90 out of 100 cases the rotting of the steps is caused by a common oversight: when the steps were built, they were not painted on the underside where dampness is always present.

It is more important to paint the underside than it is to paint the top of the steps, since sun and wind can get at the top and dry it.

The thing that makes step replacement an easy job for the amateur repairman is that he has a perfect pattern to follow in the old steps.

There is no estimating to be done regarding the number of steps, the slope of the carriage, or the height of the risers. It is all there in the old steps, which can be pried apart and new lumber cut to the exact measurements. A very simple operation.

When the new lumber has been cut, the next move is to paint each piece separately and thoroughly with heavy, outdoor paint. It is particularly important to paint the butts or ends which are freshly sawed. When this coat has dried, a second coat should be applied to the surfaces which will be the underside.

In cases where the bottom of the steps rested upon posts sunk in the ground, the home owner may be surprised to find them solid and sound.

This will be because they are either locust or cypress posts. They can be used as they stand, and probably will be good for another 50 years. If they are rotted away, they should be pulled out and replaced with cement blocks sunk to ground level as a footing for the sloping carriage.

A BATH CART provides a mobile form of towel storage. You can also use it to hold beauty tools. Just roll the cart around the bath or dressing room, and everything is at your fingertips to make good grooming easy.

Tips Offered For Creating Light Moods

With millions-of dollars-being spent annually to redecorate and refurnish homes across the country, homemakers often fall one step short of developing the oasis of good living they are seeking.

They overlook the effect on the most modest furnishings of well-placed, efficient lighting fixtures and lamps of the proper colors.

Should you plan to utilize fluorescent fixtures in valance or cornice lighting, select lamps of the proper color for the mood you intend to create.

For instance, if your room features reds, natural white fluorescents will create rich, vibrant tones.

Deluxe warm white lamps will provide bright, rich coloring, but with less depth of tone than natural white. Under a warm white fluorescent lamp, the colors will be clear and bright, with a slightly brown cast.

If pinks and tans are your favorite shades, natural white fluorescents will bring out warmth and richness.

Under deluxe cool white, clarity and coolness are featured, while soft white will emphasize the violet - purple tones and make the tans and pinks appear brighter. Incandescent tones will make the tans and pinks slightly warmer and deeper.

In the yellow family, natural white will bring out light bright tones. Warm white accents the green - yellow and warm beige colors, while the deluxe cool white will make the colors dark and rich in appearance.

Greens are at their best under the natural white light, which makes them clear and cool, but tends to give a bluish cast to the colors. Cool white will make the blue-greens clear, tending toward gray.

Here's Instant Icing

Now, even the amateur homemaker can decorate a cake with just the press of a button. A new product, push-button cake icing, comes in three colors and four tip designs.

Let The Chips Fall

A new machine will shred to chips any unwanted tree stumps on our lawn. You can cart away the chips or toss them on the compost pile where they become grade-A humus in a year or so.

Quick Dressing

To prepare a quick dressing for coleslaw, mix undiluted evaporated milk with vinegar and sugar. To get the blend you prefer, taste as you go along.

DECORATION - CONSCIOUS homemakers are celebrating the advent of a new era in the design of entertainment units—cabinets that are at home in period rooms, whether the period be Danish Modern, French Provincial, Louis XVI, English Regency, Early American or contemporary. The unit shown here is French Provincial.

NOW'S THE TIME to give your cooking a lift by checking all your plots and pans for sign of wear and inefficiency. Replacing old worn utensils with new ones of fast-even-heating aluminum is a wise move to insure easier cooking.

IF THE CHILDREN climb the walls on rainy days and the family as a whole needs added living space, give thought to turning a little-used porch into the sort of room that can serve a wide variety of useful purposes. This multi-purpose room shows how a porch can be given a new lease on life with imaginative design and practical materials. Washable ceiling tiles and sturdy vinyl-asbestos flooring make upkeep simple.

'Read The Instructions,' Homemakers Are Urged

Say, for example, your disposer, doesn't work. Although newest models will grind anything, you must follow directions carefully.

Chicken bones, for example, splinter easily into small fragments and need plenty of cold water flowing during and after grinding to wash these fragments away so they won't jam the impeller.

A switch mechanism will shut off the disposer automatically when it's overloaded. Many times homemakers request service when all they need do is press a reset button.

New dishwashers have improved loading, special cycles for pots and pans and heat boosting units, so today's homemaker needs to read her user book carefully to get the most help from this kitchen wonder.

One typical complaint is of leaking. First question asked is "What detergent do you use and how much?" Many times the operator finds out the consumer is using a clothes washing detergent or too much detergent, either of which can cause leaking.

Newer models have a dual-wattage heat booster system which automatically heats incoming water for the final rinse 165 degrees for best possible santizing and drying. A pushbutton selector makes it optional to use this heat booster during a wash cycle also.

When the heat booster is heating the water, the machine is silent, for about 15 minutes or longer, depending upon incoming water temperature. This would be explained in the instructions.

Since homemakers have been using ovens for years, they are inclined to take for granted their knowledge of the working of new controls.

Laundering Tip

Cleansing Items

What should go into the medicine chest? A doctor recommends including a cake of soap and a scrubbing brush to cleanse skin immediately after a minor wound.

Illusion Of Space

Give a compact room the illusion of spaciousness by matching the window shade cloth and the valance with the same fabric and color.

Some Custom Builders Get Stuck With Plans

Builders of custom - designed houses are concerned about the large numbers of potential customers who select their builders on the basis of estimates, without finding out exactly what they are getting for their money.

As a result, some builders are beginning to tell prospective buyers that they will have to pay for the house plans should they take their business elsewhere. Such plans often run anywhere from $300 to $600.

At a recent custom builders' workshop, this subject was discussed at great length. One builder cautioned his colleagues against quoting a price too quickly to the custom-house prospect. He explained:

"We found we lost money on many jobs we were bidding on by coming up with a price before we had completely sold the buyer on what we were going to do for him. Now we quote an average square foot price to help determine the approximate area of buyer interest. We then work out the details and come up with a specific cost breakdown."

Another builder said: "You can't afford to produce plans for potential customers and then lose the job to another builder. In such instances, the customer must be told at the outset that he will be expected to pay for the plans."

The wise buyer will insist on knowing everything about the house that is to be built for him, including the kinds of material that will be used in every phase of construction.

Reputable builders are only too happy to supply this information, aware that a satisfied customer sooner or later brings them additional business by word - of mouth advertising.

Most builders have a wide range of sample products and materials on hand, so that the buyer can see at firsthand what will go into his house.

Whether you use the plans of an outside architect, a builder or those which often appear in newspapers or other publications, it is well to remember that you can get many different estimates of what the house will cost.

Naturally, price is a consideration, but it is important only insofar as it is balanced against the kind of materials that are to be used.

This is an area where your own architect can be of great help, since he not only can draw up your plans, but decide on the type of materials and then see that the specifications are followed to the letter.

Indoor Plants Dress Rooms

And along with the increasing popularity of dual purpose plants to enhance year-'round home beauty, there's a new trend toward compact plants, such as chrysanthemums.

The technique of keeping stems shorter without sacrificing lushness and beauty of foliage or blossoms has been greatly advanced by growers, in recent years.

In both the double - purpose and compact plants, porous red clay flower pots play a basically important role in maintaining plant health and beauty from professional grower to ultimate consumer.

They are automatically safeguarded against overwatering — commonest cause of most house plant failures — because tiny pores in the clay walls permit excess moisture and harmful salts to leach out the sides.

Roots cannot become waterlogged. In addition, the porosity supplies built-in cooling and air conditioning which roots need to thrive.

House plants that can do double duty indoors and out include such foliage plants as potted ferns, philodendron, many types of ivy and such popular flowering plants as azaleas, geraniums, begonias and fuschias.

Also, you'll find it interesting to select from the great variety of succulent plants, such as kalanchoes, peperomias and cacti, which can add color and interest to any decorative plan.

Decorating Clan Likes Area Rugs

Used as a focal point on a well-polished floor, the area rug can be an important decorative factor. It can emphasize a color in the over-all scheme, pick up a minor one in a patterned fabric and make it important, or introduce a new accent color.

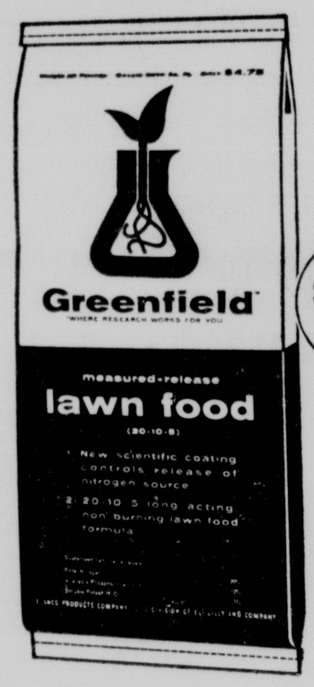

In a traditional room, an Oriental rug can be used to establish a color plan and the hues of fabrics chosen for upholstered furniture can be selected from those in the rug.

However, no matter how much a homemaker may want to add the charm of an area rug to her room, she is more often than not faced with a problem: area rugs are wanderers at heart.

Mulch Controls Weeds And Retains Moisture

Weeds may be controlled in the garden and moisture retained during the growing season by the application of a mulch.

Mulches should be applied after the warm - season crops are well established. Usually this will be sometime during the month of June.

Partially decomposed mulching materials are applied from 2 to 4 inches deep. Such materials include weathered sawdust, peat, compost and rotted manure. They may be added without risk of competition with the plant for available nitrogen.

These mulches require nitrogen for decay and when spread on the garden will compete with the plants for the available nitrogen in the soil. In order to assure adequate amounts of nitrogen for the decomposition of these materials, it is necessary to apply 2 to 3 pounds per 100 square feet of the usual 4-12-8 or 5-10-10 fertilizer, or ½ pound per 100 square feet of nitrate of soda, ammonium sulfate added to each bushel of material will prevent shortage of nitrogen.

Sawdust and other wood wastes do not contain appreciable amounts of toxic materials. Cedar shavings or sawdust may retard plant growth slightly, but this disappears within a few weeks after the wood is added to the soil. Chief reason for the commonly observed harmful effect of sawdust or shavings on crops is the depletion of soil nitrogen.

Clover or alfalfa chaff contain enough nitrogen for decay and additional applications of fertilizer are not necessary when they are used for mulching. Loose, undecomposed mulches should be applied 6 to 8 inches deep.

Irrigation during dry periods is a profitable practice. Frequent light sprinklings encourage shallow roots and may reduce yields. The proper method is to apply enough water to soak the soil to a depth of 6 or 8 inches at each application. One application per week is usually enough.

Water may be applied with an ooze hose, sprinkler or by running water along the rows from a hose. A board placed under the end of the hose will prevent washing. For bulletins on irrigation, consult your county extension agent.

Hobbies' Display Adds Interest To Your Boy's Room

If, like boys everywhere, he wants to add to the decorating himself, by all means encourage him. More often than not, you will find he has some interesting ideas.

A boy's hobbies, for instance, can be the home decorator's best friend. Not only can most indoor hobbies be beautifully integrated into any decorating scheme, but they project mood and character of the hobbyist, which adds to any room.

Those plastic hobby kits of boats, planes and cars, as an example, are easily assembled, yet have a professional appearance when completed and displayed in a boy's room.

If your son is keen on ships, old and new, such as the famous Cutty Sark or today's S.S. United States, you are way ahead of the game.

Some boys take such pride in their completed models you may find the best answer is to create an attractive display area in the room, devoted exclusively to them.

Cleaning Made Easier By A Room At A Time

Instead of one weekly job, try putting yourself on a room-to-room basis for a change. One room a day, thoroughly cleaned, actually keeps a tidy house.

Load it with a pan of thick soap or detergent suds, a pail or bowl of rinse water, two sponges, clean cloths and an extra bowl to hold the soiled suds you squeeze out.

When you wheel your mobile cleaning aids into a room, you are equipped to chase a lot of dirt without having to walk back and forth for the tools to do it with.

A big plastic - upholstered lounge chair can — and should be — "laundered" from top to bottom. Squeeze a big sponge in fluffy suds, scrape excess suds off along the rim of the suds pan, then go over one section of the chair at a time, with overlapping motions.

It might be a good idea to add an ordinary ruler to your cart supplies — for getting into upholstery crevices, for there's where so much dust and lint accumulates.

Use one end of the ruler to prod an edge of the sudsy sponge into the crevice where the back and seat meet. A long cross-wise swipe will remove the soil. Then wipe out the suds with your ruler and rinsing sponge, followed by your dry wiping cloth. Don't forget that every chair has a bottom.

To make butterscotch apples, melt one cup hard butterscotch candies with two tablespoons of water, over direct heat. Swirl four apples on sticks in butterscotch syrup. Set on waxed paper to harden. The children will love them.

Protect Your Walls

Walls around a baby's crib can be "child-proofed" by covering them with plastic-surfaced hardboard in attractive colors and patterns. Moisture and stains will not mar the paneling, which can be damp-wiped clean.

How A Tree Grows

Planting a tree? Remember the limbs on a young tree do not move higher from the ground as the tree grows. They grow in thickness and length, but the tree gains height only at the tip of its crown and the limbs remain the same distance from the ground.

Make Insulation

To fill cracks around window frames, make your own papier-mache insulation a minimum cost. Stir a little glue in thick hot soapsuds, and add a large quantity of shredded newspaper. When dry, this filler will be hard enough to paint.

Planting a tree? Remember the limbs on a young tree do not move higher from the ground as the tree grows. They grow in thickness and length, but the tree gains height only at the tip of its crown and the limbs remain the same distance from the ground.

Make Insulation

To fill cracks around window frames, make your own papier-mache insulation a minimum cost. Stir a little glue in thick hot soapsuds, and add a large quantity of shredded newspaper. When dry, this filler will be hard enough to paint.

How To Give Home 'New Look'

Your house needs a new spring wardrobe just as much as your family does. And this can be accomplished without a major outlay in either time or money.

Like all good fashion, a "new look" in the home can be achieved with a change of accessories emphasizing the season.

Use toss pillows as accents to freshen the living room with gay spring colors. Latex foam occasional pillows are preferable because they never need plumping and don't mat with use. You can buy them already covered or ready to cover with a fabric of your choice. Choose a closely woven fabric and cut it the same size as the cushion itself. Then when you seam it, you'll have a snug, plump fit.

Take down your heavy winter draperies and replace them with light, inexpensive ones of some easy-care fabric. You can get a custom look by adding a valance cut out of plywood, gluing on foam rubber sheeting for padding, and tacking on an outside cover of fabric to match the drapes.

Send your heavy carpet to the cleaner for storage. Replace it with inexpensive small rugs or mats.

Dress up your dining room with a new wardrobe of vinyl place mats in assorted colors. Make tie-on seat cushions for your chairs with two-inch foam rubber cushion now sold by the yard. Cover in a bright fabric.

Replace your winter bedspreads with washable lightweight spreads that lighten the tone of the room. Tint your bedroom curtains a corresponding shade and use foam rubber accent pillows in contrasting colors.

Get at least one new set of towels for the bathroom with a change of shower curtains and bath mat to complete the spring color scheme. If your old curtain still is useful, wash and dry it thoroughly before storing.

Scatter a garden of potted plants throughout the house. They add a rich note of earthiness to the colors of a room.

You Should Look At Neighborhood With Critical Eye

That's the advice from a successful realtor, Mrs. Virginia Dvorak of Glen Ellyn, Ill., for women who would like to maintain the value of their homes.

She offers these suggestions to the housewife who would extend the beauty of her home to the area around it:

Be conscious of your neighborhood and pay particular attention to streets, sidewalks, playgrounds and traffic signs. When they are allowed to run down, the whole area becomes drab.

Don't be bashful about reporting damaged, vandalized or run-down properties when you spot them. Not only will you improve the appearance of your community but you also will correct potentially dangerous conditions.

For example, public officials like to be informed if traffic or street signs are bent, misplaced or illegible, or need replacement by reflective signs that shine at night.

Enlist the aid of friends in beautifying your neighborhood.

In many communities volunteer groups have converted weed-filled, vacant lots into small, handsome parks, planted flowers in otherwise ugly, stark areas and painted nearby public buildings for which there were no public improvement funds.

ANY HOMEMAKER would welcome a range hood as part of this year's home improvement plan for her kitchen. A new no-duct hood such as this one can be permanently installed in minutes. Four screws and a screwdriver put it in place. In addition to removing smoke, grease, and cooking odors, a range hood eliminates the expense of painting or papering the kitchen wall frequently.

Tentative Budget Offered For Bride's Kitchen Tools

Selecting kitchen equipment for the establishment of a first home is a job that the wise bride will approach thoughtfully.

Many stores are full of intriguing gadgets and specialty items that are eye-catchers, but they are frequently designed for a single purpose or use. And often before the bride knows it her budget is out of hand.

The smart thing to do is to prepare a list of all of the equipment that will be needed for the kitchen and then make out a budget.

It may not be possible to adhere exactly to the budget, but this will serve to keep expenditures within bounds.

The bride who takes an exploratory journey to the store and generally will be happily surprised at how far her budget will go.

For example, a budget of approximately $60 should provide all the basic tools needed.

Since most kitchen equipment is now styled in color, she can decide on what color she prefers and then coordinate her equipment as far as possible.

The budget, which amounts to $58.24, includes five types of kitchen knives; refrigerator sets, mixing bowls, measuring and mixing spoons, a canister set, silverware tray, cutting boards, an assortment of brushes for various uses, a juicer, several types of strainers, graters and slicers, a salad bowl and set, several types of can openers, a potato masher, pancake turner, hamburg turner, deep ladle, flour sifter, nylon baster, three drainers for silver, dishes and pans, roast rack, utility mats of assorted sizes and uses, kitchen towels and aprons, pot holders and oven mitt, a sponge assortment, an egg beater, timer and holder, and a number of other small items such as a peeler, cheese slicer and rolling pin.

Wall Shelves Expand Home's Storage Area

According to staff members in the Research Bureau of the National Design Center, New York City, of the estimated half-million people who visit the center each year almost every eighth person wants to know whether there are any new products that will add more space in the home.

Wall shelves can be one of today's most successful space expanders.

Because they are available in varying shapes, sizes, widths and lengths, and combine good design with quality woods, they can fit into any area of the home.

Many of today's shelves can be put up on slotted strips, some of them made of hand - carved wood, designed to blend with room furnishings. The shelves are adjustable and can be arranged to accommodate objects of any size.

By planning ahead of time what the shelf is to hold, the uneven heights, width of woods, and a "staggered" manner of arranging the shelves on the wall will make a decorative asset out of a space-saving idea.

To show off prized possessions in a traditional living room, three shelves in a Venetian design with hand-carved edges could be put up in varying lengths and heights above a wall-chest cabinet. This would create a harmonious unit to show off a hobby collection of porcelain figurines, a silver service that formerly required its own show-off table, a sizable antique floor vase, and, of course, books.

To keep a bedroom neat and spacious, wall shelves might go above the headboard of the bed. Three or four shelves will take care of books, water carafe, glasses, mending basket, clock, radio and even television.

A single, table - height console shelf in a foyer can decorate that area and be useful in holding guest hats, purses and gloves.

4 Key Points Govern Purchase Of Carpeting

A RUG IN THE shape of a leopard has been cut from a piece of carpet to emphasize the design in this wool cut pile. Cutting such a piece could be a do-it-yourself job, or the carpet could be used as a room-sized rug.

Color is a prime consideration for any major investment in home furnishings. In carpets and rugs, for example, color is the first decision you should make.

Recent consumer research has shown that following a very simple formula will take the guesswork out of choosing carpets and rugs.

The formula involves asking yourself four questions — in this order: (1) What color? (2) What texture or pattern? (3) What can I expect in performance? (4) How much should I spend?

Fortunately, with the wide range of styles now on the market, you can have your favorite color and care for it easily, too. If, for example, you like something in the gold family, you can choose a burnished tone which will not show soil readily or a tweedy gold mixture which is practical for heavy traffic areas.

Rugged textures, such as tight loops or twist yarns, help disguise footmarks and require a minimum of maintenance in heavy traffic areas.

If you have chosen a color and texture suitable for the various areas of your home, you already have made the important decision on how the carpet will look during use.

Fiber content alone does not determine durability, but for normal - to - heavy home use, choose fibers that are strong and resilient — wool, nylons and acrylics.

Clogged Drains Are Big Problem

CHICAGO — Plumbing contractors get more calls to open clogged drains than for any other service.

Many such calls could be prevented by greater care in the use of drains. The most - used drain is the one in the kitchen sink and that is the drain which is most often clogged.

Prevention of sink clogging can be done by carefully watching what is emptied into the sink drain and by the regular use of a good drain cleaner, the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau advises.

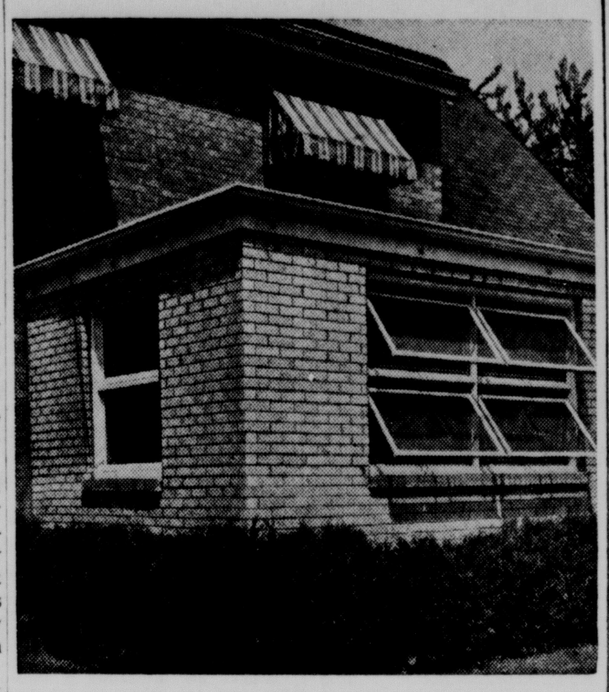

Sink stoppages usually are caused by liquid fats carried in dishwater and other kitchen wastes hitting the cooler pipe and solidifying. A film of grease forms on the pipe wall, then another, and another.

Coffee grounds and bits of food add to this accumulating layer until the pipe becomes impassable. To prevent clogging by grease, the bureau suggests that homemakers pour the excess grease into a tin can and throw it out with the garbage, not down the sink drain.

'Rumpus Room' Offers Outlet For Busy Folks

A SINGLE WALL may capture and hold the eyes of beholders. The geometric design and glowing colors of "Alpha", this Jack Denst design, prove that wall covering can perform a magic of its own in home decorating.

One member may build ship models while another wants to toot a trumpet. And, if several of these interests are pursued simultaneously, some rather sharp conflicts may occur.

To solve the problem, the home should have a specialized room that frees the rest of the house for general living.

An architect, lumber dealer or contractor can show you how a room of this type can be built right onto your present home. The room addition can blend in so perfectly that it will look like part of the original.

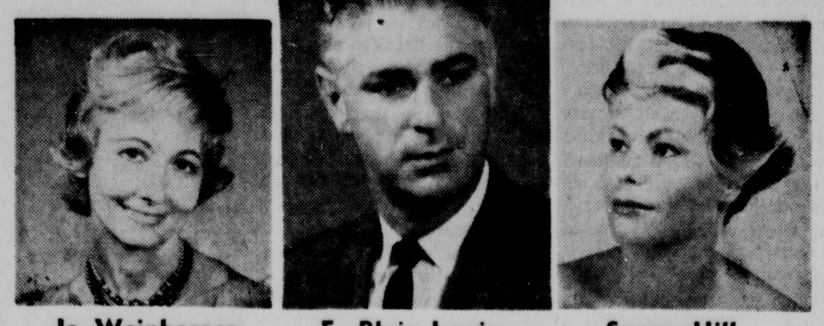

A room can best be added to a part of your property that otherwise would be used only one or two seasons a year. Why not get year-round use out of the space that is now occupied by the screened porch or 150 square feet of brick yard?

Prevention of sink clogging can be done by carefully watching what is emptied into the sink drain and by the regular use of a good drain cleaner, the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau advises.

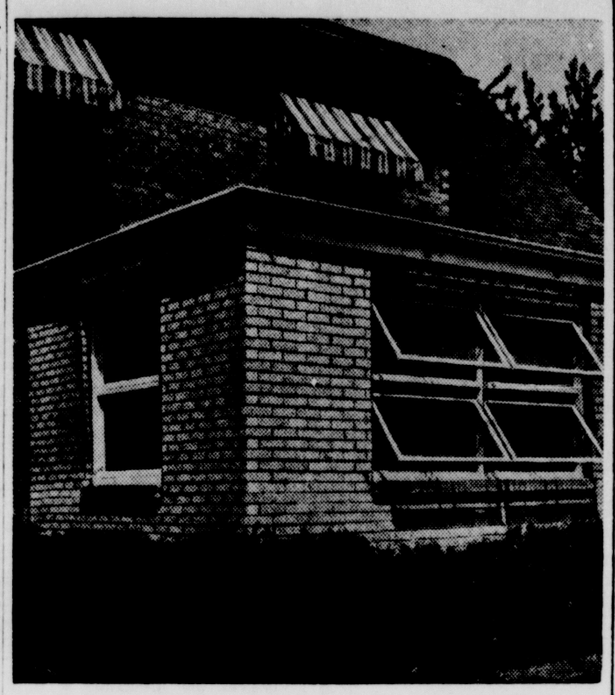

Sink stoppages usually are caused by liquid fats carried in dishwater and other kitchen wastes hitting the cooler pipe and solidifying. A film of grease forms on the pipe wall, then another, and another.

Coffee grounds and bits of food add to this accumulating layer until the pipe becomes impassable. To prevent clogging by grease, the bureau suggests that homemakers pour the excess grease into a tin can and throw it out with the garbage, not down the sink drain.

'Rumpus Room' Offers Outlet For Busy Folks

A SINGLE WALL may capture and hold the eyes of beholders. The geometric design and glowing colors of "Alpha", this Jack Denst design, prove that wall covering can perform a magic of its own in home decorating.

One member may build ship models while another wants to toot a trumpet. And, if several of these interests are pursued simultaneously, some rather sharp conflicts may occur.

To solve the problem, the home should have a specialized room that frees the rest of the house for general living.

An architect, lumber dealer or contractor can show you how a room of this type can be built right onto your present home. The room addition can blend in so perfectly that it will look like part of the original.

A room can best be added to a part of your property that otherwise would be used only one or two seasons a year. Why not get year-round use out of the space that is now occupied by the screened porch or 150 square feet of brick yard?

Small Rooms, Low Ceilings Offer Decorating Problems

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A handsome breakfront and sectional sofa, perfectly at home in a room with large dimensions, can't always adjust to the proportions of a small room, points out interior designer Jay Dorf.

"You may not be able immediately to put your finger on the object that is out of proportion," he says. "But you will have an uneasy feeling that there is something wrong with the planning of the room."

Since we can't physically stretch a room, our object must be to shrink the things within it — by illusion, if necessary, he says.

The solution may be as simple as getting rid of one oversized piece, although some people may prefer to live with individual objects they love, rather than worry about total design. Those who are annoyed by objects that are out of scale in a room may solve the problem to their satisfaction by using one tall, slender piece — a cupboard, secretary or bookcase — with low pieces.

"The French have always been very clever about this," Dorf points out. " Even in the 18th Century they had paneled walls with many narrow panels giving the illusion of height."

Wallpaper and decorated walls are popular now so that plan may offer a stylish solution.

"Keep everything low in the room as much as possible, except perhaps the sleeper piece. Chairs, tables, lamps should be low and light of scale. Choose sculptured pieces that are delicate, rather than heavy and ornate. Keep pictures, sconces, wall brackets and chandeliers as low as possible, without making them a household nuisance. Use low candles candle holders and flower arrangements," he says.

Dorf prefers area rugs to wall-to-wall carpet in small rooms, so that the rug can pinpoint a small central area such as under a dining table and chairs. But there should be a large amount of floor space showing, if this design idea is used, he explains.

If a large piece of furniture must be used in a small room, it should be kept as isolated as possible. Don't jam a lot of other objects around it, he emphasizes, and keep the units that take up a lot of space in dark tones.

Color schemes can help create an illusion of spaciousness too, he emphasizes. "Keep walls and ceiling as light as possible, alternating between light and dark shades of furnishings throughout the room."

White is a popular background color for small rooms, ideal for making a small room look larger.

The table is light enough to be pulled away from the wall when its entire surface must be used. Low-back chairs with clean lines increase the airy feeling. A free-form sculpture on the wall in the delicate lines of extruded metal is kept low. Table flowers and candelabra also are kept low.

GOLD-TRIMMED, clear glass serving pieces do double snack duty. They're as much at home in the living room with unexpected guests as they are in the kitchen during midnight raids on the refrigerator.

Closets Present Space Problems

Solid sliding doors have given way to louvered doors which fold or slide. And unlike conventional doors they cannot accommodate hooks, racks or bars. When the new doors are used, articles of clothing must all be moved inside the closet.

Some basic principles for more closet space have been developed by Mary Ann March, home economist who conducts "closet clinics" at department stores across the nation. Her tips include:

Store seasonal items, such as winter hats, folded sweaters and knit dresses, overshoes and blankets in plastic bags on the top shelf. It's hardest to reach, so use it only a few times a year in this manner.

For blouses and skirts, use valette-type hangers that hook onto one another, so three or four pieces of clothing can occupy the same vertical space. Placing lapels at different levels also helps to avoid clothes - crushing.

Present Good Front

To avoid embarrassment, keep a freshly - laundered cover - all apron on hand in the kitchen. When the door bell rings, slip this over your mussed or work-soiled clothes.

It was a criminal offfense to print a newspaper exceeding 22 inches by 32 inches as late as 1818 in England.

Health Protected By Sanitary Cup

One of the worst offenders in spreading colds throughout a home is the old - fashioned common drinking glass, used in bathroom or kitchen by all the family.

Because of it, Junior's sniffles too often become Dad's severe cold and Mother may easily "catch" influenza from germs roosting on it.

As millions of modern home - makers have discovered, this health risk can easily be eliminated by the use of disposable paper cups, placed in appropriate locations throughout the house.

Colorful and inexpensive home dispensers, made in a variety of handsome designs and holding 30 to 40 cups, are widely available to fit the decor of any kitchen, bath, powder room or playroom — wherever there's a faucet in the house.

Sanitary paper cups to fit these jiffy-service dispensers come in an array of bright and pastel colors and patterns, to add a gay accent to any setting.

Americans are blessed with perhaps the purest and most plentiful supply of good drinking water in the world; but too many of us forget that the average adult needs to drink a full quart of water each day to meet minimum body requirements.

Because we're likely to forget this basic fact, handy paper cup dispensers can play a second major role in protecting the family's health — not only by supplying drinking cups that are clean and germ-free but also by acting as silent reminders.

In their dual role of providing both drinking convenience and cleanliness, paper cups are as important for the modern family's use at home as they are in public places, where their sanitary advantages long have been recognized.

Better Skip A Step

If you plan to varnish a staircase, leave every other step free of varnish until the alternate ones are dry. Then you can use the stairs without interruption.

If you bake a quick coffee cake in an oven-proof glass round or square dish, you can bring the cake straight to the table and cut and lift out the servings there. Coffee cakes should be served hot so this has an advantage. Use a pie knife for removing the individual portions.

Glaze Treatment Will Repair Chip In Porcelain Sink

Question: A chip recently was knocked out of the porcelain sink in our bathroom. I fixed it with patching plaster while I happened to be patching part of the wall in the bathroom.

It looked like a good job for a while, but now some of the patching material has fallen out of place. Is there some way I can make a permanent repair to the sink?

Answer: It was inevitable that ordinary patching plaster would not take a firm grip on the porcelain. First, remove any of the plaster that still remains. Then use a porcelain glaze, which can be purchased in any hardware store in a small bottle or container.

While a reasonably good repair can be made with a single application, a more professional result is likely if you apply the glaze in very thin layers.

Spread the glaze in the damaged area with the small brush which comes with the material. When it has dried thoroughly, apply a second coat.

Repeat the procedure a third time and, if necessary, a fourth and fifth. The trick is to build up the damaged section until it is level with the surrounding surface.

Follow the directions on the container as to how the final coat should be smoothed. Also, note which solvent should be kept on hand to remove any surplus glaze. Denatured alcohol is the usual solvent.

Tips On Chairs

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Facts That Will Help Buyer

In almost every home in America there is at least one expensive mistake — an upholstered item that would never have been purchased if real furniture facts were known.

Take upholstered chairs, for example. There are six facts about an upholstered chair that should be checked before its purchase. The six points that should be checked concern the frame, fabric, comfort, construction, filling materials and cushioning.

A high quality chair frame is vital. The wood used in the construction should be hard wood such as ash, hard maple, oak or birch. Such woods as pecan, hickory and gumwood take a wonderful finish, but have a tendency to split.

WHERE PARTS are joined, the joining should be done with what furniture manufacturers call mortise and tenon joints. That is, one part fits into the other.

These joints should be reinforced with securely attached cornerblocks. Good furniture is never held together with nails. Be sure screws and bolts are used in addition to glue.

Although the fabric covering of a chair is easier to see, some fibers have hidden assets just as some have hidden defects. Neither is easy to evaluate just by looking.

If stripes or a pattern are not perfectly matched, you will know that the manufacturer is skimping on yardage and that the probably took other construction shortcuts, too.

Manufacturers who make upholstery fabric with fibers made under a quality control program must agree to let their materials undergo stringent tests by independent laboratories to determine how long the fabric will wear, whether it will hold its shape without sagging or stretching and whether it is safe from sun-fading and from the color loss from ordinary exposure to air over a period of time. Fabrics are scientifically pretested.

Comfort is easier for a shopper to determine. The best test for comfort in a chair is to sit in it. If it isn't comfortable in the store, it won't become more so at home.

IT'S IMPORTANT to know how many springs the seat has. The minimum number of springs for comfort and long wear is six. However, as many as 12 are sometimes used in a chair seat, and the closer to that number the better the chair.

Although state laws demand the filling materials used in a chair be designated by a colored label, not everyone knows what these labels mean. A white label means the filling material is new. Yellow means it is re-used or processed.

In traditional furniture, foam rubber is used in combination with feathers or down. In modern, it is used alone. In some furniture, a less expensive foam material is used — and sometimes it is less resilient than foam.

Be sure all of your questions are answered fully. Many salespeople do not have all this information, because it is seldom asked for.

WHO NEEDS A sewing room, with a kitchen arrangement like the one shown here. Planning desk at right of refrigerator doubles as a sewing corner, especially important when space is at a premium. Because of its corner location, this area can be used for separate activity without interfering with food preparation.

When Hot Nights Arrive, Attic Fan Can Save Day

Cool sleep on hot nights is a simple matter if you have a properly-installed attic fan.

By drawing out the hot air that has collected during the day, you replace this "blanket" with fresh, night-cool breezes.

During the day, under a broiling sun, attic temperatures often soar to as high as 140 degrees. This heat is absorbed and held in ceilings, walls, floors and furniture.

For instance, if a room is about 92 degrees during the day, it may drop to only 90 degrees at night. With an operating attic fan, this same room will be about 80 degrees during the day, but will drop to a comfortable 75 degrees at night. These figures were obtained in many tests by engineers.

The best and most commonly used method of installing a fan is to locate a suction box over a ceiling grille.

A central location of the grille in the hall ceiling provides control of air movement throughout the house. Fan should be located not less than one fan diameter from the near edge of the grille opening.

The outside louvers used with this should be stationary. They may be operated manually or by motor. Automatic louvers should not be used.

Where the attic stairway provides sufficient area to supply air to the fan at velocities not exceeding 1,000 cubic feet per minute, an attic fan may be installed easily and inexpensively. The rear of the suction box is hinged to provide access to the attic.

Set the fan on a platform and discharge from the attic. The distance between the louver and face of the fan must not be less than six inches on any size unit.

Youngsters Taught Safe Gun Handling

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Another 25,000 California youngsters were taught the fundamentals of safe gun handling in 1962, the state Department of Fish and Game reported.

That brought the total trained to 245,149 youths since the program started in 1954.

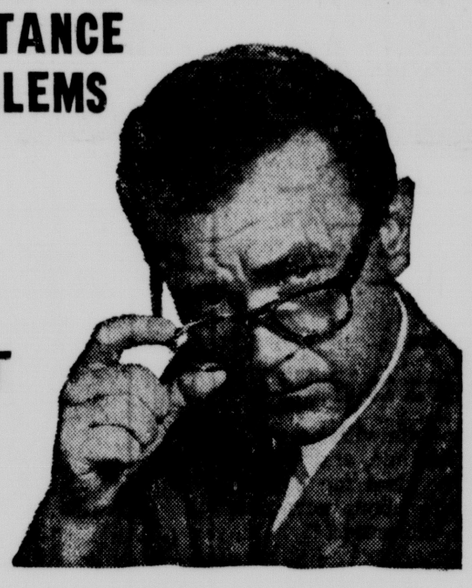

All under 15 must take the course before they can apply for their first California hunting license.

Tips On Chairs

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Facts That Will Help Buyer

In almost every home in America there is at least one expensive mistake — an upholstered item that would never have been purchased if real furniture facts were known.

Take upholstered chairs, for example. There are six facts about an upholstered chair that should be checked before its purchase. The six points that should be checked concern the frame, fabric, comfort, construction, filling materials and cushioning.

A high quality chair frame is vital. The wood used in the construction should be hard wood such as ash, hard maple, oak or birch. Such woods as pecan, hickory and gumwood take a wonderful finish, but have a tendency to split.

WHERE PARTS are joined, the joining should be done with what furniture manufacturers call mortise and tenon joints. That is, one part fits into the other.

These joints should be reinforced with securely attached cornerblocks. Good furniture is never held together with nails. Be sure screws and bolts are used in addition to glue.

Although the fabric covering of a chair is easier to see, some fibers have hidden assets just as some have hidden defects. Neither is easy to evaluate just by looking.

If stripes or a pattern are not perfectly matched, you will know that the manufacturer is skimping on yardage and that the probably took other construction shortcuts, too.

Manufacturers who make upholstery fabric with fibers made under a quality control program must agree to let their materials undergo stringent tests by independent laboratories to determine how long the fabric will wear, whether it will hold its shape without sagging or stretching and whether it is safe from sun-fading and from the color loss from ordinary exposure to air over a period of time. Fabrics are scientifically pretested.

Comfort is easier for a shopper to determine. The best test for comfort in a chair is to sit in it. If it isn't comfortable in the store, it won't become more so at home.

IT'S IMPORTANT to know how many springs the seat has. The minimum number of springs for comfort and long wear is six. However, as many as 12 are sometimes used in a chair seat, and the closer to that number the better the chair.

Although state laws demand the filling materials used in a chair be designated by a colored label, not everyone knows what these labels mean. A white label means the filling material is new. Yellow means it is re-used or processed.

In traditional furniture, foam rubber is used in combination with feathers or down. In modern, it is used alone. In some furniture, a less expensive foam material is used — and sometimes it is less resilient than foam.

Be sure all of your questions are answered fully. Many salespeople do not have all this information, because it is seldom asked for.

When Hot Nights Arrive, Attic Fan Can Save Day

Cool sleep on hot nights is a simple matter if you have a properly-installed attic fan.

By drawing out the hot air that has collected during the day, you replace this "blanket" with fresh, night-cool breezes.

During the day, under a broiling sun, attic temperatures often soar to as high as 140 degrees. This heat is absorbed and held in ceilings, walls, floors and furniture.

For instance, if a room is about 92 degrees during the day, it may drop to only 90 degrees at night. With an operating attic fan, this same room will be about 80 degrees during the day, but will drop to a comfortable 75 degrees at night. These figures were obtained in many tests by engineers.

The best and most commonly used method of installing a fan is to locate a suction box over a ceiling grille.

A central location of the grille in the hall ceiling provides control of air movement throughout the house. Fan should be located not less than one fan diameter from the near edge of the grille opening.

The outside louvers used with this should be stationary. They may be operated manually or by motor. Automatic louvers should not be used.

Where the attic stairway provides sufficient area to supply air to the fan at velocities not exceeding 1,000 cubic feet per minute, an attic fan may be installed easily and inexpensively. The rear of the suction box is hinged to provide access to the attic.

Where the attic is practically airtight and can act as a suction box, the fan can be installed on the attic wall.

Set the fan on a platform and discharge from the attic. The distance between the louver and face of the fan must not be less than six inches on any size unit.

Youngsters Taught Safe Gun Handling

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Another 25,000 California youngsters were taught the fundamentals of safe gun handling in 1962, the state Department of Fish and Game reported.

That brought the total trained to 245,149 youths since the program started in 1954.

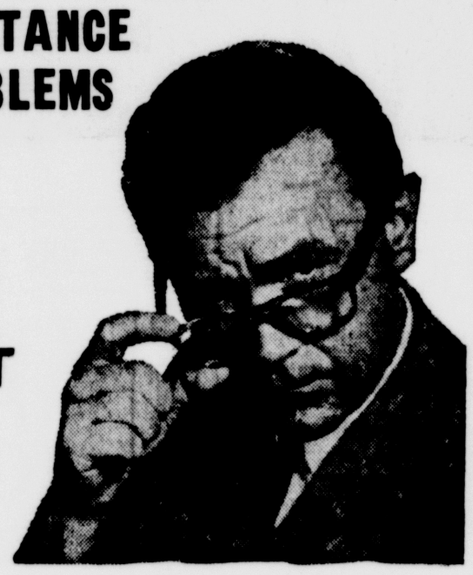

All under 15 must take the course before they can apply for their first California hunting license.

Bay Windows Add Space, Charm

They Help Create Panoramic View From Home Interior

INTERIOR: Bay window, combined with wood paneled window seat and Early American accessories, give a warm, lived-in look to this new family room. Windows and door are stock units of ponderosa pine.

EXTERIOR: Brand new, but blending perfectly with the existing house, this addition gets much of its charm from the wood bay window. New asphalt shingles, matching rest of house, help integrate the new wing.

A modern bay window often is the right choice to spark a problem room. It can help dispel the cramped feeling of a small room, make a large room seem brighter and make an attractive outdoor scene seem part of the room.

Adding a bay window needn't be an expensive custom alteration, since a variety of factory-made wood units in durable ponderosa pine are available. They are precision-made and ready to be installed with a minimum of labor.

Since a bay window projects from the house, it also can serve to break the line of an uninteresting wall — both inside and outside. In addition, it adds usable space when combined with a window seat, which opens for storage.

In addition to the bay window, many other types of windows made of ponderosa pine are available in stock sizes from building materials dealers. These include:

Here are a few of the advantages of stock wood windows: Wood has a natural beauty of its own and lends itself readily to a variety of finishes. It is up to 1800 times more effective than metal as an insulating material. Since condensation doesn't form on the frame during cold weather, the likelihood of moisture damaging wall, curtains and furniture is eliminated.

'Annuals' Need Good Garden Soil

There are many different kinds of annuals and many varieties of some of them; so it is rather difficult to choose which to grow.

Each year new varieties listed in the flower-seed catalogs add to the many types now available. In selecting what types to grow, the beginner should talk with other gardeners who have had experience in his locality and can tell him what varieties are best suited to his particular conditions.

Any good garden soil will produce satisfactory annuals. They are quick-growing plants and require a fertile soil that does not dry out too rapidly and yet is well drained.

Unfortunately, many of the plots where annuals are to be grown are made from the subsoil from excavating a cellar or, when they are next to a foundation, from all the left-over plaster, cement, and debris covered with a few feet or inches of poor soil. It is a waste of time to try to grow good annuals on such plots.

When soil conditions such as described exist, it is necessary to remedy them by the addition of organic matter. Sometimes when the soil is a very heavy clay, sand should be added.

THE BEST source of organic matter when an annual flower bed is desired for immediate use is one of the various animal manures. Well-rotted stable or chicken manure and prepared sheep or cow manure are all very good. Other useful materials are cottonseed meal and bonemeal.

There should be as much cow manure, or even rotted horse manure, worked into the soil as can be done reasonably. Less chicken manure should be used, as it is several times as rich as cow or horse manure. Prepared cow and sheep manure can be used at the rate of 1 pound for 3 square feet and cottonseed meal and bonemeal at the rate of 1 pound for 5 square feet. All these materials should be thoroughly worked into the soil.

The manures are especially beneficial in modifying soil texture; but when the soil is extremely poor to start with, it is usually necessary to add more readily available fertilizers also.

As a rule, a complete fertilizer such as a 4—8—4 or a 5—10—5 mixture is very satisfactory. It may be applied at the rate of about 1½ pounds to 100 square feet. It should be broadcast on the soil and thoroughly worked in just before planting.

When the location for annual flowers can be determined far in advance of planting, an ideal soil can be made by rotting sods of bluegrass in a rather heavy clay loam for a year and then mixing in equal quantities of rotted manure, leafmold, and sand.

The manure and sod can be rotted together for a year if convenient. A specially prepared soil of this kind will probably not be benefited much by another coat of manure the second year, but after that it should have annual dressings. Where good garden soil or other rich soil of suitable texture is available, probably the most common practice is to dig out a bed suitable depth and fill it with this garden soil well enriched with rotted manure. For permanent beds, careful preparation of good soil of proper texture is well worth the effort.

WHEN LARGER areas are used for flowers, as in a special garden like a vegetable garden or part of one that can be handled with a plow, self-improvement crops such as crimson clover and vetch in winter or cowpeas in summer may be used to enrich the soil and thus prepare it for another season's crops.

It is possible sometimes to adapt some of these soil-improvement crops to the smaller areas of flower beds; but it is seldom advisable, as the limited quantity of fertilizing materials usually needed can ordinarily be provided.

Ornamental annual plants can be started readily from seed in the spring and will give blooms or satisfactory foliage effects the same season. Nearly all of these can be started in the open ground over at least a large part of the United States and will give the desired results before they are killed by frost.

In order to get a longer season of effect from the plants, many gardeners usually start all their plants under glass or start those for early plantings that way. In the more northern sections of the country some kinds must be started in this way so that the season will be long enough for them to mature. Others must be started under glass so that they will become established before the coming of dry or hot weather, which would be injurious to the young plants but would not affect established ones.

All the kinds of plants mentioned in this bulletin can be propagated from seed. Seeds of a few must be sown where the plants are to mature, as they will not stand being moved. Many may be sown where they are to grow, but most of them are helped by one or two transplantings.

BECAUSE better plants are obtained by transplanting, most annuals are sown in seedbeds and moved to their permanent places. Such seedbeds should be in well-prepared, mellow soil, preferably somewhat protected from drying winds.

If the soil is not mellow and moisture conditions are not exactly right, the seedlings, especially those from small seeds, will have trouble breaking through any crust that may form. Protection from wind also helps to maintain uniform moisture conditions. The timely use of a watering can is often a great help in promoting germination, but care should be taken not to use too much water. Seedbeds require frequent light waterings rather than the infrequent drenchings best suited to more mature plants.

Seeds may be sown either broadcast or in rows. Inexperienced gardeners should plant seeds in rows, especially slow-germinating seeds, as quick-starting weeds can be more readily recognized and removed with less danger of disturbing the germinating seeds.

Rack For Utility Room

If your utility room needs a spot for the family to shed rain hats, gloves and scarves, and to hang coats and rainwear, this rack should be the answer.

It's a sturdy, handome unit, and the shelf is designed to allow wet gear to drain through, rather than puddle on the shelf.

The tools you will need to make the shelf are a cross - cut saw, hammer, brace and expandable bit, nail set, rule and a steel square.

Your Lumber Order

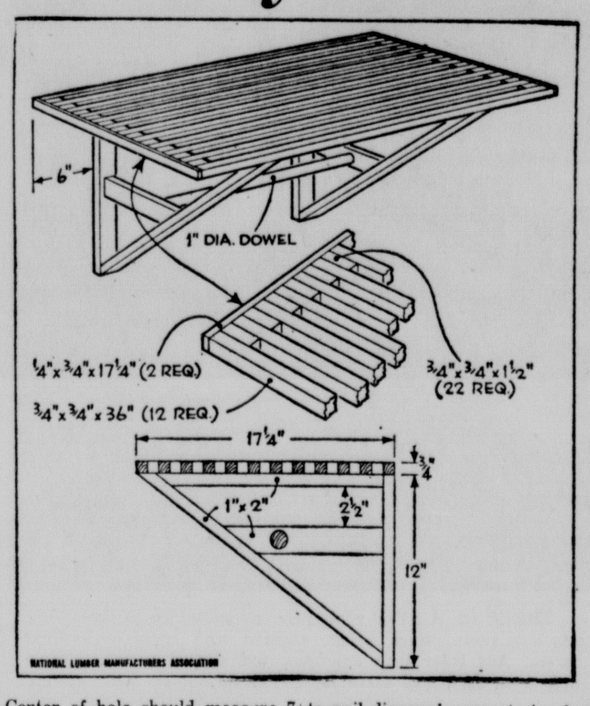

No.	Length	Size
3	12'	¾"x¾"
1	3'	¾"x¾"
1	3'	¼"x¾"
1	12'	1"x2"

Begin by making the shelf. Cut 12 36-inch lengths of ¾ x ¾-inch stock and 22 blocks 1½ inches long. Cut the two end pieces 17¼ inches long from ¼ x ¾-inch stock. Assemble the 36-inch lengths and blocks first. Nail 3d finishing nails through the first blocks into the outer strip so that nail holes will be hidden from outer edge of shelf. Repeat the nailing until all 12 36-inch strips are in place. Then nail the end pieces in place with three 2d finishing nails or brads.

Now make the frame. Start by drawing the side view of the frame to scale on paper. Wrapping paper will do. Follow the dimensions shown in side view.

Use a steel square to make your angles accurate. This pattern will serve as a guide for angled cuts in the frame.

Nail 5d finishing nails through 12-inch back support into top support and center strut. At this point, stop and attach back support assembly to wall with screws and wall plugs or toggle bolts. With back and horizontal supports in place on the wall, you're ready to nail diagonal supports in place with 5d finishing nails. Next, measure cut and nail 1-inch diameter dowel into pre-bored holes.

Place shelf on frame, allowing an overhang of 6 inches on either side, and nail in place over each support at three equidistant points with 3d finishing nails or brads. Set and fill nail holes, sand lightly and finish as desired.

Mill Still Grinding Corn After 128 Years

The old mill, one of the few water - operated mills left in the Southwest, still grinds corn between white granite grindstones, brought from France.

Production is small — less than a couple of hundred bushels per year — but the water - ground corn meal is packaged and sold throughout the country. The miller now is Mrs. Golda Unkefer, who bought the mill in 1950 and restored it.

The mill was established in 1838 to grind corn for Cherokee Indians. It got its name from Dr. Nichols Bitting, a doctor and counselor to the Cherokees who lived on the site, in the Cookson Hills southeast of here.

Training Program Set For Lumber Dealers

COLUMBUS — Midwestern lumber dealers will be headed back to school April 15 for an intensive training program in the home improvement market, according to Charles E. Benson, executive vice president of the Ohio Assoication of Retail Lumber Dealers.

The course will be held at Indianapolis and will run for five days. It will cover all phases of management of a complete home and property improvement department within a retail lumber and building materials yard.

According to Benson, there is a vital need for the establishment of more qualified home improvement centers where home owners can go with confidence for all their projects, such as adding a room, finishing a basement or attic, or remodeling an entire house.

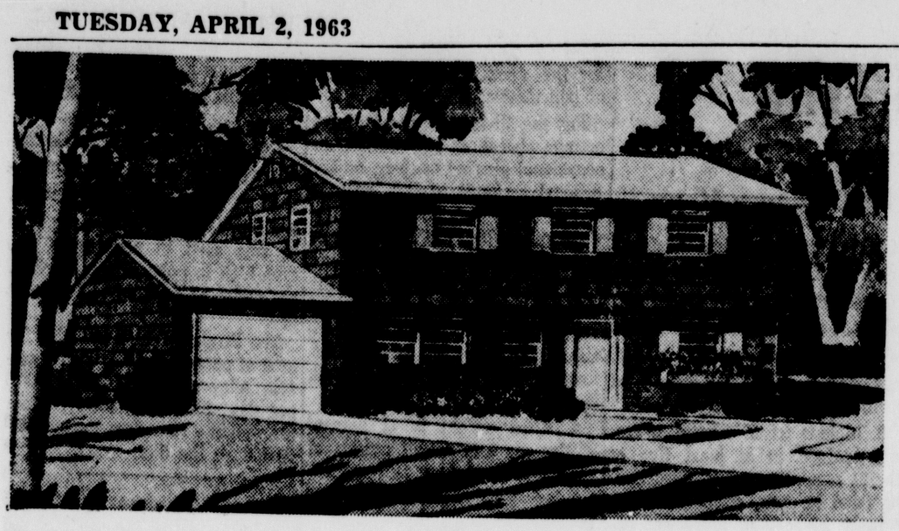

"This is 'Home Improvement Year'," Benson pointed out, "and President Kennedy has said that there are few domestic matters of more importance than the preservation of the $500 billion worth of property in this country. We feel that the best way to encourage this is to place this business firmly in the hands of reliable local, established buisinessmen.

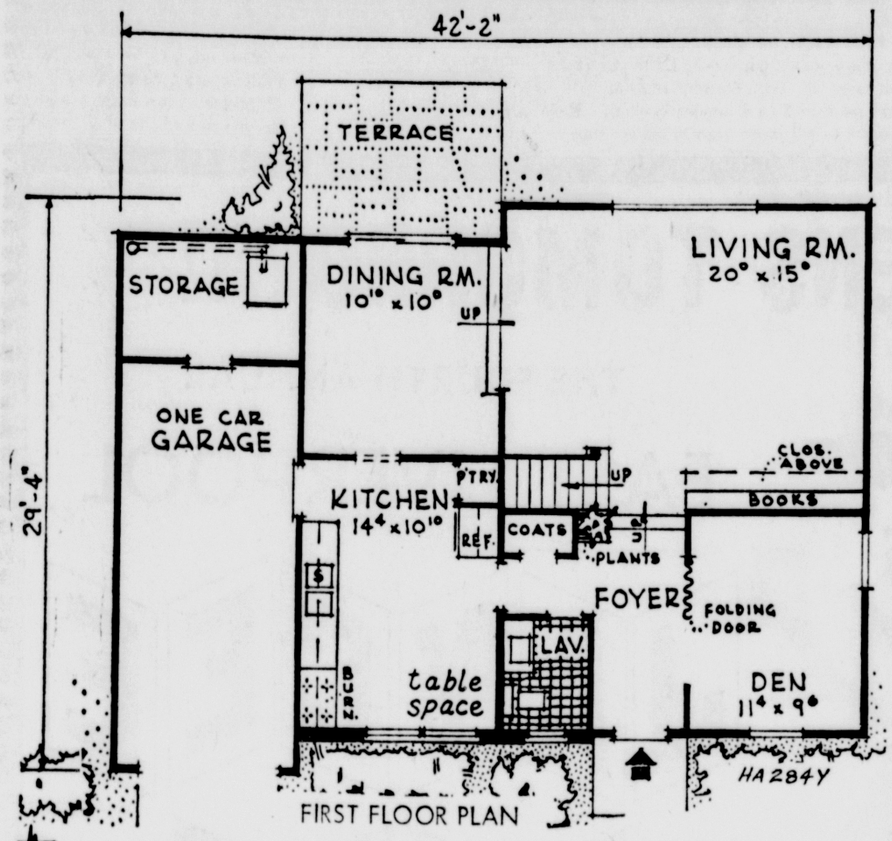

"The National Lumber and Building Material Dealers Association, which is co-sponsoring the course with us, already has trained nearly 1,000 dealers throughout the country to provide a 'one-stop' center of home improvements. By this we mean a single store where the home owner can get help in planning, design, estimating costs and financing, as well as a place to buy materials and arrange installation."

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Child's Eating Should Be Regulated

A few decades ago there began a new kind of program for feeding infants, then called "demand feeding." It meant feeding the infant when he demanded feeding or indicated he was hungry. The plan spread rapidly among pediatricians and mothers welcomed it with open arms. No longer would they have to hear the infant cry, they supposed, for when he cried they could easily feed him and thus quiet him. Nor did they have to hold themselves to a schedule. For some mothers and infants this program seemed to work very well. The infants gradually adapted themselves to demanding food less often, choosing for themselves a kind of schedule for several weeks or months.

Dr. Garry Meyers

BUT FOR A GREAT many babies, the plan didn't work so well. Some babies, enjoying not only taking food but being picked up and moved about, demanded also to be taken up when they were not hungry. Some mothers didn't find it so satisfying to take the youngster up every time he cried or complained; a few found their infants turning night into day.

Nor did nearly all the infants on demand feeding settle down reasonably early, or at all, to even the semblance of a schedule.

Therefore so much criticism of "demand feeding" arose that a few pediatricians out in front changed its name to "permissive feeding" so as to remove the suggested tyranny of the infant.

Moreover, leading pediatricians themselves soon modified the plan, suggesting to the mother that she try mildly to adapt the baby gradually to a kind of schedule after a few weeks or months. Obviously, not nearly all mothers did so skillfully.

BUT DEMAND or permissive feeding of the infant had more sense to it than it first appeared to have. Babies differ widely in the size of their stomachs and the time food stays in them.

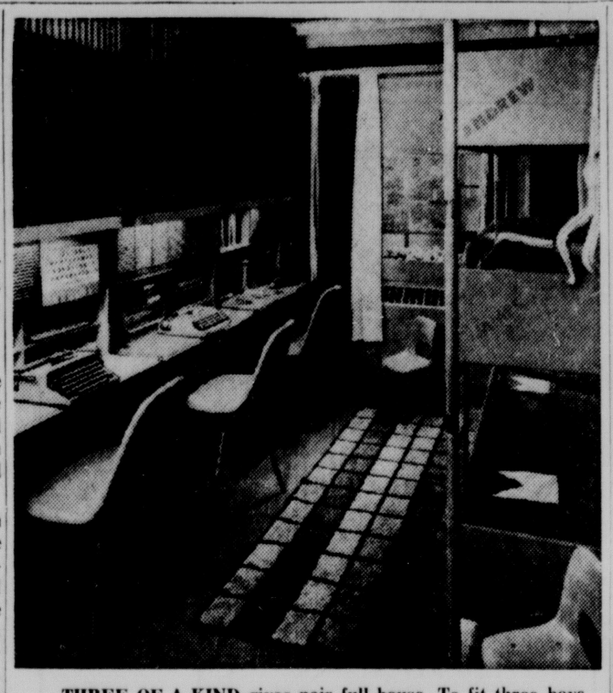

The emptiness of the stomach with its attendant shrinkage would seem to be a pretty reliable automatic signal for need of food, especially during the infant's early days. These factors should make it relatively easy for him to adapt himself somewhat to a schedule arrived at not purely by chance but with some wise guidance of the mother.

Obviously, success with this plan, literally operated, seems to have prepared some mothers to let this same child when he is two, five, eight or older eat between meals whenever he is hungry — often resulting in eating problems and overweight.

Extreme permissive feeding fits into the prevalence of excessive general permissiveness in rearing children, letting them have what they want when they want it and do about as they please.

My bulletins, "Love and Restraint" and "Eating Problems: Their Prevention and Solution I and II," may be secured by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to me in care of The Review.

Save-Space Plan Set For Your Boy's Room

Believe it or not, it's possible to tuck three boys with their beds, desks, clothing and paraphernalia into a room not much bigger than a shoebox and still have playing room left on the floor.

To make covers, place the wrong side of the fabric on top of the matress and pin in place all around. Pin fit corners in manner of a contour sheet, and cut away excess fabric. Use your sewing machine to stitch pinned corners. One-half-inch wide elastic strips tacked to snap under the four corners of the mattress hold the cover smooth.

In addition to separate bunks, each boy has one-third of a built-in desk wall, featuring plenty of storage above and below the working area. Scholastic typewriter, weighing only 11 pounds, goes on the desk wall for typing school work.

On the end wall, each boy has one-third of a closet area, with plenty of pegs for hangng rainwear and jeans.

With organization like this, plus gay and colorful fabric furnishings, three boys can live together — and love it.

Woman's Aid Needed In Coronary Menu

It takes two to make an appreciable change in a man's eating pattern. Without his wife's wholehearted cooperation, he gets nowhere. This is particularly true of a diet as different from the usual run of meals as the Prudent Diet followed by the New York City Health Department's all-male Anti-Coronary Club. The dietary modifications are as follows:

Ida Jean Kain

1. Consume adequate amounts of high - grade protein foods at each meal. Sources for these are cottage cheese, fat - free milk, chicken, turkey, veal, leaner cuts of beef, mutton, pork, seafood, egg whites. (Trim all visible fat from meat and poultry.)

2. Include fresh, canned or frozen seafood in at least five of the 21 meals per week. Fish may be fried in corn, cottonseed, safflower, soybean or sunflower oil.

USE VEAL or poultry in four or more meals per week. Limit servings of beef, lamb, mutton and pork to 3 to 4 ounces cooked weight — not more than 16 ounces for the week. Bake, roast, broil or boil meats, poultry.

For the other eight meals, have cottage cheese or egg whites, an occasional serving of liver, or additional servings of fish, seafood or poultry. Unless your doctor advises otherwise, four whole eggs per week may be included.

3. Whole milk may be used for coffee but otherwise the non-fat varieties such as fresh or reconstituted skim milk, fat-free buttermilk or evaporated skim milk is specified.

4. After weight is at normal levels, one and a half ounces of vegetable oil high in polyunsaturates is used each day in food preparation, salad dressing or in baking. The Prudent Diet also allows daily two pats (10 grams) of special margarine containing a high amount of liquid oil.

LARD AND cream or foods containing them in large amounts—such as most cakes and pastries, are taboo. Try to have margarine or oils used in cooking of the type high in polyunsaturated fats, the same as designated for table use.

The Prudent Diet is intended for men of normal weight, with a calorie allowance of 2,000 to 2,700 per day. See tomorrow's column for weight - reduction menus patterned on the diet.

Natural Stone Brings Extra Beauty To Home

In tune with the contemporary architectural trend of bringing outdoors atmosphere inside the home, natural stone is in high favor with interior designers, not only for fireplaces, but also for room dividers, walls and floors.

The rugged textured effect of natural stone, now available in a wide range of muted colors, offers a highly effective way to achieve individuality.

It will camouflage the peas-in-the-pod alikeness of development homes, for example, at a modest cost. Just a little stone used for foyer flooring or a decorative planter will work like magic in achieving a custom look.

Quartzite, limestone, granite, sand stone, flagstone and marble are some of the types which are favored for interior decoration as well as for exterior patios and walls.

By using harmonizing types of stone indoors and outdoors, an effect of extra spaciousness is achieved.

The rugged texture of stone sometimes is combined very effectively with smoothly polished stone. The stone fireplace or walls may be used as effective background for plants.

TOOTHBRUSHES in a bud vase? Why not? A decanter can hold bubble bath, too. Crystal gift and stemware can be put to decorative and practical use in the bath, adding a decorator touch to the entire room.
